LIMIT? THERE IS NONE IN PLANT GEARED FOR WAR

Beats Schedule Once Called Incredible.

(This is the third article in a series describing the epochal achievements of Chicagoland industries in their transition from peacetime to war production.)

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Down this block long assembly line a few weeks ago, washing machines were moving at the rate of one every 28 seconds. Over there, electric ironing machines were being turned out at a similar speed.

In those packing cases, stacked almost to the ceiling, are parts of washers and ironers valued at 1½ million dollars. They have been frozen under the government's wartime rationing program.

But replacing the two idle assembly lines are many others that keep hundreds of men and women busy at massive machines, with delicate instruments, and at dozens of intricate operations. The plant units of Electric Household Utilities are in action 24 hours a day seven days a week, turning out vital parts for America's war effort.

Work Started in 1939.

Out of this factory now come implements and equipment for every branch of the armed forces. For many weeks the company has been on war production 100 per cent. It has been identified with this type of work since 1939.

"We have sort of grown up with the war," says E. N. Hurley Jr., president. "It was in 1939 that army ordnance officers inspected our plant.

"They did a thoro job of noting our qualifications. We received our first defense contract the same year.

"This plant was equipped particularly well with machinery because it is not merely an assembly point. We always have made the parts for our washers and ironers."

Branches in Many Cities.

The company was established in 1906 by Hurley's father. It has branches in many American cities and until last May had two plant-warehouses in London. Both were lost in the same air raid.

As an American industrialist, Hurley thought—up to recent months—that he knew a great deal about expansion and production and their limits. Walking thru his plant yesterday he remarked that actually he had known very little and that American industry as a whole is learning that there is no limit to what it can accomplish when it has to.

For example: the Hurley plant some months ago took one of several contracts offered by a branch of the service that needed a certain part at the rate of 12 million a year. The demand seemed incredible at the time and the contractors went to work with the bare hope that they might

FBI SEIZES TWO BOYS ON CHARGE OF SETTING VAST FOREST FIRES

Brevard, N. C., April 27 (AP)—Federal bureau of investigation agents announced today the arrest of two boys, one 13 years old, and the other 15, on charges of setting some of the forest fires which have burned over 15,000 acres of Pisgah national forest in a week. The FBI quoted them as saying they set the fires in the hope of getting employment on the fire lines.

Fire fighting authorities said they believed the Pisgah fire was under control, but a huge blaze swept thru the woods of Caldwell, Watauga, and Wilkes counties. One man was reported missing.

Fire Ranger E. P. Simmons said the heat was so intense that some fish were cooked alive in the mountain streams.

Two additional units of state guardsmen were ordered into the burning areas. Four companies are on duty in the zone.

Col. S. B. Dolley of the state guard said at least five persons had been arrested in the last few days in connection with the fires, some of which, he said, were plainly of incendiary origin.

W. K. Beichler, chief of the state forest service, said, "We're positive that fires are being set."

Pryor, Okla., April 27 (Special).—At least 100 persons were killed, 250 others critically injured, and several hundred others—possibly 1,000—received injuries requiring medical attention when a tornado ripped thru this war boom town at 4:30 p. m. today.

Map locates tornado area.

These figures were announced tonight by Jerome Quigley, dispatcher for the Oklahoma state police, and were based on reports from approximately 70 state troopers rushed into the area.

Powder Plant Escapes.

The twister swept up Pryor's main street, reducing many of the business buildings, some of them three stories high, to rubble.

Spared from damage, however, was the huge Chotau powder plant, a du Pont enterprise busy with war orders. Pryor's two hospitals were also undamaged by the storm and were quickly filled to capacity with injured persons.

Quigley estimated that about one-half the residential district of Pryor was destroyed by the storm and that about 300 homes had been blown down. These were located in the western half of the city's area, he said.

Purplish Black Cone.

"The cone was purplish-black in color and clearly defined. It was the most awful looking thing any one could imagine."

So George Wolfe, 24 years old, of Tulsa, truck driver, described the tornado.

"It moved across the country in zig-zag fashion and from all sides of it were spitting big cows, whole trees, telephone poles, wire fences, roof tops," he said.

"All of a sudden everything got pitch black and it started to hail. Somebody said it had probably lifted and we got in our cars."

No Time to Think.

Wolfe and 11 other persons had huddled atop a hill midway between here and Claremore on highway 20. But as some of the cars moved off they ran into the center of the tornado.

"There wasn't time to think," said Wolfe. "I just slammed the car against a bank of earth and Leonard Wallace (his helper) and I jumped out.

HUNGRY TIGER AND THE BAITED TRAP

TUBE MOTORMAN ADMITS 5 BEERS

Held as Tipsy Driver of 'Fastest' Ride.

Jersey City, N. J., April 27 [Special].—"Only five beers" was the story to which Motorman Louis A. Vierbuchen was sticking today.

But five charges of manslaughter and one charge of operating a public conveyance while intoxicated were placed against him following a police investigation of his conduct before and after the nightmare ride of a six car Hudson river tube train which ended in a crash in which five persons were killed and 217 injured last night.

After the crash, according to Police Chief Harry W. Walsh, Vierbuchen fell sound asleep and was "very comfortable."

Called "Fastest" Ride.

If he had appeared for duty when he was due, Vierbuchen would have taken a train out of Newark at 9:30 p. m., railroad officials said. A substitute was called for this assignment and Vierbuchen, appearing later, left Newark at 10:32 p. m. in the train which figured in the wreck.

The train was traveling at an unusually high speed just before the crash, several passengers said. Pvt. Wayman Craft, 20 years old, of Company E, 372d infantry, a passenger, said: "It was the fastest I've ever seen the train go. I grabbed my companion, and then the blackout."

Admits "a Few Drinks."

Walsh told Judge Anthony Botti in 1st Criminal court, where Vierbuchen was arraigned and held for grand jury action, that when he arrived at the wreck the motorman's condition was such that he ordered him taken to the office of Dr. James Norton for an examination.

Vierbuchen, a veteran of 21 years' railroad experience, admitted he had had "a few drinks before and after dinner," according to Walsh. Pressed further, the motorman said he had had nothing to eat at his eating time but declared he had only had five beers.

WPB Cuts Use of Coffee 25%; Hairpins Bobbed to 2 Inches

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The War Production board today ordered a 25 per cent cut in the consumption of coffee because of "uncertainties about future supplies."

The WPB also limited the length of hairpins to 2 inches and reduced the output by half; forbade the use of bright colored paints on machine tools, and banned domestic radio station construction for the duration of the war.

The cut in coffee consumption was brought about by an order reducing the amount of coffee which may be delivered by roasters and accepted by wholesalers in any month to 75 per cent of deliveries in the corresponding period of 1941.

From 2.8 Cups Daily to 2.1.

To the average American this meant that his estimated consumption of 2.8 cups daily will be cut to 2.1 cups, unless he uses less coffee per cup, and coffee drinkers who may think of turning to tea as a substitute will find that beverage also under restriction. A 50 per cent cut in consumption was ordered some time ago.

The government will not attempt to ration coffee at the consumer level, WPB said, but the wholesalers are "expected to pass the cut along to their customers as equitably as possible."

"This action was taken to conserve supplies now on hand for the army, navy, and civilian population and to make future supplies go as far as possible," the board's announcement said.

"The war has created uncertainties about future supplies, since merchant ships that normally transport coffee are needed to carry war materials."

As a result of the 25 per cent cut, the present supply of coffee in this country would last for several months even if all imports were suspended, WPB said, but it gave this assurance:

"Every effort will be made to continue the flow of green coffee into the United States."

Practically all coffee imported into this country comes from 14 South and Central American countries, with Brazil and Colombia supplying about 75 per cent of the total. Present stocks of green coffee in the United States are about normal, WPB said.

The order requires roasters and wholesalers not to discriminate among customers.

Rules for Distributors.

Each month, until further notice, a coffee roaster may deliver 75 per cent of his average monthly deliveries in the corresponding quarter of 1941. The quota applies also, on a pro rata basis, to deliveries during the few remaining days of April.

A wholesale receiver—the term was defined as including retailers or other users such as restaurants whose purchases in 1941 averaged 2,000 pounds or more of coffee a month—may not take delivery of any coffee which would bring his total stock above the amount of his monthly quota. Any receiver who has on hand more than his monthly quota is prevented from accepting further deliveries until the excess is disposed of at a rate corresponding to the amount which he might receive under the quota.

Quota exempt deliveries may be made to specified agencies and per-

PLAN POSTWAR ROLE.

A pattern for the postwar rôle of the United States in the reconstruction of war torn areas and the rebuilding of world trade was outlined by speakers before the International Chamber of Commerce dinner held last night in conjunction with the opening in Chicago of the annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Other speakers told of industry's switch to war work and development of substitutes thru intensified research.

DETAILED COLOR MAP OF CEYLON.

FREES PREMIER OF VOW ON USE OF CONSCRIPTS

Quebec Alone Says 'No' on Issue.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27 (AP).—The Canadian government was given a free hand by plebiscite today to send conscripted soldiers outside the dominion and into battle anywhere in the world.

With only predominantly French Canadian Quebec province dissenting, as expected, the electorate was shown by incomplete returns tonight to favor overwhelmingly the release of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's government from prior commitments promising only domestic service for drafted men.

As the plebiscite was dominion-wide, Quebec's negative vote will not free it from acceptance of the overseas draft, should it be ordered by parliament.

Percentages in Favor.

The latest Canadian Press count showed these percentages by provinces for the proposition: Prince Edward Island, 83; Manitoba, 81; Nova Scotia, 79; Saskatchewan, 76; New Brunswick, 71; Alberta, 72; Quebec, 28; British Columbia, 80; Ontario, 84; all Canada, 62.

The latest tabulation of votes follows:

Prov.	Yes.	No.	Polls Reported.
Pr. E. Is.	21,423	4,268	220 of 241
N.Scotia	116,839	31,578	1,397 of 1,506
New Br.	101,017	41,563	970 of 1,039
Quebec	367,361	909,835	7,437 of 7,975
Ontar.	1,173,564	225,263	9,974 of 10,490
Manit.	176,524	36,641	1,255 of 1,883
Sask.	182,578	27,665	1,208 of 3,202
Alberta	82,543	27,021	924 of 2,531
Br. Col.	11,266	2,948	96 of 2,336

A tabulation of the vote in nine provinces showed that 2,233,115 persons voted in favor of the proposition. A total of 1,306,782 voted "no" in 23,481 of the 31,203 polls reported.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King said that "The vote means that the people generally recognize that the war has taken a course which was altogether unforeseen and that conditions wholly unexpected may yet arise, and that, in consequence, it is necessary to remove any restriction upon the freedom of the government and parliament."

Soldiers Also Voted.

About 7,000,000 civilian voters were eligible for the balloting today, which will be totaled with the soldier vote taken between April 16 and last Saturday. The vote of the 450,000 or more uniformed men and women will be made public next week when it is assembled from at home and overseas.

Favorable weather in most sections brought out heavy balloting. Women were reported to have voted heavily thruout the dominion. The voters answered this question:

"Are you in favor of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?"

Heretofore only volunteers have been sent overseas altho single men and childless widowers between 21 and 30 were conscripted for military training in Canada.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King himself led the three week campaign for the government's release from its anti-conscription commitments.

WAR AT A GLANCE; BRIEF SUMMARY OF MAJOR ACTIONS

Latest war developments:

The United States war department announced that artillery fire from the besieged fortress of Corregidor in Manila bay broke up a Japanese troop concentration on Bataan peninsula and set fire to trucks. Corregidor guns replied to a four hour cross-fire pounding by Japanese artillery stationed on Bataan and the south shore of Cavite bay, 10 miles away.

Seven Jap Planes Downed.

Allied headquarters in Australia reported seven Japanese planes of a force of 26 raiding Darwin had been shot down. Damage from the enemy attack was reported slight. The allies struck back at enemy bases on islands near Australia.

The British acknowledged that Japanese troops had advanced northward to a point 85 miles east of Mandalay, thereby menacing the railroad to Lashio, terminus of the Burma road.

RAF Loses 18 Planes.

The RAF, continuing its smashes at Germany, lost 18 planes in one day, the British acknowledged. Nazi airmen caused severe damage and many casualties in raids on a town in East Anglia.

The Russians, seeking to knock Finland out of the war, were attacking the enemy in Lapland and Karelia, according to London dispatches.

[Details on pages 1, 4, 5, and 9.]

British Lose 18 Planes in New Raids on Nazis

LONDON, April 28 [Tuesday]—(AP).—British bombers continuing their steady aerial offensive against Germany to relieve Russia struck again during the night at Nazi targets in Germany.

[The Berlin radio identified Cologne as one of the targets of the new RAF attacks and said nine more British bombers were shot down.]

The Germans retaliated by hitting hard at an East Anglian town where "a good many casualties" resulted and damage was widespread, the British announced today. At daylight rescue workers were digging in the wreckage for victims.

18 British Planes Lost.

The size and quality of the opposition was emphasized by the loss of 18 British craft—16 fighters and two bombers—against 11 Nazi craft destroyed, and by reports of RAF pilots that their challengers were more experienced and their planes better than heretofore.

Rostock in Ruins.

The day's raids, centered on Mardyck, Le Touquet, Ostend, Lille, and St. Omer, followed the fourth consecutive overnight attack on Rostock, German Baltic seaport from which German men and supplies go to the Russian front. Rostock lies blackened and seared by an aggregate of 1,600,000 pounds of British bombs.

Aside from the Rostock attack, the Dunkirk docks were bombed and mines were laid in enemy waters.

10,000 Homeless in Rostock.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 27 (AP).—Ten thousand families in Rostock are homeless as a result of the four raids there by the RAF, the Berlin correspondent of the Dagens Nyheter reported tonight.

U. S. TO SET UP SWEEPING PRICE CEILINGS TODAY

F.D.R. Submits Plan to Congress.

The text of President Roosevelt's message to congress appears on page 7. Details of congressional reaction on pages 7 and 8.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Following presentation of President Roosevelt's anti-inflation program to congress in a special message today it became known that price ceilings on all commodities except farm products will be promulgated tomorrow.

Such action is designed to halt a further rise in the cost of living, which has increased about 15 per cent since the outbreak of the war in 1939.

Producers and dealers will be forbidden to charge more for an article than its price in a recent specified period.

March Level to Be Basis.

Retail prices will be fixed at the March level. The ceilings will go into effect about the middle of May. Also effective about the middle of May will be ceilings on wholesale prices, fixed at the level of maximum prices in January.

Prepared and ready for issuance are orders rationing nearly 100 commodities in which there are shortages or threatened shortages.

Ceilings also will be established on house and apartment rents in about 100 cities in which war production industries are located. Chicago is one of these communities.

Henderson to Outline Plan.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson will hold a press conference at 11 a. m. tomorrow at which he will explain details of the application of price ceilings.

Tomorrow night the President will go on the air in a fireside chat to explain to the people his program for curbing inflation.

The Roosevelt program, as submitted to congress, proposes the following steps "to keep the cost of living from spiraling upward":

1. Heavy taxes, including such levies as will keep personal and corporate profits at a low level, with the amount any individual may keep after paying taxes limited to $25,000 a year.

[Randolph Paul, the treasury department's chief tax expert, said that under the proposed new income tax rates a man making $65,000 a year would have no more than $25,000 left after paying federal income taxes. Treasury officials interpreted the President's recommendation as meaning $25,000 left after all taxes, including state and local, rather than just federal levies.]

Wholesale Tops Proposed.

2. Ceilings on the prices which consumers, retailers, wholesalers, and manufacturers pay for the things they buy and ceilings on rents for dwellings in all war production centers.

3. Stabilization of wages at existing scales, except in cases involving substandards of living the inequalities of which can be adjusted upward to the cost of living by the War Labor board.

4. Stabilization of farm product prices thru legislation abolishing the present price fixing formula whereby a ceiling cannot be applied to a farm product price until it reaches 110 per cent of parity. The President urged restoration of the simple parity provision.

Bond Buying Urged.

5. Encouragement of citizens to contribute to the cost of winning the war by purchasing war bonds with their earnings instead of using those earnings to buy nonessential articles. Compulsory saving and bond investment will be resorted to only in the event voluntary action proves insufficient.

6. Rationing of all essential commodities of which there is a scarcity, so that they may be distributed fairly.

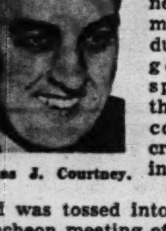
7. Discouragement of credit and instalment buying and encouragement of debt paying in order to promote saving, retard excessive buying, and increase the funds available to creditors for purchase of war bonds.

Not once in the entire message did the President use the word "inflation," which he does not like because he doesn't know precisely what it means and thinks nobody else does.

TAX GROUP SNUBS COURTNEY'S IDEA TO SLASH LEVIES

Plan of Home Rule Also Termed Not Feasible.

A special tax committee of 60 civic leaders and city and county officials yesterday gave the cold shoulder to a demand by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney that the committee urge a reduction in local government spending and thus reduce the constantly increasing tax rate in Chicago.



Thomas J. Courtney.

Courtney's demand was tossed into the middle of a luncheon meeting of the committee in the Palmer House during an abstruse discussion of setting up standards for bidding at tax foreclosure sales.

Offers Better Method.

"You're getting off into a theoretical discussion," Courtney asserted. "Why not get down to brass tacks? This committee has before it a report that the only way to cut taxes is to set up some foreclosure standards to bring in delinquent tax payments.

"Actually, the way to cut taxes and at the same time to increase the percentage of tax collections is to cut public expenditures. That would reduce the tax rate to a reasonable level. I don't see how real estate owners stand the tax burden they are now bearing. These committee reports are largely propaganda. The truth is, the tax rate is too high."

Cutting Taxes Off Subject.

Ald. Frank Keenan [49th], chairman of the city council taxation committee, told Courtney he was "getting off the subject."

"It's always off the subject to talk about cutting taxes," the state's attorney replied. "But I insist that the matter be gone into at this conference."

Courtney's remark was received in utter silence. Nobody took up the suggestion.

Sitting at the conference table were Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board; Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel for the city of Chicago; several aldermen and county commissioners, and representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Union League club, Chicago Bar association, and many other civic organizations. Chicago's 1941 tax rate is $9.89 per $100 of valuation, an all time high.

The tax committee was organized two months ago under the chairmanship of James A. Cunningham, chairman of the Association of Commerce tax delinquency committee with the avowed purpose of solving Cook county's tax problems and finding a way to clean up unpaid taxes.

The conference also got off on a tangent when Hodes said the committee should study the question of giving "all Illinois municipalities, especially those of over 500,000 population," home rule over tax matters.

Directed at Chicago.

The suggestion was obviously directed solely at Chicago, which is the only city in the state over 500,000.

"I'd like to know what Mr. Hodes means," interjected Courtney. "Many sins have been committed in the name of two words, 'home rule'."

Hodes then explained he meant that the city, instead of Cook county, should have charge of tax assessing, billing, and collecting within the city limits. Courtney said he opposed this, and wanted more explicit suggestions before the committee took any action.

Holland Cassidy, an attorney appearing as a representative of the Union League club, explained that the proposed "home rule" of taxes would be impossible without a constitutional amendment.

DOG SET ON FIRE WITH HOT POKER, OWNER CHARGES

John Deichs and Tom Hennig of Pingree Grove, Kane county, both wanted to rent a farm at Stark Station, near Elgin. Deichs got the place. After he moved in two weeks ago, his dog, Shep, a nondescript but friendly fellow, frequently wandered back to his old haunts for a visit.

Saturday neighbors said they saw the dog come flying and yelping out of the door of Mayor John Thurnau's blacksmith shop, across the street in Pingree Grove from Hennig's home. The dog was afire. After the dog came Hennig who hauled the animal back in the shop, the neighbors said.

When Shep got home, Deichs found the dog had been critically burned. Deichs took out warrants yesterday for Thurnau and Hennig. Thurnau, according to Sheriff Marcus Damisch, admitted turpentining the dog, and said he brought a red hot poker near its back to "drive in the turpentine." The dog is in an animal hospital in Elgin. Hennig and Deichs will appear tonight before Justice James Hennessey in Elgin on charges of cruelty to an animal. The state humane society will help prosecute.

JUDGE FORGIVES 10 VOTE ERROR IN PRIMARY RESULT

Judge Jay Schiller of the Municipal court, a Democratic nominee for reelection, received 417,974 votes in the official proclamation of the April 14 primary vote issued yesterday by the board of election commissioners. The canvass showed Judge John V. McCormick with one vote more.

Judge Schiller said, however, that in the 13th precinct of the 30th ward, the tabulators took 97 instead of 107 as his vote—a difference of 10 votes—so that a correction would put him in the lead. Rather than put the board to the expense of a recount,

The top Republican among the 10 party nominees for the Municipal court was Attorney Arthur Carlsten, 6416 North Richmond avenue, who died two days after the primary. He had 156,213 votes. The Republican city central committee will not immediately fill the vacancy on the ticket.

Ex-Michigan Man Found Shot to Death in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 27 (AP).—The body of George N. Baudin, 40 years old, a native of Michigan and president of the Ingersoll Rand company, Brazil, was found in a field yesterday, police said, with a pistol beside it. Baudin came to South America in 1922 and had lived in Brazil since 1930. His widow survives.

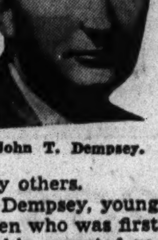
LIQUOR STORE ROBBED.

Samuel Lieberman, 6811 South Wabash avenue, reported to police yesterday that three armed men forced him to the rear of the liquor store which he manages at 9441 South Ashland avenue and took $75 from the cash register.

HAPPY IN GAINS, G. O. P. RE-ELECTS COUNTY OFFICERS

Pat Nash Remains in Democrats' Saddle.

Republicans yesterday turned their Cook county convention from a routine affair into a jubilant celebration of their harmonious April 14 primary and their confident hopes for victory Nov. 3. More than 300 attended the meeting in the La Salle hotel, including ward and precinct committeemen, all county candidates, and many others.



John T. Dempsey.

Chairman John T. Dempsey, young adherent of Gov. Green who was first elected in 1940, won his expected reelection with a standing ovation.

Forecasts Complete Victory.

"We stand on the doorstep of another victory," Dempsey said. "The tide is with us and time will bring our party in. We look forward to complete victory next November, spurred by the fact that we gained votes while the Democrats lost votes on April 14."

Democrats held their county convention in the Morrison hotel in the morning with less fanfare. Only county committee members attended. They speedily reëlected Chairman Patrick A. Nash, Secretary Joseph L. Gill, and George F. Ross, Nash's son-in-law, as executive secretary.

Nash Defies Foes.

Defying those who assail the Nash-Kelly organization, the 79 year old chairman said it is "one of the best in the United States, barring none."

"This organization cannot be harmed," he declared. "There is absolutely no way of breaking it down."

Democratic and Republican county central committees last night elected their chairmen in Lake, Kane and Du Page counties. In Lake county Jack E. Bairstow, city attorney of Waukegan and Democratic nominee for congress from the 10th district, was elected by the Democrats. William M. Marks of Lake Villa, who has served two terms, was reëlected by the Republicans. The Democrats in Du Page county chose Adolph J. Meadel of Lisle. Republicans selected Barney Long of Downers Grove. In Kane county Attorney Merritt J. Little of Aurora was elected Republican chairman. The Democrats chose Attorney Clarence J. Ruddy of Aurora.

PASTOR BEATEN AND ROBBED BY THREE BANDITS

The Rev. Will Gordon, 47 years old, 7924 Muskegon avenue, pastor of the First Baptist church of South Chicago, was beaten over the head with a pistol and robbed of $11 and his watch by three men, 25 to 27 years old, who took him into their car at Wabash avenue and Congress street.

He said he had been to the Pacific Garden mission, 650 South State street, and thought it nothing unusual when the men invited him into their car, offering to drive him home. At 35th street and the outer drive, he said, they robbed him, struck him, and told him to run. He was treated for a head wound at Chicago hospital.

LEGAL MUDDLE PERILS COUNTY INCOME FOR '42

BY LAURENCE BURD.

A legal technicality has threatened the validity of Cook County's 1942 tax levy of 9 million dollars and has had the immediate result of depriving the county of nearly $600,000 in actual cash, officials disclosed yesterday.

The situation was caused by these facts:

Before 1942, Cook county's tax levy was limited in even years to 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. For 1942 this rate would produce a tax of $7,628,000. The county, as did the five other major governments within it, succeded in bypassing this limitation, however, thru the adoption of an amendment by the state assembly last year fixing a "pegged levy" of 9 millions for 1942.

Special Library Tax.

The amendment was passed in the afternoon of the last day of the session amid a mad scramble of voting on various bills. In the evening of the same day the legislature amended the same section of the statute again to authorize a special library tax in downstate counties.

By accident this latter amendment fixed the tax rate for all counties at the old 32 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

These matters were brought to the attention of county officials recently when the law firm of Chapman and Cutler refused to give an opinion upholding the 9 million dollar levy for the purpose of selling 1942 tax anticipation warrants. [The actual 1942 taxes are not collected until 1943, so local governments borrow against the taxes by selling warrants.]

Approve $7,628,000 Tax.

Chapman and Cutler approved a tax of only $7,628,000 as legal. They held the courts might rule that the later amendment was controlling and thus rule out Cook county's pegged levy. The county therefore can borrow thru warrants only 75 per cent of the $7,628,000, or $5,721,000. It had planned to sell $6,300,000 worth of the warrants.

William T. Tuohy, assistant state's attorney and adviser to the county board, said yesterday that in his opinion the legality of the pegged levy is not affected. He argued that the two amendments should be read together to determine the intent of the legislators, and furthermore that the pegged levy bill was signed by Gov. Green later than the library tax bill.

The point is not expected to be cleared up in the courts until next year when the 1942 taxes are collected. At that time, taxpayers may raise the objection that the levy was illegal and seek refunds. The five other major governments in the county—the city, school board, park board, sanitary district, and forest preserve—are not affected by the mixup.

Now the same part is being demanded at the rate of 40 million a month! And the goods are being delivered—on time.

Great Value to Nation.

The methods being learned now, Hurley believes, will be of great value to the nation and the world in the days that follow cessation of hostilities. Greater and cheaper production of consumer goods, which will be in greater demand then than ever before, will help rehabilitation get off to an effective start.

Meanwhile expansion for wartime production goes on. New machines are arriving as fast as factories can deliver. As they are moved into the Hurley plants other machines for peacetime production are pushed out. Because of its past requirements, however, the company has been able to utilize much of its old equipment after a moderate degree of rebuilding and adaptation to the new tasks.

And the new machines that are coming in show the effects of the need for higher speed production. One in particular—which cannot be described specifically because of war department regulations—now outdoes 14 others that were installed a few months ago.

One device that performs five to seven drilling operations automatically is so fast that the girls who operate it must practice for weeks before acquiring the manual speed necessary to keep this machine operating at peak efficiency. At that, however, the girls learn more rapidly than men and their native dexterity gives them greater speed once they have mastered the technique.

Girls Mechanically Minded.

"This change-over, with the corresponding demand for more women, has proved that girls are mechanically minded probably to a greater degree than men," Hurley asserted. "We have found that a great pride goes with the ability to run one of these machines."

Within a few weeks the Hurley plant will employ as many women as men. And within that same period the company's present pay roll will be doubled, Hurley stated.

SHIP TORPEDOED; U. S. DESTROYER SUNK BY BLAST

Sail Lifeboat 400 Miles to Reach Safety.

Sinking of the 144th merchant ship in American waters since Pearl Harbor and the destruction by an underwater explosion off the coast of Florida of an American destroyer, the U. S. S. Sturtevant, were revealed yesterday. There have been 883 persons reported dead, 1,116 missing, and 4,298 rescued in the enemy onslaughts on merchant shipping off American shores.

PROVISIONS DROPPED

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—An army plane and a blimp dropped provisions into their overcrowded lifeboat, survivors of a torpedoed Panamanian cargo ship related on their arrival at Norfolk after sailing an estimated 400 miles during the seven days they were in the boat.

Fireman Frank Clement of Jean, Tex., was the only crewman lost in the sinking, which occurred in broad daylight on April 16. The other thirty crew members escaped in the only lifeboat left undamaged by explosions of two torpedoes sent crashing into the small ship by an unseen submarine. The navy announced the sinking today.

Survivors said an army plane appeared overhead several hours after they abandoned the ship and used small parachutes to drop chocolate, a first aid kit, and a message that a rescue vessel would be directed to their life boat.

Blimp Lowers Provisions.

Chief Officer H. F. Hallifax of Montreal, Canada, told newsmen on the day after the sinking a blimp appeared, hovered 100 feet above the boat and "lowered by a string" packages containing apples, tomatoes, cigarets, matches, a compass, a first aid kit, and a message saying a rescue ship was en route to their assistance.

Crewmen paid tribute to Capt. Charles B. Dunn of Mobile, Ala., the other officers and Boatswain Yacobus Zwart of Holland for their seamanship in navigating the 20-foot lifeboat to within 12 miles of the coast where they were picked up by a rescue ship and landed at Morehead City, N. C.

CAUSE NOT REVEALED

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The United States destroyer Sturtevant was sunk off Florida yesterday, the navy reported today, but whether it was a victim of a submarine or an American mine was not made known.

A naval communique said the 1,190 ton ship was blasted by "an underwater explosion."

While it may have been torpedoed, as was the destroyer Jacob Jones off the New Jersey coast earlier this year, authorities speculated it might have struck a floating mine. There was no reported evidence of an enemy submarine in the vicinity.

Most of Crew Rescued.

The navy said loss of life was small, explaining that "most of the crew" reached an unidentified port in safety. The Sturtevant had a normal wartime complement of 145 to 150 officers and men.

The communique, issued shortly after noon, did not fix the time of the sinking, but a navy spokesman said that it occurred "within the last 24 hours."

The Sturtevant was a World war type destroyer, known in the navy as a "tin can" because of its light armor, and its destruction prompted navy men to recall that the brunt of sea fighting to date has been borne by ships of that type.

11 Destroyers Lost.

Including the World war built Reuben James, which was sunk off Iceland last October, the United States has lost 11 destroyers, and of those all but two were built 20 to 25 years ago.

The two exceptions are the Cassin and Downes, which were wrecked by Japanese bombs at Pearl Harbor.

Destroyers, moreover, constitute the largest single category of all American naval ships lost—the total now standing at 31 and including a battleship, a cruiser, four submarines, a target ship, an aircraft carrier, two coast guard vessels, four small combat craft, and six auxiliaries of various types.

Commissioned in 1920.

The Sturtevant was built by the New York Shipbuilding company, Camden, N. J., and was commissioned as a naval vessel in 1920. It was 314 feet long and 31 feet in the beam.

Like all ships of its class, the Sturtevant was virtually devoid of hull protecting armor and depended on its speed for protection in combat.

Modern destroyers, hundreds of tons heavier than those constructed in the World war, have not only hull protection, but also compartmentation.

OLDER AMERICA REGISTERS FOR ITS PART IN WAR

Chicago Boards Work Late to Handle Rush.

Like their younger partners before them, the nation's men from 45 thru 64 filed into registration stations yesterday and became eligible for their share in the greatest war effort in history.

The rush of registrants in Chicago was so heavy that boards worked late into the night to complete their tasks. The 151 boards within the city registered 448,319 men and the 29 boards in the suburban areas registered 82,221 more for a total of 530,540. The suburban registration of older men surpassed the total recorded in the 21 to 35 year old signup by almost 1,000. In the four registrations thus far 1,423,975 Cook county men have been listed.

Add 13 Million in All.

When the draft boards thruout the country closed their books last night, another 13 million names had been added. In all, 40 million men—virtually every male in the country between the ages of 20 and 64—have been registered.

The new lists include the name of President Roosevelt, who answered the routine nine questions in the White House, and those of topnotch figures in the world of science, religion, business, the professions, and the arts.

Illinois' No. 1 citizen, the governor, registered at the Edgewater Beach hotel. He said his name is Dwight Herbert Green, that he was born in Ligonier, Ind., Jan. 9, 1897, and that his eyes are brown.

On the near north side bankers and professors, leaders of industry and men whose names can be found in "Who's Who" stood in line.

Playing a Key Part.

In other sections of the city men with calloused hands and dinner buckets went thru the routine; most of them seemed conscious that in this war of production they are destined to play key parts.

About 500 Chinese, most of whom answered the questions thru interpreters, registered in Chinatown. Among them was "Mayor" Gerald H. Moye, 45 years old, who served in the United States army in the World war.

Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago, who was post chaplain at Fort Sheridan during the last war, suggested he could be of service this time along the Maine coast. "I've got a 36 foot boat which I've sailed along that coast every summer for 25 years. I know the region."

Won't Get Order Numbers.

Unlike those registered in the previous drafts, those who signed up yesterday will not get order numbers and participate in a national lottery. Their registration cards will be shuffled and they will receive registration numbers. In that order they will receive the detailed three page occupational questionnaire, designed to provide the government with an accurate picture of their abilities.

There were 600 registration stations in Cook county.

DIES IN DRAFT REGISTER LINE.

Canadian Break with France Expected Today

VICHY, April 27.—Announcement of the breaking of diplomatic relations by Canada with France is anticipated when Premier W. L. Mackenzie King addresses parliament in Ottawa tomorrow.

HOWARD HUNTER RESIGNS HIS JOB AS HEAD OF WPA

New Orleans, La., April 27 (AP).—Howard O. Hunter said here tonight that he had resigned as commissioner of the WPA, effective May 1, and that his resignation had been sent to the President for action.

Howard O. Hunter.

Hunter, former Chicago relief administrator, here on vacation, would not discuss the matter further and would not comment on future plans. He said his resignation was a personal matter between him and President Roosevelt and that he was not at liberty to discuss it.

DOCTOR'S NOTES TELL OF KILLING FAMILY AND SELF

Rock Springs, Wyo., April 27 (AP).—Coroner J. Warden Opie said tonight that Dr. J. F. Ryan, 35, injected drugs into his wife and two small daughters, watched them die, wrote a note giving the times of their deaths and then gave himself a fatal dose.

Police broke into the Ryan home last night and discovered the bodies of Mrs. Ryan, about 34, and the children in their beds. Dr. Ryan, who died this morning, lay beside the body of his wife.

The coroner said a note, addressed to him and signed by the physician, related how he gave narcotics to his family. The note said, in part: "Do an autopsy on me and my wife if necessary. Please don't on the kids. Mrs. Ryan died at 4 p. m. [Saturday]. Virginia at 4:30. Mary Jane at 12 midnight. . . ."

OBJECTOR IN '18 WHO GOT LIFE, REFUSES AGAIN

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Harold S. Gray, 47 years old, operator of the Saline Valley farms and a conscientious objector during the last war whose philosophy was published in book form in 1934 under the title, "Character, Bad," said today he would not register for the fourth draft.

He said he has sent a letter to United States Attorney General Biddle stating his refusal.

Inducted into service at Camp Custer, Mich., just 24 years ago today, Gray proclaimed himself an objector and was tried before a court martial on a charge of refusing to obey a military command to rake the parade ground. His sentence was life at hard labor, which later was commuted to 25 years. However, he was released in 1919.

Gray's paternal grandfather was first president of the Ford Motor company; his maternal grandfather was Dr. William S. Studley, a Methodist minister. His father was Philip H. Gray, philanthropist and president of the Detroit YMCA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—Jugo-Slavian government circles here today denied reports emanating from enemy sources that Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, war minister, who has been conducting guerrilla warfare from the Serbian mountains, has been captured. They say they have received reports from Jugo-Slavia "establishing beyond doubt" that there is no truth in the report.

U. S. PROBES REPORTS JAPS MISTREAT YANKS IN OCCUPIED AREAS

Washington, D. C. April 27 [Special].—The state department is investigating reports of mistreatment of American nationals in Japanese occupied territory, such as Manila and Hongkong, Secretary of State Hull said today.

He made the announcement when his attention was called to other reports that the Japanese have made inquiries regarding treatment of Japanese nationals who have been removed from their homes on the west coast. Individual reports have told of vicious mistreatment of foreigners by the Japanese.

German and Italian diplomats who arrived at New Orleans from South America last week are being held in Cincinnati for a few days before being sent to New York. The scheduled arrival of the chartered Swedish ship Drottningholm has been delayed. The ship will take the envoys to Lisbon and return with American diplomats from Europe.

SENATE STUDIES TAKING WOMEN INTO THE ARMY

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The senate returned to its military committee today a measure which would authorize the creation of a women's auxiliary corps as a part of the army enlisted reserve corps.

The motion to recommit, made by Sen. Robert La Follette [Prog., Wis.], came during a controversy over whether the corps should be made a part of the army, or should be organized outside of the army for noncombat duty. The motion passed on a voice vote.

The house has approved legislation for a women's corps of 150,000 members organized outside of the army for military service. Sen. Elbert Thomas [D., Utah] submitted a substitute in the senate to make the corps part of the army.

Under the substitute, corps members would be subject to all the regulations, such as those governing rank, pay and discipline, as are now applied to men in the army, and any other regulation which the secretary of war might prescribe.

Women would be excluded from combat duty under both measures.

CEYLON ISLAND OF MANY INVASIONS THRU CENTURIES

Color variations show the topography of Ceylon. In the south central part of the country, it will be noted, is a large massif, or mountain mass. This covers considerably more than 4,000 square miles of the country's total of 25,332 square miles. The highest mountain of Ceylon is Petrutalagala, overlooking the town of Nuwara Eliya. Its crest is nearly 8,300 feet above sea level.

Once Joined to Mainland.

Ceylon is about 275 miles long, from north to south, and about 140 miles wide in its widest part, from east to west. It is a trifle closer to the equator than is Panama. Geological evidence shows that at one time it was joined to the mainland of India by an isthmus. In a violent storm in 1480 the sea broke thru this isthmus, but there remains today in its place a chain of shoals and sand banks.

Ramachandra, the seventh incarnation of the god Vishnu, according to Hindu mythology, built a causeway from India to Ceylon to facilitate the passage of his army to the island to rescue his abducted wife Sita. The story of this legendary engineering feat is told in the Ramayana, a Sanskrit epic which details the life and adventures of Ramachandra. The sandbanks and shoals that form the natural link between Ceylon and India, according to the legend, are what is left of the great causeway. The link is called Rama's Bridge or Adam's Bridge.

Sand Banks as Stepping Stones.

Because of the presence of this natural bridge, by which troops could advance from sand bank to sand bank, military authorities now see in Ceylon a possible means of invading India from the south.

The history of the island is made up largely of a sequence of invasions and counterinvasions from and into India. A Chinese army once occupied Ceylon and held it for 30 years.

That was almost a hundred years before Francisco de Almeida, a Portuguese navigator, landed in Ceylon in 1505.

The island has been governed consecutively by the Portuguese, the Dutch, and the British. It was by the terms of the treaty of Amiens of 1802 that Ceylon formally was ceded to Great Britain, altho the British claimed it as a crown colony as early as 1798.

Ceylon, rich in natural resources, densely populated, and possessing a number of fine cities and harbors, would be a valuable prize for any successful invaders. Trincomalee, on the east coast, has one of the finest harbors in the world. Colombo, the capital, ranks among the first dozen ports of the world.

CHINESE ATTACK JAPS FAR BEHIND ENEMY POSITIONS

CHUNGKING, China, April 27 (AP). —Chinese raids against Japanese positions in the east China provinces of Chekiang and Anhwei, hundreds of miles behind the most advanced Japanese lines, have caused considerable damage, Chinese army dispatches said today.

Japanese fears that the Chinese may be able to establish air bases in these provinces, within bomber range of Japan's big cities, have intensified operations there recently. A Chinese mobile unit was said to have encircled a town in northern Chekiang four days ago and destroyed all Japanese fortifications in the suburbs.

Japanese troops who attacked Chisitu in west Chekiang were said to have been routed after a night long battle. The Chinese said they dispersed a Japanese detachment attempting to cross the Funchun river in east Chekiang province.

After laying down an artillery barrage near the Yangtze river port of Tungliu, in Anhwei, Japanese troops attacked the nearby Chinese, who gave ground but later recovered their original positions.

AMERICAN EAGLE AIRMEN DOWN 5 NAZI WAR PLANES

Utah Flyer Bags Two in Fights Over France.

LONDON, April 27 (AP).—The American Eagle squadron shot down five of the newest type German fighters—Focke-Wulf 190s—over northern France today in what probably was the sharpest engagement they have fought.

Squadron Leader C. G. Peterson.

Squadron Leader C. G. Peterson of Santaquin, Utah, who has won the distinguished flying cross, was the first Eagle to go into action.

Another pilot, describing Peterson's actions, said tne Utahan fired a burst at one German plane which half rolled and went straight down.

Five Planes Below Him.

"He saw five more below him," the flyer said. "He attacked one and that, too, crashed into the ground. He then went on to attack another and damaged it."

One American pilot said that for about 10 minutes the sky was "full of aircraft."

Other Eagles who took part in the fighting were Pilot Officers Oscar Coen, 24 years old, of Murphysboro, Ill.; M. G. McFarlan of Hastings, Mich., and Robert Sprague, 23, of San Diego, Cal. Each shot down one.

Pilot Officer A. B. Roscoe, 21, of North Hollywood, Cal., was credited with a "probable" and Pilot Officer E. M. Hunter of Chicago was given credit for one damaged.

Blasts Rudder Off One.

"In addition to those we shot down, another Eagle blew the rudder off a Focke-Wulf which went down in a vertical drive from 15,000 feet," an Eagle pilot said. "But we could not follow it as he attacked again and he had too much to do to see whether the Hun hit the ground."

It was a big day for Peterson, for not only did he fight, but his engagement to Audrey Boyes, South African film actress, also was announced.

MILLIONS FORCED TO LABOR FOR NAZIS, REDS SAY

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, April 27 (AP). —The soviet government declared tonight the Germans have demanded that "several million of the choicest Russian workers" in occupied territory be delivered to Germany for forced labor.

This demand, an official statement said, was part of a carefully worked out Nazi scheme for organized robbery and destruction of soviet property and "forcible Germanization" of Russian peoples. The government charges, based on documents captured from German army staffs, were included in a note sent by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov to all friendly countries.

This was the third time the soviet union has levelled atrocity charges at the Germans. Previous notes were sent on Nov. 26 protesting "barbaric" treatment of war prisoners; and on Jan. 7 asserting that the soviet government was keeping careful account of Nazi crimes and would "demand and obtain retribution."

PREMIER TOJO WARNS JAPANESE: THE WAR STILL MUST BE FOUGHT

TOKIO, April 27 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo said today that despite successive Japanese victories "the war still has to be fought." He declared in an address that "recent developments" showed that the United States and Britain have been forced to reckless actions because of successive defeats in the Pacific.

He did not specify these developments but Domei news agency said the phrase might be taken to refer to the "United States stunt air attacks on Japan itself."

[Tokio, Yokohama, Kobe, and Nagoya were bombed April 18, and air alarms were sounded on several days afterwards.]

"The war's coming stage will be a real test for the Japanese nation and will demand the nation's utmost unity," he declared. "The Japanese people must always bear in mind the fact that we are still in the midst of a great war. Even we who are behind the lines must be of the same mind as the troops at the front and be fully prepared to cope with any attack on Japan itself, and in that way help operations of our men at the front."

IT'S JUST LUCK, SAY 'TIGERS' WHO BAG 400 PLANES

But Skill Keeps Casualties Down to Five.

Robert Layher.

That's what the Flying Tigers, flyers of the American volunteer group, themselves say for their record of destroying approximately 400 Japanese planes as against a bare five of their own number killed in combat.

There have been other casualties, but their losses have been so trifling that even they are amazed.

Examples of just how "lucky" the Tigers have been were given by Robert Layher of Colorado Springs, Colo., one of a group who stopped off in New Delhi today while ferrying more planes into Burma.

Plane Shot to Ribbons.

Layher said one Yankee pilot whose engine was not functioning too well was caught by a Japanese flyer and chased 50 miles. His plane was simply shot to ribbons, and he was flying so low he couldn't dive to safety.

The American still had a hundred miles to go with an oil pump that was leaking badly. But he got in.

"I've never seen a plane with so many holes in it," grinned Layher. "All the tires were flat and the wings and fuselage were like a sieve—but not a solitary control gear had been hit."

Earphones Shot Off.

Another pilot was caught in a blast of machine gun fire that shot off both his earphones at the same time. The bullets left burns along both cheeks just below the ears—but the pilot otherwise was unscratched.

Layher told how another flyer took to his parachute during an air fight and five times Japanese pilots "made passes" at him. Gaping holes were shot in the parachute, but the pilot landed untouched.

The AVG pilots heap unrestrained praise upon their commander, Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, one of the Billy Mitchell group of air power advocates who retired from the U. S. army air corps and led a dozen American pilots into action against the Japanese when they first attacked China in 1937.

"You can beat them without getting hurt yourself, if you do it properly," Chennault tells his pilots.

Repeatedly the Tigers have shot down 8, 10, and even 20 Japanese planes at a time without a loss. They often come back to their base with their planes riddled with bullets—but they get back.

Prisoners of Japs

Parents of two Chicagoans learned last night that their sons are among 120 Americans captured by the Japanese in the fall of Wake Island last Dec. 23. The Chicagoans, whose names were obtained by the International Red Cross and supplied to the war department, are Corp. Eugene J. Lutz, son of Joseph A. Lutz, 5814 Markham avenue, and Adolph Simon, 20 years old, private first class, son of Mrs. Eva Grabske, 1715 West 14th place. Both are members of the marine corps. Simon left Crane High school two and a half years ago to enter the service, and Lutz, a Lane Technical High school graduate, worked for the Westinghouse company for a time before he joined the corps.

CORNICE FALLS; 30 NARROWLY ESCAPE INJURY

GEN. BONESTEEL PUT OVER ALLIED ARMY IN ICELAND

BritishMayWithdrawTheir Troops, Is Hint.

Washington. D. C., April 27 (AP).—The war department announced today that Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of the American troops in Iceland, has taken over the command of all forces of the united nations in that island.

Maj. Gen. C. H. Bonesteel.

Bonesteel succeeds Maj. Gen. Henry Osborne Curtis of the British army, but there was no indication in the brief announcement whether British troops were being withdrawn from Iceland.

British May Withdraw.

It was recalled, however, that both President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Stimson are on record as saying it was the purpose of the United States eventually to take over the garrisoning of the island from the British. Both statements were made last year.

Mr. Roosevelt, in announcing on July 7 that American naval forces had arrived in Iceland, said they were there to supplement "and eventually to replace the British forces."

A letter from Secretary Stimson saying British troops would be withdrawn from Iceland "as soon as practicable" was made public on Oct. 16 by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.].

SERVED IN CHICAGO.

Maj. Gen. Bonesteel, 57 years old, is a native of Fort Sidney, Neb., and a 1908 graduate of West Point. He commanded the fifth division at Fort Custer, Mich., prior to his assignment to Iceland last year.

Gen. Bonesteel arrived at Fort Sheridan in 1940 as a colonel to serve as chief of staff to Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding the 6th corps area, and was promoted to brigadier general in September, 1940. The following month he was made commander of the area, and was promoted to major general in April, 1941, serving as corps commander until July 25, when he was assigned to Fort Custer.

Bonesteel is of a family of soldiers. His father and grandfather were graduated from West Point. His son, Charles H. Bonesteel, is a captain in the engineer corps. The general went to France in World War I. as a captain in the seventh division, one of the last regular divisions to see active service abroad in the conflict.

PRESENT FLYING CROSS TO WIDOW OF COLIN KELLY

Los Angeles, Cal., April 27 [Special].—For "extraordinary achievement" Capt. Colin P. Kelly, America's first air hero of the second World war, today was posthumously awarded the distinguished flying cross at a public ceremony at March field.

The widow of the flyer, who died when the bombing plane he piloted crashed after sinking the Japanese battleship Haruna off the Philippines, received the award from Brig. Gen. William H. Kepner, commander of the fourth interceptor command. Following the presentation Mrs. Kelly, now a resident of Hollywood, reviewed the field's flying group.

Capt. Kelly was cited for "extraordinary achievement while participating in an aerial flight of nine B-17 bombers from Honolulu to the Philippines from Sept. 5 to Sept. 12, 1941. This outstanding achievement reflects the highest credit on the military forces of the United States."

JAPS PERIL RAIL LINE TO BURMA ROAD TERMINUS

Foe Is 85 Miles East of Mandalay.

NEW DELHI, India, April 27 (AP).—Japanese shock troops have reached a point 85 miles directly east of Mandalay in a thrust from captured Loilem, which gravely threatened the railway to Lashio, terminus of the Burma road, the British announced tonight.

Another version of the Salween front combat came from Chungking, where a Chinese communique acknowledged that Loilem, 120 miles southeast of Mandalay, fell Friday and said the Japanese had driven 75 miles to the east. Such a move apparently would be designed to encircle troops in southeastern Burma commanded by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell of the United States.

[The two accounts, however, could mean that the powerfully reënforced Japanese had thrust two columns from Loilem, one east and the other north. Either would gravely endanger the whole allied position in eastern Burma, the back door to China.]

Use Tanks and Planes.

The Chinese communique said the invader reached Loilem after a drive from Hopong and then brought up large tank and plane supported reenforcements which thrust out northward and toward the broad upper Salween valley.

One column, it asserted, pushed to Kunhing, 75 miles east of Loilem; another struck northeastward and reached a point south of Konghaping, and the third toward Mong Sung, on the north. Both sides were reported to have suffered heavy casualties.

[These towns do not appear on available maps but may be the Chinese spelling of Kunhing for Ken Hkam, which lies just west of the Salween and Mong Sung for Mong Kung, 45 miles north of Loilem. The map does not show a Burmese equivalent for Kong Haping.]

The Chinese credited the "Flying Tigers" of the American volunteer group with shooting down all five planes of an enemy formation near Loilem.

Text of Communique.

The British communique said:

"Reports from the Chinese expeditionary force indicate that the enemy thrust toward the northern Shan states has reached halfway up the road from Loilem to Hsipaw," 110 miles away. This would indicate a Japanese advance of 55 miles.

An earlier Chinese communique had given a somewhat more hopeful picture of the situation on the sector between the Sittang and Salween rivers, where the Japanese have advanced more than 100 miles in the last week.

It said the Chinese, finding a weak spot in the Japanese lines, drove forward to recapture Hopong, 10 miles east of Taunggyi, which Stilwell's men had seized earlier. It was possible that this column was attempting to shear off the advanced Japanese units, now 350 miles beyond their main base of Rangoon.

In the center, the British said "our forces are now occupying the general line Khaukpadaung-Meiktila." This position is some 35 miles to the northeast of the burned oil center of Yenangyaung and indicated another withdrawal in that sector. Meiktila is only 80 miles south of Mandalay.

The Chinese said that on the front directly south of Mandalay Chinese forces were putting up a strong delaying fight against Japanese spearheads thrust up the road from Pyinmana toward Meiktila and Thazi.

ALLIES SHOOT DOWN 7 OF 26 JAP PLANES RAIDING PORT DARWIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 28 [Tuesday] — (AP). — Three Japanese bombers and four fighters were destroyed yesterday out of a force of 17 bombers and 9 fighters which raided the north Australian port of Darwin yesterday morning, an allied headquarters communique said today. Allied losses were "light."

The communique reported the destruction of an enemy transport in an allied air force attack on shipping at Kavieng, New Ireland. New Ireland is in the Bismarck archipelago more than 700 miles off Cape York.

In another attack on the string of islands screening northeastern Australia, the communique said, the allies "successfully attacked enemy port installations" at Faisi, Solomon Islands.

Japs Claim West New Guinea.

TOKIO, April 28 [Tuesday]—[From Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Japanese naval forces have "completely occupied all strategic points" in the northern half of western New Guinea, imperial headquarters said today.

CORREGIDOR GUNS SMASH JAP GROUP AND FIRE TRUCKS

Forts Pounded by Manila Bay Batteries.

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Besieged Corregidor dealt the Japanese sharp new blows today, nearly three weeks after the fall of Bataan.

Maj. Gen. A. M. Patch Jr.

Replying to a four hour crossfire pounding by enemy siege guns, the artillery batteries of the Philippine island fortress broke up a hostile troop concentration in the nearby peninsula and set afire a group of parked motor trucks.

The war department reported developments in its first communique dealing with the Philippines since such announcements were channeled five days ago thru Australian headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the southwest Pacific commander in chief.

Since the start of the Philippine invasion, Corregidor has experienced 250 air raid alarms, and a still larger number of actual attacks, it was disclosed. The latest included an onslaught by dive bombers on both Corregidor, citadel of the beleaguered Manila bay defenses, and adjacent Fort Hughes on Caballo Island.

Harbor Boats Attacked.

Small harbor boats also were targets of the attack, the results of which were not reported.

The enemy shelling came from batteries on the peninsula and on the south shore of the bay in Cavite province, 10 miles distant, in continuation of the crossfire to which the harbor forts have been exposed since Bataan was lost.

The communique announced also that Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch Jr. is commander of the army force which has arrived on the "Free French" island of New Caledonia, strategically situated on the supply route from the United States to Australia.

Arrival of the force was announced Saturday. MacArthur's headquarters reported today that Japanese observation planes attempting to scout the island, which is some 800 miles east of Australia, had been forced to flee.

A World War Veteran.

Gen. Patch, 52, a regular army officer, was given command of the force dispatched to New Caledonia after having commanded the Camp Croft, South Carolina, infantry training center since last August.

A veteran of World War service in France, a distinguished graduate of the command and general staff school and of the army war college, he has served as an instructor of the Alabama National Guard and twice as professor of military science and tactics at Staunton Military academy, Virginia.

Jap Movement on Luzon.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, April 28 [Tuesday]—(AP)—A communique today said there was only slight air activity and intermittent shelling at Corregidor while on the island of Luzon there was enemy movement toward the southern end of the Cagayan valley.

[The Cagayan river lies in northeastern Luzon, flowing north and emptying into the Babuyan channel at Aparri. The only opposition in that region has been that of guerrillas.]

LAVAL PAYS CALL ON ADM. LEAHY AT U.S. EMBASSY

American Envoy Also Sees Petain.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, April 27.—Pierre Laval, new chief of the French government, accompanied by General Secretary of the Foreign Office Rocchat, paid a 35 minute call on Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy at the American embassy this afternoon.

No statement was made after the visit, which, it was explained, was a purely formal one. It is the custom for new foreign ministers to call on the heads of foreign embassies.

Ordered to Return.

Just after Laval's return to become head of the government under Chief of State Marshal Petain, the United States government ordered Adm. Leahy to return to Washington, D. C., for consultation.

Just before Laval's visit, Adm. Leahy had gone to the Hotel du Parc to pay a farewell visit to Marshal Petain. He was accompanied by S. Pinkney Tuck, counselor of the embassy, who will act as charge d'affaires during Leahy's absence.

Visit Is Personal.

Leahy's visit was a personal one, but it was stated in Hotel du Parc circles that the two men remained closeted together for 25 minutes. Laval's offices are in the Hotel du Parc.

Leahy will take leave tomorrow of Adm. Jean Darlan, commander of all French armed forces.

Leahy will leave Vichy Friday night with a special coach, accompanying the remains of his wife, who died a week ago. He expects to sail from Lisbon, Portugal, on the Swedish liner Drottingholm.

Deny Madagascar Rumors.

LONDON, April 27 (AP).—The Vichy radio broadcast an official statement today denying foreign reports "concerning the presence of Japanese elements in Madagascar" and declaring that complete calm prevailed on the French island east of Africa.

GANDHI SEES U. S. MILITARY AID AS THREAT TO INDIA

AHMEDABAD, India, April 27 (AP).—American military assistance to India "amounts in the end to American influence if not American rule, added to the British," Mohandas K. Gandhi wrote today in his newspaper Harijan.

"We have foreigners enough," the Indian leader declared. "Now we have the promise of a never ending stream of soldiers from America, and possibly from China. I must confess I do not look upon this event with equanimity.

"Cannot a limitless number of soldiers be trained out of India's millions? Would not they make as good fighting material as any in the world? Then why foreigners?"

FAILURE TO SEEK CURB ON BUREAUS STIRS CRITICISM

Waste Jeopardizes Victory, House Warned.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—President Roosevelt's omission from his message to congress today of any comment on demands for curbing government expenditures nonessential to the war drew criticism from both Republican and Democratic members of the house.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] and Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] also expressed disappointment in the senate that the President was silent on this subject. They said drastic reductions in the government spending outside the war program were just as essential as higher taxes and price ceilings to fight inflation.

Rep. Forest A. Harness [R., Ind.] took the floor to attack what he termed complacency and irresponsibility in the administration.

Calls for House Cleaning.

"I warn you," he told members, "that no matter how brilliant may be our military strategy, no matter how effective our direction of foreign policy, we face the grave risk of losing this war right here at home unless we wake up, clean house, and provide effective, economical administration, stripped of every nonessential and geared to fight this war to the quickest, safest, cheapest possible victory."

Harness labeled the current rivers and harbors bill, of which the St. Lawrence waterway project is the biggest single item, as "perhaps the worst piece of pork barrel legislation in our entire history."

He cited, as an example of wasteful spending in the war program itself the results of an investigation of the Louisiana ordnance plant project by the house military affairs committee.

Building Costs Cited.

He said temporary wooden frame buildings at the plant are costing nearly $1 a cubic foot, which compares with the cost of $1.10 a cubic foot of the marble structure which houses the United States Supreme court.

Members of the ways and means committee, which is drafting the new 9 billion dollar tax bill, said the President's new tax proposals would require considerable study Some were puzzled by the vagueness of Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion, which he said had been made to Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], that excessive corporation profits be eliminated by a special tax to cover all profits "which exceed the expressed definition of the legal profit figure."

Doughton said no specific figure had been set by the President in any conversation with him. Members said the President's remarks indicated he favored a 100 per cent confiscatory tax above a certain per cent. The treasury has proposed tax rates on excess profits ranging from 50 to 75 per cent. This, combined with the normal tax and surtax on corporation income, would in some instances produce an over-all rate as high as 87 per cent, and has formed the basis upon which the committee has been proceeding.

Salary Limit Requires Study.

Committee members said the proposal to limit all incomes to $25,000 yearly after reduction of taxes will require considerable study. Several said Mr. Roosevelt's injunction that a new tax bill should be passed "at the earliest moment possible" will not cause the committee to approve hastily drawn legislation.

The treasury estimated that approximately 15,000 persons would be affected by the limitation. Mr. Roosevelt, who has a substantial private income in addition to his salary of $75,000 a year, would be one of these. Congress has no authority to reduce the salary of the President, and he would have to take the cut voluntarily.

"I surely doubt that the ways and means committee will put a definite limit on what a man can keep for himself," said Rep. A. Willis Robertson [D., Va.]. "The only way I know of meeting the President's general recommendation on profits is to tax all of a corporation's earnings in excess of a certain return on invested capital. We have refused before to do this, and I doubt that we will do it now."

Pill Described as Bitter.

"I regret that the President said nothing about a reduction in government expenditures for activities not essential to the war effort," said Rep. John W. Boehne Jr. [D., Ind.]. "That would have provided a sugar coating which would have made the tax proposals less bitter to swallow. You will note that the President did not recommend the $25,000 limitation on incomes and the other tax proposals. He used the phrase 'I believe.' The committee will still write its own tax bill."

Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.] criticized the President's failure to be specific about the corporation tax proposals and his silence on reduction of nonessential government expenditures.

"The President has given us another dose of the same medicine proposed in the price control bill," declared Rep. Roy O. Woodruff [R., Mich.]. "After that bill was passed and signed by the President, Leon Henderson announced it would not stop inflation. Events have justified his prediction, and inflation has proceeded apace.

"Any one who knows anything about the question knows that the way to stop inflation is to put an equitable ceiling on everything—prices, wages, and farm products. Nothing less than that will do the job."

Here Is the Text of President Roosevelt's Message to Congress on Price Control

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to congress on the subject of price controls:

"In certain ways the present world encircling war presents problems which were unimaginable during the first World war.

"The theaters of combat today cover vastly greater areas. Many more millions of human beings are involved. The new factors of mechanical power, in the air and on the land and on the sea, have produced radical changes in basic strategy and tactics.

"In this new war the nations resisting the axis powers face an even greater challenge to their very existence. They fight more powerful, more sinister foes, but their understanding of the magnitude of the task and the very firmness of their determination make victory certain in the long days to come.

Other Circumstances Parallel.

"In some other ways, however, the circumstances of today parallel those of 1917-'18. Now, as in the last war, the common enemy has had all the advantage at the outset. Now, as then, bitter defeats and heavy losses must be endured by those who are defending civilization, before we will be able to establish the vital superiority in men and munitions which will turn the tide.

"The United States was far better prepared for actual war on Dec. 7, 1941, than it was on April 6, 1917. For over two years, by a succession of congressional acts, we had carried out or initiated safety measures for our own defense in growing volume and importance. There were the revisions of the neutrality laws, the adoption of selective service law and the lend-lease law, and the great increases of our army and navy and the instruments of war which they needed.

"After Pearl Harbor, the American people adopted a national program of war production which would have been called fantastic by most people two years before. It has required the shifting of the major part of American industry from the products of peace to the weapons of war.

NORMAL LIFE DISRUPTED
War Program Dislocates All Factors of Nation

"Inevitably—but with the full approval of the nation—this enormous program is dislocating industry, labor, agriculture, and finance. It is disrupting, and will continue to disrupt, the normal manner of life of every American and every American family. In this, we repeat the pattern of the first World war, altho on a vastly greater scale.

"During that earlier war there were certain economic factors which produced unnecessary hardships; and these hardships continued long after the signing of the armistice. I use the word 'unnecessary' because it is my belief that a very great deal of the suffering which was caused then can be avoided now.

"These economic factors relate primarily to an easily understood phrase which affects the lives of all of us—the cost of living. Because rises in the cost of living which came with the last war were not checked in the beginning, people in this country paid more than twice as much for the same things in 1920 as they did in 1914.

Seeks to Stop Rising Cost.

"The rise in the cost of living during this war has begun to parallel the last. The time has definitely come to stop the spiral. And we can face the fact that there must be a drastic reduction in our standard of living.

"While the cost of living, based on the average prices of necessaries, has gone up about 15 per cent so far since the autumn of 1939, we must now act to keep it from soaring another 80 per cent or 90 per cent during the next year or two—to hold it to somewhere near the present level.

"There are obvious reasons for taking every step necessary to prevent this rise. I emphasize the words 'every step' because no single step would be adequate by itself. Action in one direction alone would be offset by inaction in other directions. Only an all-embracing program will suffice.

"When the cost of living spirals upward week after week and month after month, people as a whole are bound to become poorer, because the pay envelope will then lag behind rising retail prices. The price paid for carrying on the war by the government and, therefore, by the people, will increase by many billions if prices go up.

Home Safeguards Demanded.

"Furthermore, there is an old and true saying that that which goes up must always come down—and you and I know the hardship and heartaches we all went thru in the bad years after the last war, when Americans were losing their homes and their farms and their savings and were looking in vain for jobs.

"We do not intend after this war to present the same disastrous situation to those brave men who today are fighting our battles in all parts of the world. Safeguarding our economy at home is the very least that our soldiers, sailors, and marines have a right to expect of us civilians in government, in industry, on the farm, and in all other walks of life.

SEVEN POINT PROGRAM
Policy to Keep Living Costs from Spiraling Upward.

"We must therefore adopt as one of our principal domestic objectives the stabilization of the cost of living, for this is essential to the fortification of our whole economic structure.

"Relying on past and present experience, and leaving out masses of details which relate more to questions of method than to the objective itself, I list for the congress the following points, which, taken together, may well be called our present national economic policy:

"1. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must tax heavily, and in that process keep personal and corporate profits at a reasonable rate, the word 'reasonable' being defined at a low level.

Rent Ceilings Asked.

"2. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must fix ceilings on the price which consumers, retailers, wholesalers, and manufacturers pay for the things they buy, and ceilings on rents for dwellings in all areas affected by war industries.

"3. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must stabilize the remuneration received by individuals for their work.

"4. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must stabilize the prices received by growers for the products of their lands.

"5. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must encourage all citizens to contribute to the cost of winning this war by purchasing war bonds with their earnings instead of using those earnings to buy articles which are not essential.

Broad Rationing Indicated.

"6. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must ration all essential commodities of which there is a scarcity, so that they may be distributed fairly among consumers and not merely in accordance with financial ability to pay high prices for them.

"7. To keep the cost of living from spiraling upward, we must discourage credit and instalment buying, and encourage the paying off of debts, mortgages, and other obligations; for this promotes savings, retards excessive buying, and adds to the amount available to the creditors for the purchase of war bonds.

"I know that you will appreciate that these seven principal points, each and every one of them, will contribute in substantial fashion to the great objective of keeping the cost of living down.

Legislative Plan Told.

"It is my best judgment that only two of these points require legislation at the present time, for the very good reason that the congress has already passed laws with respect to the others which seem adequate to meet the national policy enunciated.

"I assure the congress that if the required objectives are not attained, and if the cost of living should continue to rise substantially, I shall so advise the congress, and shall ask for any additional legislation which may be necessary.

"In the first item, legislation is necessary, and the subject is now under consideration in the house of representatives. Its purpose is to keep excess profits down and, at the same time, raise further large sums for the financing of the war.

"On this subject, I believe that the objective can be attained thru tax processes. We are now spending, solely for war purposes, the sum of about 100 million dollars every day of the week.

"But before this year is over that rate of expenditure will be doubled. This means that a sum equal to more than half of the entire national income will be spent in the war effort. Almost the whole of these billions is being and will be spent within the United States itself.

"Profits must be taxed to the utmost limit consistent with continued production. This means all business profits—not only in making munitions, but in making or selling anything else.

Profit Definition Asked.

"Under the proposed new tax law we seek to take by taxation all undue or excess profits. It is incumbent upon the congress to define undue or excess profits, and anything in excess of that specific figure should go to the government.

"One of our difficulties is to write a law in which some clever people will not find loopholes, or in which some businesses will not be equitably included.

"I have suggested to the chairman of the committee on ways and means in the house of representatives that some blanket clause could well cover, by a special tax, all profits of any kind of business which exceed the expressed definition of the legal profit figure.

"At the same time, while the number of individual Americans affected is small, discrepancies between low personal incomes and very high personal incomes should be lessened; and I therefore believe that in time of this grave national danger, when all excess income should go to win the war, no American citizen ought to have a net income, after he has paid his taxes, of more than $25,000 a year.

"It is indefensible that those who enjoy large incomes from state and local securities should be immune from taxation while we are at war. Interest on such securities should be subject at least to surtaxes.

CALLS FOR EARLY ACTION
Step Called Imperative to Keep Living Costs Down.

"I earnestly hope that the congress will pass a new tax bill at the earliest moment possible. Such action is imperative in the comprehensive all-out effort to keep the cost of living down—and time is of the essence.

"The second item, relating to price control is, with the exception of farm prices, adequately covered by existing law, and I have issued instructions to put this into effect immediately. It is our effort to be fair in all phases of price control; and if our future experience reveals inequality or unfairness, corrections will, of course, be made.

"In respect to the third item, seeking to stabilize remuneration for work, legislation is not required under present circumstances. I believe that stabilizing the cost of living will mean that wages in general can and should be kept at existing scales.

"Organized labor has voluntarily given up its right to strike during the war. Therefore all stabilization or adjustment of wages will be settled by the war labor board machinery which has been generally accepted by industry and labor for the settlement of all disputes.

Strikes at Minimum, He Says.

"All strikes are at a minimum. Existing contracts between employers and employés must, in all fairness, be carried out to the expiration date of those contracts. The existing machinery for labor disputes will, of course, continue to give due consideration to inequalities and the elimination of substandards of living. I repeat that all of these processes, now in existence, will work equitably for the overwhelming proportion of all our workers if we can keep the cost of living down and stabilize their remuneration.

"Most workers in munitions industries are working far more than 40 hours a week, and should continue to be paid at time and a half for overtime. Otherwise, their weekly pay envelopes would be reduced.

"All these policies will guide all government agencies.

Parity Goal Recalled.

"In regard to item four, prices of farm products: For nearly nine years it has been the policy of the government to seek an objective known as 'parity'—or, in other words, farm prices that give the farmer an assurance of equality in individual purchasing power with his fellow Americans who work in industry.

"Some of the products of the farms have not yet reached the stage of parity. Others have exceeded parity. Under existing legislation a ceiling cannot be placed on certain products until they reach a level somewhat above parity.

"This calls for the second legislative action which I have mentioned. Under a complicated formula in the existing law, prices for farm products—prices which housewives have to pay for many articles of food—may rise to 110 per cent of parity or even higher. It is the fault of the formula. In the case of many articles this can mean a dangerous increase in the cost of living for the average family over present prices.

"In fairness to the American people as a whole, and adhering to the purpose of keeping the cost of living from going up, I ask that this formula be corrected, and that the original and excellent objective of obtaining parity for the farmers of the United States be restored.

"It would be equally harmful to the process of keeping down the cost of living if any law were passed preventing the government from selling any of its own surplus farm commodities at the market price. As a national policy, the ceiling on farm products—in other words, the maximum prices to be received by the producers of these products—should be set at parity.

"With respect to item five—the purchase of war bonds—the American people know that if we would raise the billions which we now need to pay for the war and at the same time prevent a disastrous rise in the cost of living, we shall have to double and more than double the scale of our savings.

BOND PURCHASES URGED
Funds Must Come from Current Income, He Says.

"Every dime and dollar not vitally needed for absolute necessities should go into war bonds and stamps to add to the striking power of our armed forces. If these purchases are to have a material effect in restraining price increases, they must be made out of current income.

"In almost every individual case they should be big enough to mean rigid self-denial, a substantial reduction for most of us in the scale of expenditure that is comfortable and easy for us. We cannot fight this war, we cannot exert our maximum effort, on a spend-as-usual basis. We cannot have all we want, if our soldiers and sailors are to have all they need.

"I have been urged by many persons and groups to recommend the adoption of a compulsory plan of savings by deducting a certain percentage of every one's income. I prefer, however, to keep the voluntary plan in effect as long as possible, and I hope for a magnificent response.

Rationing Termed Fair.

"With respect to item six—rationing—it is obviously fair that where there is not enough of any essential commodity to meet all civilian demands, those who can afford to pay more for the commodity should not be privileged over others who cannot.

"I am confident that as to many basic necessities of life rationing will not be necessary, because we shall strive to the utmost to have an adequate supply. But where any important article becomes scarce, rationing is the democratic, equitable solution.

"Item seven—paying off debts and curtailing instalment buying—should be made effective as soon as possible now that money is becoming more plentiful. Those who comply with it will be grateful that they have done so, when this war is over. Elimination of private debts and an accumulation of savings will provide a form of insurance against postwar depression. The federal agency responsible for the control of credit for instalment buying is taking appropriate action.

"Indeed, as to all the items which do not require legislation, the executive departments and agencies whose functions and duties are involved, are at work as expeditiously as possible in carrying out this whole broad policy.

"The result will mean that each and every one of us will have to give up many things to which we are accustomed. We shall have to live our lives with less in the way of creature comforts than we have in time of peace. Our standard of living will have to come down.

"Some have called this an 'economy of sacrifice.' Some interpret it in terms that are more accurate—the 'equality of sacrifice.'

A People's War, Says F. D. R.

"I have never been able to bring myself, however, to full acceptance of the word 'sacrifice,' because free men and women, bred in the concepts of democracy and wedded to the principles of democracy, deem it a privilege rather than a sacrifice to work and to fight for the perpetuation of the democratic ideal. It is, therefore, more true to call this total effort of the American people an 'equality of privilege.'

"I firmly believe that Americans all will welcome this opportunity to share in the fight of civilized mankind to preserve decency and dignity in modern life. For this is fundamentally a people's war—and it must be followed by a people's peace.

"The achievement of victory in war and security in peace requires the participation of all the people in the common effort for our common cause."

MOVE TO SLASH FARM CEILINGS PRESAGES FIGHT

Bloc Expected to Demand Curbs on Wages.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27. — President Roosevelt's message asking congress to pass legislation to permit lower ceilings on farm prices, but failing to make definite commitments on wages and labor relations, produced wide resentment in congress today, particularly among senators and representatives from agricultural states.

The two proposals were bound inextricably together in the ensuing controversy, and congressional leaders expressed doubt either farm price or labor legislation can be passed.

It is conceded the powerful farm bloc, which has a working majority in each house, will not permit any statutory reduction of farm price ceilings unless measures for the effective control of wages and labor relations are proposed.

Stand on Labor Unchanged.

Proponents of labor legislation said they would not be deterred by the President's hands off attitude, but the prevailing opinion is that conservative Democrats from the cotton belt will be less enthusiastic about controling wages lest such a move result in action to curb farm prices.

A motion by Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] to take up his so-called anti-strike bill will come before the senate tomorrow as a special order of business. Whether Connally will press his motion to a vote or yield to the President's request will not be known until he returns tomorrow from a trip to New Orleans, La., where Saturday he married the widow of his late colleague, Sen. Morris Sheppard. Connally withheld action on his motion a week ago at the request of the President.

The Connally bill would authorize the government to seize and operate war plants and freeze existing labor relations to avert or terminate stoppages of production.

Measure Up Today.

Various other labor bills would be offered as amendments if the senate should vote to take up the Connally measure. One of these, introduced by Sen. Joseph H. Ball [R., Minn.], provides for the stabilization of wages and virtually prohibits strikes. The senate labor committee will consider this bill tomorrow.

Referring to the President's failure to propose legislation for the control of wages, Sen. Ball said: "You can't keep public confidence by going three-fourths of the way across the economy and leaving the rest uncontroled."

In the house, Rep. Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] submitted to the naval affairs committee, of which he is chairman, a new version of his labor-war profits bill and announced it will be reported on Wednesday.

Would Outlaw Closed Shop.

The Vinson bill would abolish the 40 hour basic work week and require overtime payments only for work performed in excess of 48 hours. It would outlaw new closed shop agreements during the period of war. Profits on war contracts would be limited under a complicated formula to 10 per cent a year of the first one million dollars of the capital investment and 6 per cent a year of the capital investment in excess of one million dollars.

Mr. Roosevelt asked congress to remove a limitation of the price control act which prohibits the fixing of maximum farm prices below 110 per cent of parity. He requested authority to fix farm price ceilings at parity, which is defined as a price that would give agricultural commodities a purchasing power in terms of nonagricultural commodities equivalent to the 1910-'14 base ratio.

Rep. Hampton C. Fulmer [D., S. C.], chairman of the house agriculture committee, announced that the President's message had not changed his plans for hearing on legislation which would raise, instead of lower, the 110 per cent of parity limitation on farm price ceilings.

"Still in Dog House": Knutson.

"It's apparent," said Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], "that the farmer is still in the President's dog house."

"The most notable thing about the message," said Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.], "is that no effective or practical plan is proposed to control wages, while every other group, farmer, business man, and those on fixed salaries are called on for every sacrifice."

Sen. John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], one of the leaders of the senate's farm bloc, read a statement on the senate floor insisting that if cotton, wheat corn, and other grain producers are to be given a chance to get "parity prices and parity income, there must be reasonable flexibility in price ranges above parity prices as well as below those price levels."

Even Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], who managed the administration's price control bill in the senate, said he still hoped "that we can get along with the 110 per cent provision relative to farm prices."

ARMY DIM-OUT HITS GAY LIGHTS OF EAST COAST

Blackout to Follow if Hitch Arises.

New York, April 27 [Special]. — A dim-out now and a blackout later if there is any hitch in civilian compliance with present orders was the program announced for New York City and the rest of the coastline in the army's 2d corps area by Maj. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson today.

The dim-out, however, calls for complete darkening of all lights above the 15th floor in Manhattan's famous skyline, and for an end to all exterior illumination along boardwalks and places of amusement along the shoreline. This order, it was agreed, means an end to the gay lights of Coney Island, Atlantic City, and other seaboard playgrounds.

Maine to Florida Order Seen.

Altho Gen. Phillipson's orders dealt only with the 2d corps area, similar regulations are being placed in effect from Maine to Florida, it was said.

The 2d corps area regulations will be effective in a zone extending 15 miles in from the seaboard from the New York-Connecticut boundary to the tip of New Jersey, plus the Delaware coastal counties of Kent and Sussex, it was said.

Stating that "voluntary" coöperation has not been completely effective, Gen. Phillipson said it has become necessary for the army to enforce its own regulations. If this fails, complete blackouts will be enforced in non-coöperating communities, and if this step is ineffective it then will become necessary to "enforce a complete blackout along the entire coast," he said.

Gives Ships Away.

The general asserted that nightly inspections will be made from the sea to determine the effectiveness of the dim-out. He said the light-dimming is designed to curb both the direct rays of shore lights and shore glow that throws ships at sea into silhouette and makes them "easy targets" for enemy submarines.

"Where lights are visible from seaward," he explained, "a passing vessel obscures these, one after another, in such a manner as to indicate the position and direction of movement of the vessel."

Drawn shades or blinds will be acceptable guards in lighted skyscraper rooms, it was said, and regular blackout curtains will not be insisted on at this time. The dim-out also applies to street and highway lights, some outdoor advertising signs, and automobiles moving near the water.

RUSSIANS SMASH AT FINNS' LINES ON ARCTIC FRONT

Claim 2,000 of Foe Killed in Week's Fighting.

LONDON, April 27 (AP).—Russia's immediate hope of knocking Finland out of the war, thus uncovering the northern flank of the main German armies, rested tonight on a developing counteroffensive on the still frozen terrain of Lapland and Karelia in the eerie light of an almost continuous arctic day.

About 2,000 Finnish soldiers were reported to have fallen in the last week.

On this front, the lines of battle were reported to be drawn well inside the 1939 Finnish frontier, on territory gained by the Russians in their winter war with the Finns.

In Lapland, the Russians were reported to have launched an offensive as powerful as that which forced the Finnish surrender two years ago.

Seize Town Near Novgorod.

The Lapland drive would serve particularly to ease the threat to Russia's arctic ports of Murmansk and Archangel, gateways for help from the United States and Britain.

Stockholm reports said the Russians had captured Borok, 20 miles southwest of the German stronghold of Novgorod on the Leningrad-Kalinin sector of the front. The Russians were said to have cut the railway link between Novgorod and the remnants of the trapped 16th German army at Staraya Russa.

More than 200 Germans were killed and 15 blockhouses captured in an engagement on the southwestern front, presumably in the Orel-Kursk region, a Moscow radio announcement said.

Strike Down Germans.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, April 27 (AP).—Front line dispatches said tonight that Soviet guerrillas were striking down Germans in huge numbers in and around Ordzhonikidzegrad, important industrial town on the Desna river 10 miles northeast of Bryansk.

Claim 800 Reds Killed.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 27 (AP).—The Finnish high command reported today that Russian forces were attacking on the Karelian isthmus and in the vicinity of the Stalin canal north of Lake Onega, but said the assaults had been repulsed.

Air Battles at Murmansk.

BERLIN, April 27 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command said today that "in the area of Murmansk German fighters destroyed nine enemy fighters in air battles without loss to themselves."

'FREE FRENCH' AIR SQUADRON RAIDS ITALIAN COLUMN

LONDON, April 27 (AP). — The "Free French" said today that planes of the Bretagne squadron, a De Gaullist unit operating from the Chad, had "successfully attacked" an Italian desert column in southern Libya. It said the column, supported by motorized equipment, apparently was intended as replacement for garrisons captured in recent "Free French" raids in that area.

Raid Libyan Objectives.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 27 (AP).—RAF bombers raided objectives in Libya overnight, tho daylight operations were hampered by bad weather. Three German planes were shot down in attacks on Malta on Saturday. British losses were three planes in all operations.

Bomb Catania in Sicily.

ROME, April 27 [from Italian broadcasts] (AP). — British planes again raided the Sicilian town of Catania last night while axis bombers continued their round the clock attacks on Malta, the Italian high command announced today. Two planes participated in the raid on Catania and one of these was shot down. During the attacks on Malta four British planes were shot down. Eight "American type" planes also were reported shot down by German aircraft in attacks on British airdromes in Egypt.

18 Swiss Missionaries Die When Japs Bomb Transport

BERNE, Switzerland, April 27.—Word has been received here that 18 missionaries, sent to the East Indies by the Maria mission house of Rheineck, Canton St. Gall, Switzerland, perished when the transport on which they had been given passage was bombed by Japanese aircraft.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

Have you ever had an experience to prove the truth of the bromide, "It's a small world after all"?

WHERE ASKED.

The McCormick building, 332 South Michigan avenue.

THE ANSWERS.

Tony Montalbano, clerk, 3618 Polk street—Of all the little lakes in Minnesota, I was fishing where I wasn't supposed to. I saw a game warden coming my way and waited for the worst. About the time he should've been writing out an arrest "ticket" we were shaking hands like lost brothers. He taught me to fish years before.

Robert Irving, store manager, 3130 South Parnell avenue—My fiancée and I traveled many miles to be secretly married in a small town. As we left the parsonage the first person we met was her brother. I don't think any of us had ever been there before, nor have we been since.

Henry Krueger, loan company official, 6029 South Campbell avenue—On a crowded beach in front of a hotel in Florida I met an old fraternity brother of mine whom I hadn't seen in years. If we made an appointment to meet there we would probably have missed each other.

Frank Prosek, shipping clerk, 2121 Euclid avenue, Berwyn—I took a long trip alone to the Kentucky Derby and sat down in one of the last vacant 50 cent seats. Right beside me were four members of our neighborhood ball team. The trip home was more fun.

Grace Gottwald, general office worker, 3052 George street—A friend called to say he wouldn't be over that night, so I said I was retiring early. We evidently changed our minds for we both decided to go to the same dance and walked in about the same time. We rarely danced otherwise.

Lorraine Motika, biller, 2986 Elston avenue—My fiancé and I wanted our families to spend our vacations together. We both had the same time off. Neither of us mentioned where we were going when it was decided that we couldn't make it. We drove over 300 miles to our destination and there in the same resort was his family in the midst of their reunion.

CZECH CATHOLICS SEIZED IN NEW GESTAPO DRIVE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

JERUSALEM, April 27.—An official Czech source here discloses that as a result of the new drive for maximum efficiency in munitions and machinery output in Bohemia-Moravia, the special anti-Catholic department of the gestapo in Prague has been enlarged. Many Roman Catholics have been arrested, including priests.

Nazi agents are now to be found in all churches taking notes on sermons.

Fourteen Czech patriots were recently publicly shot, including a woman, Marie Prokesova, for having fired three supply stores.

Many thousands of copies of a pamphlet issued by a Roman Catholic Youth organization urging resistance to the Nazis have been circulated. The special Czech and German broadcast on the occasion of Hitler's birthday is stated to have been boycotted completely.

Death Penalty for Farmers.

BERNE, Switzerland, April 27.—It is reported from Prague that the death penalty has been decreed in Bohemia-Moravia for farmers who fail to report their entire crop or to offer them for sale. Confiscation of property will be the penalty for minor offenses.

TIDES OF WAR BRING A SAILOR BACK; PILOT LOST

A sailor rescued from a torpedoed coast guard craft returned to Chicago yesterday to bring joy to a Chicago home at about the same time a navy department official message cast grief over a suburban family.

The official message notified Mrs. Loraine Russell Randall, 589 Drexel avenue, Glencoe, that her husband, Lieut. Gardner D. Randall, a naval flyer, had been lost in action in the Pacific. Mrs. Randall last saw her husband on March 27.

Lieut. Randall, a Brown university graduate 26 years old, joined the naval aviation cadet corps six years ago. Two years later, after he had been commissioned, he married Loraine Russell, daughter of James A. Russell, vice president and controler of the Northern Trust company.

Leaves Baby Son.

The Randalls made their home in Norfolk, where their son, Gardner H., now 2, was born. After Lieut. Randall left for duty with the fleet Mrs. Randall returned to Glencoe to live with her father.

The rescued sailor who stepped off a train into the arms of his joyful mother is Coxswain Alfred Lansing, 20 years old, son of Mrs. Ruth Lansing, 1262 Norwood street. The vessel which he was aboard was torpedoed off Iceland early in the year and injuries he received in the explosion made it necessary for him to pass three months in hospital beds before he was able to return home.

"I'm just as good as new," the 6 foot 2 inch red head said when he clasped his mother in his arms. "What I need is rest and plenty of home-cooked food and then I'll be ready for action again."

Mrs. Lansing cast a critical, motherly eye over her tall son and opined that he had lost a little weight and looked a trifle pale as a result of his stay in hospitals.

Five Escape Death.

The torpedo blast which sent his ship to the bottom, Lansing said, caught a number of men below decks. Only five escaped. They got to the deck, despite burns and other injuries, and were placed in lifeboats by their shipmates who had escaped the force of the blast and the searing steam. The boats then were launched and a fishing trawler towed them to Reykjavik, Iceland.

Lansing, who has been a member of the coast guard for 20 months, attended Senn high school and North Park college.

Vice Versa Ruling

[Tribune Photos.]

Mrs. Lytky testifying yesterday.

A couple of weeks ago Judge Rudolph Desort made a ruling in the divorce case of Steve Lykty against Mrs. May Lykty, who occupy separate quarters at 2533 Thomas street.

Judge Desort said in effect that a married man's pockets are community property and that a wife can search them for money. He added that a husband can also go through the little woman's pocketbook—but that he'd better not get caught at it.

Yesterday Lykty came in with his attorney, Victor Frohlich, wanting to amend his bill, adding an additional cruelty count. His face was clawed from scalp to chin.

"Remember that ruling of yours, your honor?" asked Frohlich. "Well, Lykty got caught."

WOMAN IS HELD FOR QUESTIONING ON BOOKKEEPING

Miss Lillian Taylor, 34 years old, 216 pound brunette who said she has an A. B. degree from the University of Illinois, where she majored in mathematics, was held at the detective bureau last night on orders of Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin.

Sherwin said he wants to question Miss Taylor, who lives at 837 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, concerning some financial matters in the office of the Henry D. Maggio Nash company, Inc., where she has been employed as cashier and bookkeeper. He said an auditor had found discrepancies in the concern's books and he wanted to ask her about them.

BRITISH EXPECT PRICE CEILING ON MEALS IN HOTELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—Food Minister Lord Woolton is expected to announce maximum restaurant prices for first class hotels this week. Most of these hotels charge as much as 15 shillings 6 pence [about $3.12] for table d'hôte dinners, but it is understood that Prime Minister Churchill himself has suggested 5 shillings [about $1] as a basis to work on.

Several alternatives are open to restaurant owners. One is that diners pay an admission fee where dance bands are employed. Or cover charges, which all charge now for à la carte dinners, might be boosted.

11 Neighbors Plow Under Sick Man's Farm Worries

When Frank Patterson, a Wheatland township farmer in Will county, became ill last Thursday and was taken to the hospital, he worried about his spring plowing. That worry is over now. On Friday 11 of his neighbors showed up at his farm with 11 plows. Three hours later 45 acres of grain land had been turned under. The neighbors apologized for not showing more speed. Heavy traffic forced them to slow down on the turns, they reported.

SERBS GIVE ITALY WAR PRISONERS FOR GAS SUPPLY

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

JERUSALEM, April 27.—What is the Italian army worth?

According to the Jugo-Slav official spokesman here, the Serb patriot Gen. Draja Mihailovitch offered to return Italian war prisoners—all of the crack Alpini division under Gen. Esposito captured in the battle of Vishigrad during Easter week on the following terms:

One Italian soldier or a noncommissioned officer for one can of gasoline; one Italian officer up to the rank of colonel for four cans; or, one colonel for 50 cans.

The Italian command took some time to consider the terms, thought them unreasonable, but finally agreed. As a result Gen. Mihailovitch's limited transport can operate for some time to come without fear of running short of fuel.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

THE MESSAGE.

The President has outlined his views on economic policy in a message to congress and, as has been his custom of late, he will discuss the same subject in a radio address.

The message to congress listed seven objectives, most of which, the President said, had already been accepted by congress and were embodied in law. He saw the need for only two additional pieces of legislation, one of them a prompt enactment of a new tax law and the other a measure which would permit him to regard parity as the goal of farm prices instead of 110 per cent of parity as the law now provides.

The President favors very high taxation of the profits of corporations of all sorts, those engaged in ordinary civilian pursuits as well as those working on war contracts. Politically such a proposal is not likely to encounter any very large popular opposition, but it remains to be seen whether such a provision, if enacted into law, will produce results as beneficent as the President seems to expect. Profits are not the only stimulus to economic activity, but for many generations they have been the principal one. If a business organization cannot make any more money by hard work than by loafing the greatest effort may not be forthcoming. In some future time a more serviceable incentive than profits may be found, but it hasn't been found yet. The President does not say what substitute he has in mind, if any.

There is not likely to be any great popular clamor against the President's proposal to forbid any one to have an income, after taxes, of more than $25,000. Under the recent treasury proposals, a man must have an income of about $65,000 a year to have $25,000 left. There are fewer than 10,000 people in the United States to be affected by the proposal if it is adopted, and their total incomes amount to something like a billion dollars. As matters stand, they pay about $400,000,000 in taxes already, and they would be allowed, under the $25,000 rule, to retain something like $200,000,000 or $250,000,000. So far as the treasury is concerned, the President's proposal could add no more than $400,000,000 to the revenues, and that would run the war for just two days, according to the President's estimates of the rate of spending at the year's end.

Such a measure can have no great importance in financing the war and even less in preventing inflation, because the savings of the rich are now being invested largely in government bonds or in other securities rather than in bread, shoes, pork chops, and other items which enter into the cost of living.

The only one of the fiscal proposals which is likely to encounter organized opposition is the suggestion for the taxation of state securities. The governors and finance officers of the states and municipalities have long resisted the plan and no doubt will continue to do so. There is no need to rehearse the arguments here, but it may be pointed out that the fiscal difficulties of the states are increasing as the yield of gasoline and sales taxes declines.

The President's proposal with regard to farm parity is familiar. He took the same view when the 110 per cent law was pending in congress. His present position that there is no need for a so-called ceiling on wages will give the opposition within his own party a talking point. Why, the cotton congressmen may ask, should farm prices be anchored if wages are not? Both enter largely into the cost of living. If the formula for farm prices is to be written into law, why not the formula for wages?

War is bound to disturb the economic life of the country and to impose stupendous fiscal problems upon the government. The people know that and are prepared for it. They will deprive themselves of much to win the war and prevent inflation, but they will hope that any decisions taken will be inspired by a genuine desire to minimize the damage rather than by political considerations or the desire to reform our society.

UNION TOLL GATES.

War plants holding closed shop contracts with three locals of the International Association of Machinists complain that they are having trouble hiring skilled help. The barrier is a $100 initiation fee demanded of a nonunion machinist before he can go to work in a closed shop.

The situation has brought complaints from army and navy officials, who charge it is hampering production. It has brought reprimands from international officials of the union; the international president, Harvey Brown, has urged that initiation fees be kept at $10 or below. This is sound tactics, since the CIO has signed up some 30,000 machinists in Chicago at an initiation fee of $3.

The business agents of the three locals say that they would like to help but can't. One of them explains that when proposals have been brought forward to cut the high initiation fee "the old members object to the cut; so do the new ones who have paid their $100."

The machinists' union has been competently and honestly run. The explanations offered both by the international officials and the local business agents can probably be taken at their face value. The high initiation fee is maintained because the present members of the union want it. Their attitude may be contrary to the trade union philosophy of organizing every worker, but it is in accord with trade union practice for a good many generations. It goes back to the medieval guilds whose members organized to maintain a monopoly in a particular skill.

This natural tendency of persons and groups to look out for themselves alone has been common in the American trade union movement, and in particular in the craft unions of the AFL, of which the machinists have one of the more progressive organizations. Those unions have been most insistent in claiming rights for labor, but they have been equally vigilant in saying who can claim to be a member of labor and receive the benefits demanded.

What the members of the three local machinists' unions overlook is the fact that the status of the unions has changed radically in the last nine years. When labor relations were purely a matter of negotiation between unions and employers the unions' establishment of high initiation fees and limited membership as a means of holding a monopoly of skill for a restricted group might have been defended as their own business, even tho it was shortsighted business. But now that government is, in effect, forcing men to join unions if they want to work, the matter enters the field of public policy.

In such circumstances, public opinion will not long tolerate the establishment of toll gates at factory entrances at which workers have to pay extortionate fees. If it is a matter of public policy that workers unionize, it is equally a matter of public policy that the unions accept them on reasonable terms and that the old idea of the union as a means of maintaining a monopoly of a skill be abandoned. The trouble with the machinists is that they want to eat their cake and have it, too.

HITLER TO THE GERMANS.

Herr Hitler has puzzled the world with another incoherent speech which seemed to reveal a consciousness of Nazi weakness. It may have been intended to deceive his enemies into thinking that the German army was war weary and the people demoralized in order that the countries in arms against him should be lulled into some false ideas of his early collapse and their impending success.

He told the German people nothing they didn't know. They have felt the effects of the Russian campaign, which he says came near to catastrophe. Only the mettle of the German soldier, he said, prevented a disaster when the German war gear succumbed to the unexpected trial by ice and snow.

Experts in other countries attributed the German military dilemma in Russia to the freezing of equipment and transport which was not constructed for operation in such temperatures. It must be remembered that the propaganda theories of both Hitler and Goebbels are based upon deception which precedes a surprise attack. Some of the commentators on Hitler's speech to the reichstag, with more jubilance than wisdom, have found startling evidences of weakness. We may hope that our own military intelligence takes a different view, and that it does not believe that Hitler has shot his bolt but is apprehensive that the whole masquerade may conceal a movement for which the opposing leadership will be unprepared.

That may well be, and it is the only sensible view to take of the exhibition. If the contrary is true, if the fatal weaknesses of the Nazi government are revealing themselves, that fact will be disclosed in time. No high command can safely trust the utterances of Hitler or interpret them favorably to the anti-Nazi cause.

It is true that Hitler is a psychopathic character. He works himself into a trancelike fury as he talks, gathering his ideas and expressions as he steams up. Men who have known him intimately say that he seems to hypnotize himself, and frequently his audience, and it has been assumed that a great deal of his subconscious emotion and feeling comes to the surface unrestrained as he barks out his sentences. Upon the assumption that this is true there has been built an interpretation of his remarks as revealing his true dejection and his realization of failure. This is supported by the fact that his young manhood was one of frustration and that his later brutalities and ruthlessness grew out of such experiences.

One oddity in the speech was the request for a specific delegation to him by his puppet reichstag of supreme power over the German people. It was almost as if he were asking for a vote of confidence from a phony legislative body which couldn't deny him anything he asked. The whole theory of the Nazi régime as expounded by its doctors of law is that the law of the land is the emanation of the fuehrer's will. He has had the power of life and death over all of his subjects and courts of law have operated within restricted fields by tolerance, always subject to his dictate and to the operations of the secret police. No man has had the protection of law and no writs could save him. Hitler's law is the law of the blood purge of '34 when he, after the slaughter, announced that he was the judge.

No sound military judgment would err on the side of accepting Hitler's tone of dejection as indicative of what is to be expected in the next few weeks or months. If it should be true, a grand deliverance may be nearer than we think. It is true that Goebbels has been permitting some strange stories of German melancholy and German hardships to appear in Nazi publications. He has scolded the civilians for receiving returning soldiers with sad faces and without smiles. He has adopted a motto which seems to read, "Smile on to Victory!" Possibly the German people do need a few pep talks, but for Hitler's enemies there is only one slogan, "On Guard Against Hitler!" His end will come, but it will not be hastened by assumptions which may deceive the unwary.

WHY THE COLOR MAPS ARE GOOD.

Color maps, offered to its readers as a regular feature by THE TRIBUNE, have recently won the praise of government departments and editors in London. The air ministry, which has used one of them in a confidential manual for flyers, has extended congratulations, and the maps are in regular use in the ministry of information and the newsrooms of London newspapers. The maps have for some time been used for instruction purposes by a number of units in the armed forces of the United States.

This official use of their work is a well merited tribute to the numerous members of the Tribune organization, who have spared themselves no effort to maintain a high standard of excellence. Rarely has it been possible to use commercial copies unchanged. The majority of the maps have been drawn by Tribune artists and represent painstaking research and the combining of information from many different sources.

THE TRIBUNE started the development of run-of-paper color printing, which makes reproduction of the maps possible, at the depth of the depression. This newspaper had no need to call for specialists outside its organization when it entered this previously untried field. The adaptation of color printing technics to newspaper use was accomplished by craftsmen already employed in the various departments. The necessary machinery was designed to specifications of this newspaper's production department. It is to the perseverance of all these men, their unwillingness to admit defeat when confronted with a multitude of problems, that THE TRIBUNE owes its present leadership in newspaper color printing.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE OLD GUARD'S ENCORE.

The class of 45 to 64-year-olds marched to the registration centers yesterday as veterans. It was no novelty to them; merely a repeat performance, "by command."

* * *

It is likely, however, that hardly one in a thousand of them could produce, upon demand, his registration card of the Great War. Such small items of printing have a habit of getting lost in the shuffle of life. The snows of nearly 25 years have melted away since the Great War, and so have most of its registration cards.

* * *

We found ours, however, in 30 seconds, and scanned its text with interest. It was decorated with the familiar spread eagle emblem but otherwise singularly lacking in historical gestures. It reads as follows:

"P. M. G. O. Form No. 68. Registration Certificate. To all whom it may concern, greetings: These presents attest that in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, and in compliance with law, [name and address] has submitted himself to registration and has by me been duly registered this 12th day of September, 1918, under the supervision of the Local Board designated on the back hereof. [Signed] R. E. Baker, Registrar."

* * *

That was the so-called second draft of the Great War. Its registrants had hardly completed the filing of their questionnaires for classification before the Austro-Hungarian empire collapsed and the Hohenzollern dynasty began to totter. After the armistice, two months later, the Local Board never bothered about saying good-by to us.

APRIL'S ENVIOUS MAN.

The famous hounds of spring again
Are hard on winter's heels,
How welcome now the gentle rain
Its well-bred anthem peals.
I gaze incredulously at the guy
Whose furnace was so rare
It didn't run his coal bin dry,
He fired it with such care.
I look with awe upon the man
Who shows with vain display
The wood he says he bought in Jan.,
Sufficient unto May!
Achievements such as these instill
In me the urge to duel,
The while I read another bill
And pay for April fuel!

The Duke Takes Up Agriculture.

I like Sunday breakfast providing theres syrup between tha pancakes instead of arguments. I wasn't feeling any too good last Sunday so I went a little light on tha pork sausage patties—yeah, I passed up tha 3rd helping. The debate was as to when was I gonna fix up tha yard and lawn for tha coming of spring so I says I will call up my friend Ignatz at tha nursery and get set.

Little Mary starts snickering an wants to know if we're gonna have a new baby, so tha mama has to explain it aint that kind of a nursery. I'm suggesting we spend an extra six bits this year on tha grass seed and try tha kentucky blue grass kind, and Joanie starts laffin so hard she knocked her glass of milk all over tha table-cloth. When she ketches her breath plus hell from tha mama she says "Aint people gonna laff at us if our grass is blue an theirs is green?"

I suggests we buy a can of bug juice to spray on tha trees and you shood of seen the dirty look I get from our airedale. About this time Ignatz blows in an when he gets tha figures all on paper its $7.85 an she says if he wants tha order at five bucks its okay to go ahead and Iggie says "Its suicide, but I'll take it."

He tries to sell me a few garden tools but that aint necessary cause our neighbors has got most anything I need, and then he beats it. A little later a wagon comes around an we buy bulbs and flower seeds an some young plants which sets me back another 3 bucks.

In tha evening our next door neighbor pops in and tha mama starts bragging to her about what a swell garden we're gonna have and she asks us if we aint gonna be patriotic cause she says everybody in tha block is planting vegetables and are gonna have a war garden, so Iggie has just gotta give me back my dough or I will report him to the F. B. I. fer not being a patriot, and I wood like to trade tha bulbs an plants for a inner tube or a size 42 girdle.

LAURELS FOR THE LIVING.

Odes to the dead fill many heavy tomes;
To soldiers, heroes from the people sprung,
And rulers, sleeping under marble domes,
To other poets, even, have the poets sung.
But who will sing unto the living brave,
Whose deeds are done before our very eyes;
Those who are struggling now this land to save:
Will none of them be great until he dies?
May not a Grant be living now, today?
Perhaps another Lincoln walks the earth;
Is Whitman not among us? Who can say?
We see, we hear, but fail to mark their worth.
To our eternal shame it must be said:
We know not men are great till they are dead.

The History of Egandale.

The Mr. Egan of Egandale mentioned [April 22] in connection with the origin of Drexel boulevard was Dr. William Bradshaw Egan, and my grandfather.

Dr. Egan was born in Killarney, Ireland, in 1808, and was graduated from Dublin university. He came to this country in 1826 and to Chicago in 1833. He died here in 1860.

With his old world background, it was natural that he should want a country estate, and so in the 1850s he bought about 640 acres south of the city limits. Washington and Jackson parks lie mostly within the limits of this old estate, which was called Egandale.

The tract was improved with tree planting and landscaping, but no building was erected except the "lodge."

PERSONAL JITTERS LESSEN IN WARTIME.

THE OLD adage "What can't be cured must be endured," is a homely truth. Apparently people have made up their minds that there is no use fussing about spilt milk.

Before the outbreak of World War II., there was a goodly amount of prophecy that a large percentage of the population of the warring nations would "crack" under the strain. Many of us can recall the lurid pictures of the horrors of 1914-'18. But the worst of that conflict has been multiplied a hundredfold. Fortified and forearmed against bombings, British citizens have been obliged to endure calamities beyond the scope of the imagination. Thus far an inherent fortitude has brought them thru. What is even more astonishing is the fact that admissions to hospitals for the mentally ill have actually decreased.

Cases of temporary emotional upsets, however, are numerous. But illnesses of this character are so brief that many are not reported. As one observer put it, more anxiety was brought on by waiting for the bombs than was experienced after they arrived.

An ambulance driver who was blown from his vehicle, altho sustaining various cuts and bruises, returned to his job immediately. An hour later he was again attacked and his conveyance rendered useless. On this occasion he was taken to a first aid station where he exhibited considerable bewilderment. His face was pale and he was perspiring profusely. A cup of hot tea and a cigaret were prescribed and within an hour he was quite himself.

Apparently the explanation lies in the fact that those who are on the "ragged edge" have far less time to fuss about themselves and their petty problems. Thoughts are directed wholly to the necessity of doing something for national defense—for victory. In consequence, subjective complaints vanish. It is admitted, however, that after the evacuation of Dunkirk fear reactions were frequent. All such episodes passed away within a few days other than with confirmed neurotics.

The long expressed anxiety concerning the effect of war upon children has not been borne out by a study of carefully compiled reports. Even when severely injured no signs of mental disturbance remained after recovery. The case is related of a lad of 8 who was dug out of the débris of a house, grimed with plaster from head to toe. His chief complaint was that he had just had his bath and here he was all dirty again.

An increase in juvenille delinquency is acknowledged. In fact, this is ascribed to the breaking up of families, less parental supervision, and the necessity for blackouts. The excessively high wages paid to young men and women in defense work has encouraged the patronage of night clubs, gambling houses, and vice generally. There is more self-indulgence and less obedience to law and order. In this respect British authorities realize that they are sowing the wind and some day will be obliged to reap the whirlwind.

Perhaps a remedy can be found before we, too, are confronted with similar problems. We will forestall many disasters if we will make certain that no psychopathic personality shall be subjected to the rigors of combat. He will prove but a weak link in time of need.

PACIFIER.

Mrs. B. W. writes: My 1½ year old always needs a pacifier to go to sleep. Is this harmful?

REPLY.

Rarely, if it is clean. This question has been argued pro and con for centuries. The consensus seems to be that no jaw deformity ensues.

LEECHCRAFT.

W. O. N. writes: I have been told that placing a leech on a varicose vein will give temporary relief. Is this advised?

REPLY.

Rarely. An elastic stocking is far more comfortable to contemplate.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

THE CASE AGAINST LAVAL.

Bloomington, Ind., April 23. — Mlle. Jeanne Mercier must be aware of the tremendous effort we are making to preserve our liberties and the liberties of other nations, France included. Many American lives have been lost, many more will be lost in that gigantic struggle. This being the case, any one helping our enemies is our enemy. If Laval becomes our enemy, how can a severance of diplomatic relations between his government and ours be avoided? It does not follow, of course, that we should be breaking with the French people.

The Laval government has not been and could not be sanctioned by the citizens of France. In consequence, that government is not more legitimate than the Free French, still faithful to France's old tradition of honor and courage.

And why should the "starved" Frenchmen—starved by German greed, and shot by the hundreds to boot—and the "million and more French prisoners in Germany" — slaving in Germany — oppose our recognition of the Free French?

As to our remaining "the tolerant, kind adviser" that we should be, according to Mlle. Mercier, it seems to me that Pierre Laval, up to the present, goes to Berlin rather than to Washington for his advice.

ELISABETH LEVEQUE.

ALABASTER CITIES.

Richmond, Ind., April 22.—A great paper should be above partisanship and stand nobly for the ample and comprehensive interests of the country.

It seems that still—in its editorials and in its policies—THE TRIBUNE is provincial in its isolationism.

May we press forward, saying in Wordsworth's words, we "Have great allies:

[Our] friends are exultations, agonies,
And love, and man's unconquerable mind."

Thus we shall find victory, and destroy utterly the foulest tyranny of man's inhumanity to man that time has known; and build, instead, the alabaster cities of man's dream.

MISDIRECTION IN THE CCC.

Camp Tyson, Tennessee, April 22.—Your editorial, "Mr. Phillips and the CCC," is one of many I have read citing certain gas bag governors and pension grabbing senators. I agree that the CCC should be discontinued—until good leadership is obtained.

What's wrong with the CCC? What went wrong with the Normandie? The trouble is the same. They don't know how to place the CCC boys, and they didn't know what to do with the Normandie.

MAKE IT EASIER FOR THE MINUTE MAN.

TURTLE DOVES IN TOWN.

Chicago, April 24.—Last evening, while walking thru Lincoln park, I was amazed to see perched in a nearby tree a pair of mourning doves, commonly know in the middle west as turtle doves. Students of ornithology will agree that this is indeed a rarity, inasmuch as this variety of game bird is seldom found within 20 miles of Chicago, preferring to habitate woodlands where there are fields of wheat and other varieties of grain.

CANNING ALLOWANCE MAY BE BOOSTED.

Kempton, Ill., April 23.—My trees are full of fruit blossoms—peaches, pears, plums, apples, gooseberries, currants, grapes, and strawberries. How can I make preserves and can the fruit with only five pounds of sugar? I use over 100 pounds of sugar every season for canning. I do not want to see my fruit waste.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

Chicago, April 20.—In recent months the working man, his right to strike, his 40 hour week, his right for a decent wage, and his right for decent living conditions has been subject to vicious attacks by certain parties, who claim to have the welfare of their nation at heart.

The working man is, however, at the soldier's back, fighting for him at all times. Besides keeping the supply lines open, he is protecting the rights of the soldier, as a working man, once he has returned from war.

In the last century the worker spent long hours, working without much pay, without decent living conditions, and without many other much needed benefits. He succeeded in destroying all this; but now while his nation fights a war to defend these things, that same nation wants to take them away. When war ends, the soldier and working man do not want to be forced to rebuild those institutions which make a democracy.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Forest Park, Ill., April 22.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. What is the citizenship status of children born in a foreign country after the naturalization of their father in 1899, the children having come to live in the United States with their mother in 1914 and the father never having been out of the United States for more than two years at a time after his naturalization?

2. Can these children obtain a derivative certificate or citizenship?

3. If not, what can be done about obtaining or creating documentary evidence of citizenship?

4. Are these children eligible to the Presidency of the United States?

B. C.

1. Prior to May 24, 1934, a child born abroad to a father who was an American citizen at the time, was also held to be an American citizen. Since May 24, 1934, such a child is held to be an American citizen from birth if either his father or mother at the time of his birth is an American citizen, but in order to retain such citizenship he must come to the United States to live before he is 13 years old. If both his father and mother are American citizens at the time of his birth then his American citizenship is not subject to such a condition. He should register at an American consulate when he is 18 years old. Since they were over 13 when they came to this country the answer depends on additional facts as to the citizenship of the mother.

2. See 1.

3. If the facts are such that they are not citizens, it will be necessary for them to be naturalized in the usual way.

4. The U. S. Const., Article II., Section 1 limits that to "natural born" citizens. We incline to the opinion that these children satisfy this wording if they satisfy the other requirements. See 1.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CEMETERY LOT.

Chicago, April 23.—[Legal Friend of the People].—I have a deed for a lot in a cemetery. This is made out in my father's name. He is now dead and I would like to know if I can leave the deed the way it is or do I have to have it changed. If so will I have to pay for changing or will I need a lawyer for this?

S. A.

There is no procedure for "changing the deed." The technical step would be to probate the estate. Whether this is worth while depends largely on the value of the assets. If the cemetery lot is the only asset, then it seems probable that probate would not be worth while. We suggest that you talk with the cemetery officials. If they are willing to recognize your rights without probate, this would suffice.

N. E. OKLAHOMA TORNADO KILLS 100, HURTS 1,000

ing we could see automobiles being picked right off the road and carried a quarter mile over the fields. Some that were dumped all around us were just twisted masses of junk."

Wallace said one of the machines just disappeared.

"It was a light bakery truck with the driver in it. I saw that truck a good 15 feet off the road and twisting in a continuous circle. Afterward I looked all over for it and never found a trace of the driver or the truck."

Strikes, Then Disintegrates.

The tornado apparently originated about three miles from Claremore, famous as the home town of Will Rogers, and moved directly east of Pryor. After passing thru Pryor the storm apparently disintegrated, Quigley said, as no reports were received of damage to communities farther east. Claremore is about 15 miles from Pryor.

Another storm struck at the village of Talala, 200 population, 12 miles northwest of Claremore, a few minutes after the Pryor tornado, Quigley said. There were five persons killed there, several injured, and extensive property damage caused.

A shuttle train operating between Pryor and Muskogee and loaded with defense workers was reported blown from the tracks, according to the state police. Workmen cleared the track for service within a few hours and the shuttle cars were used to transport injured to hospitals in Muskogee and Venita. Buses were used as ambulances to take others to Tulsa, Claremont, and Waggoner.

High School Unroofed.

At 11 p. m. Quigley estimated that the job of giving first aid to the injured had been completed. Red Cross workers, physicians, and nurses from surrounding cities, and civilian defense officials took part in the work.

A partial survey of damage showed that the First Baptist church and the Labor Union temple had been demolished. The new postoffice and the high school were unroofed.

Hundreds of automobiles, many of them belonging to defense workers, were parked along Pryor's main street when the storm struck. Many of these were completely destroyed and most of them damaged in varying degrees.

All Communication Out.

Altho fire departments from Claremore, Venita, and other cities were rushed to the scene, there were no serious fires, according to Quigley. A few scattered blazes were extinguished without difficulty.

All power was cut off in Pryor as a result of the storm and the city was entirely without communication by telephone or telegraph.

F. C. Dickinson, a Grand River dam worker at Langley, Okla., said that he had just driven into Pryor when the storm struck. He crouched down on the floor boards of his car and was not injured altho the car was battered by flying débris, he said.

Sees 100 Injured Persons.

"I think I'm safe in saying there isn't a two story building left along Main street," Dickinson said. He told of counting 11 bodies along five blocks of Main street, and said he saw 50 persons badly hurt, and 50 others who were injured less seriously.

Charles Barde, city editor of the Pryor Daily Democrat, said about 2,000 workers from the powder plant aided in the rescue work.

Rain 'Falls in Buckets.'

Hail and rain accompanied the twister, and was described by witnesses as "falling in buckets."

Red Cross officials said Red Cross workers were being rushed to Pryor from Oklahoma City and St. Louis.

Gov. Phillips announced at Oklahoma City that Safety Commissioner Walter B. Johnson had been placed in command of stat erelief agencies.

Names of three of the dead in Talala were listed as Mrs. Harold Hewitt, Howard Willey, and Lloyd Boyd, according to a report reaching the Associated Press.

MACOMB AIRPORT DAMAGED

Macomb, Ill., April 27 (AP).—A high wind struck the Harry Clugston airport near here late today, ripping the roof off a small hangar and damaging three planes used in a civil air training program for students of Western Illinois State Teachers college. One of the planes, tied to a stake, was slammed against a tree, wrecking it, and the others, inside the hangar, were damaged by falling débris.

COUNTRY SCHOOL HIT

Ortonville, Minn., April 27 (AP).—Two of the eight pupils in a small country school near here were killed and three others injured so severely they required hospitalization when a tornado demolished the building 20 minutes before school was to close today.

The two victims, Mary Pollock, a fifth grader, and Kenneth Lee, in the sixth grade, were found huddled together 200 feet from where the building had stood. The other children were found a few feet to nearly 500 feet away. The teacher, Miss Edna May, and two other pupils escaped with scratches and bruises.

Tornado Ravages Oklahoma Town

sons directly connected with the war program, including the army, navy, lend-lease, American Red Cross, United Service organizations, Defense Supplies corporation, veterans administration hospitals and homes, operators of ocean going vessels, and operators of camp restaurants and post exchanges.

NEW CURBS ON HAIRPINS

The length of hairpins and bob pins was restricted to 2 inches by the War Production board, and their production was cut in half to conserve metal.

The WPB order forbade any manufacturer to use high carbon steel wire, from which bob pins are now made, but permits use of low carbon steel wire not of a gauge higher than .035 inch.

The order is effective immediately. Manufacturers may use present stocks of high carbon wire, but may not sell metal hairpins in packages containing more than 99 hairpins.

The restriction on overall output provides that during the 90 day period, starting last Saturday, a manufacturer may use one-eighth as much metal as he used during the entire year of 1941.

BAN BRIGHT PAINT ON TOOLS

Fancy paint jobs on machine tools also were ruled out. Instead of red, yellow, black and gold colors applied frequently to metal working machinery, only "old machine tool gray" may be used, the War Production board ordered.

Only one coat of primer may be applied to new tools and not more than two coats of paint, enamel or lacquer may be used. No filler may be applied.

Intent of the order is to reduce the time required for delivery of tools and to free the space now used for finishing for more productive work, WPB explained.

RADIO STATION ORDER

The Federal Communications commission stopped for the duration of the war all domestic radio station construction with two exceptions.

Chairman James L. Fly said the order applied to standard, television, facsimile, relay and high frequency stations. The order is effective immediately.

The only exceptions to the order were experimental high frequency and noncommercial educational stations. International broadcasting was not involved.

Fly said the commission acted on the advice of the Defense Communications board.

1 NEGRO SEIZED AFTER 5 ATTACK GIRL AND ESCORT

One of five young Negroes who attempted to rape a 16 year old high school girl early today was taken to the Bridewell hospital unconscious after he had been beaten by the girl's escort and three other men who went to his assistance. The four other Negroes escaped.

Michael McKenn, 17 years old, 6337 Normal boulevard, told police he was passing the Sherwood school playground at 57th street and Shields avenue when two of the Negroes seized him and the three others seized the girl. He fought them. One struck him over the head with a wrench. He fell, but recovered and halted an automobile in which Ted Busking, 5204 Wentworth avenue, was riding with James and John Smith of 5649 Shields avenue. The four went back and caught the one Negro.

The girl was taken to St. Bernard's hospital, where physicians said she had not been raped.

THAT SECOND CUP OF COFFEE LIKELY TO BE WAR VICTIM

Restaurateurs Say It Will Save 35 Pct.

Coffee drinkers in restaurants will probably have to forego a second cup with their meals as a result of the new government edict, Dario L. Toffenetti, president of the Chicago Restaurant association, said last night.

"That seems the most logical way to cut down on the consumption of coffee," he said. "By cutting out the second cup, restaurant owners will cut down their consumption of coffee beans by 35 per cent."

The association, which has a membership of 1,000 restaurants in the city, will meet Monday and at that time may make a definite ruling.

Expect to Limit Sales.

The curtailment of coffee to the retailer is expected to be passed on to the home consumer by limiting sales. No quotas, however, have been worked out yet, according to chain store officials.

F. J. Lunding, executive vice president of the Jewel Tea company, said that he expected no hoarding among home consumers.

"It's impossible to say anything definite until we see the order, but people won't be permitted to buy as much coffee as they please," he said. "Just how much they will be able to buy, we can't tell now."

Store Rationing Likely.

Burt G. Dickens, National Tea company vice president, declared, "Our organization may have to figure out some quotas whereby the individual stores may be limited to a percentage of the amounts they sold in 1941. Then we'll have the problem of working out some plan of limiting the amounts to each customer.

"I don't look for any difficulty in consumers stocking up because most people realize that coffee deteriorates with age."

Jury Resumes Sedition Inquiry; Byers Testifies

The federal grand jury yesterday resumed its investigation into alleged seditious activities in the Chicago area with Ralph Byers, head of Lend-Lease to America, as its principal witness. Byers was taken before the jury by J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, who is conducting the investigation.

HALT SUGAR SALE AS PRELUDE TO RATIONINGSIGNUP

Retail sugar sales were halted thruout the country at 12:01 a. m. today for a one week preregistration period. Despite the ban, however, Chicago stores yesterday reported sales only mercial sugar consumers will be held slightly above normal, and a spokesman for one chain said that as late as last week one of their stores repurchased 150 pounds of sugar from a single customer.

Registration of industrial and comtoday and tomorrow at stations set up in high schools thruout the city. Retail consumers will register next Monday thru Thursday, and may begin sugar purchases Tuesday with stamps valid May 5 thru May 16, each stamp permitting the purchase of one pound of sugar.

The Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street handed out 474 rationing forms to commercial sugar users yesterday.

Gov. Dwight Green urged Illinois farmers to plant at least a small field of sugar cane which can be turned into sorghum in the fall and used as a sugar substitute. He said the state home economics bureau is experimenting to determine recipes in which sorghum can replace sugar.

Dust Storm in 3 States Recalls Those of 1936

Sioux City, Ia., April 27 [Special].—A dust storm comparable to those of six or seven years ago enveloped northwest Iowa, northeast Nebraska, and southeast South Dakota today. Wind which, at times, obtained a velocity of 50 miles an hour picked up loose surface earth made dry by lack of rain for several weeks and at times visibility was reduced to a mile. Most airplanes were grounded.

NEW USO CENTER FOR SERVICE MEN OPENS HERE SOON

Clubroom for 1,000 in Loop Building.

Jeffrey R. Short.

A United Service Organizations center for sailors, soldiers, and marines in the Chicago area will be opened shortly after May 1 at 131 South Wabash avenue, it was learned yesterday.

The center, covering 20,000 square feet, is to serve as a service men's club. The space will be provided free by Norman E. Bensinger, whose company occupies the building.

Jeffrey R. Short, who heads a milling company and is president of the new Chicago USO center, announced that a lease "for the duration of the war and six months thereafter" was signed yesterday. Work of furnishing the center with a theater hall for 600, lounge and game rooms, snack bar, and art and crafts equipment is being rushed for a grand opening after May 1.

Open Every Day.

The new club is large enough to accommodate more than 1,000 men in uniform at one time, officials say. It will be open daily and Sunday until about midnight.

The club will be governed by a board of six persons who are to be appointed shortly. It will be maintained and operated jointly by the National Jewish Welfare board, National Catholic Community service, YMCA, YWCA, and the Salvation Army. Its establishment is part of an expanded USO program and answers requests of army and navy authorities for more USO centers in metropolitan areas, he asserted.

Served Camps First.

"The original USO program, conceived and launched prior to the declaration of war as an adjunct to defense activities, did not contemplate USO facilities in large cities like Chicago," he added.

"It was felt that such cities had ample recreational facilities and could themselves provide for the service men on leave. Accordingly, USO funds were spent primarily in small communities near army and navy posts where the need for leisure time activities was acute."

With the opening of the center, officials plan to launch a series of week end programs of entertainment, including dances and theatrical performances. The club will be on the second floor of the building.

Mayor's Club Continues.

The USO club will not conflict with the Chicago Service Men's center which was established last fall at 164 West Washington street, officials said. It is expected to ease the strain somewhat on this center, which on week ends is crowded with thousands of men in uniform.

The Washington street center which was formed thru the efforts of Mayor Kelly, is operated jointly by the city and the park district. In addition to furnishing entertainment to service men it also serves free food. The new club will charge nominal prices for food at its snack bar in keeping with the national USO rules.

MEETING MAY 6 TO PLAN SHIFTING OF WORK HOURS

Ald. Francis E. Callahan [37th] chairman of a joint subcommittee of the city council charged with developing a plan to stagger working hours in Chicago, said yesterday his committee will meet May 6 to draft a proposal.

A month ago city engineers completed a survey of working hours practiced by industries in and around the downtown area. They recommended that one form of staggered hours might be to have department or retail stores open and close an hour or more later. They also suggested a survey of working hours in outlying neighborhoods.

The engineers' report was referred by Callahan to 100 transportation and traffic engineers in the city. They will be asked to comment on the survey at the meeting next week.

BENNY REPEATS SHOW FOR SERVICE MEN, PLUS VERY SPECIAL AD LIBS

Jack Benny and company on Sunday started the first of a series of 39 free shows for service men. Those who saw his show Sunday were drawn from the San Francisco area. The Benny troupe was there to help dedicate the new NBC studios. Benny is presenting a special show [not broadcast] for soldiers, sailors, and marines. Tickets will be distributed thru the United Service Organization. Benny said that he felt that neither soldiers nor civilians were getting a break by trying to split his broadcast tickets between them.

So he decided on a repeat broadcast for service men—keeping his cast in the studio and doing the show right over again, with plenty of ad libbed remarks thrown in—not always entirely suitable for sending out over the air.

At 7 p. m. tomorrow Nelson Eddy ushers in his new series over WBBM-CBS. W-G-N-Mutual's Treasure Hour of Song moves from Saturday nights to 8:30 p. m. Friday, effective May 8. This program will feature notable guest singers.

W-G-N's America Loves a Melody series, starring Marion Claire with outstanding male guest singers, continues at 7:30 p. m. Saturdays. And the Great Moments in Music hour, featuring excerpts from operas, will continue over WBBM-CBS at 9:15 p. m. Wednesdays.

FACTS about FIRST AID for BURNS

Do not confuse home treatment of minor burns, with hospital treatment of serious burns

Burns are classified according to the "degree" or depth to which the body tissues are injured—

First Degree—Skin reddened.
Second Degree—Skin blistered.
Third Degree—Damage or destruction of tissue (charring).

For First and Second Degree Burns

In the field of home treatment we stress the importance of familiarity, simplicity, convenience and stability in the treatment used. Apply soothing, pain-relieving, antiseptic UNGUENTINE.

For Third Degree Burns

Severe and extensive burns require special medical and hospital treatment. Call your doctor and follow his instructions.

Unguentine does 3 things needful

1. Unguentine relieves pain—It has local anesthetic effect.
2. Unguentine fights infection—It is antiseptic and germicidal.
3. Unguentine helps promote healing—It remains in prolonged contact.

Remember, UNGUENTINE is positively antiseptic, germicidal and pain-relieving

U. S. TROOPS TEST NEW ROAD ACROSS PANAMA ISTHMUS

And Tropical Rain Gives Soldiers a Trial.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLON, Canal Zone, April 27.—The 10 ton scout cars, their motors grumbling slowly in their ugly square bodies, resembled a row of circus elephants as they waited in the hot blackness of the night. The red of an occasional cigaret, a laugh, or a muttered curse over a barked shin revealed that the cars were fully manned.

Ten minutes more and the convoy would roll out of a bivouac area at the Pacific end of the canal to make a test run over the partly finished Trans-Isthmian highway, now being rushed to completion for military use. The 50 mile highway, which traverses the dense jungles and hilly backbone of Panama, connects Panama City and the other communities at the Pacific end of the canal with Cristobal and Colon at the Carribean mouth.

Jaunt in Half Track Cars.

Our party of correspondents had been invited by the convoy commander, Lieut. Col. Axel B. Devereaux, to make the run in their half-track scouts, cars with front wheels like any other automobile but with track treads instead of rear wheels.

As the first grey of dawn tinged the sky we rolled. Blackout lights shined weirdly in the fading night. Actual daybreak found us 10 miles on our way, deep in the jungle.

You get tense as the car, roaring along at high speed, slams across a makeshift bridge, remembering the time back home when you saw another 10 tonner upside down upon its crew when a bridge broke under it.

You notice how religiously the cars keep their intervals; there is no bunching up into solid masses of vehicles and men. The danger of air attack always is a possibility, and these men know what planes could do to a bunched convoy.

Machine Gun Held Ready.

That's why the .30 and .50 caliber machine guns, mounted on a sliding rack so that they can be swung to command all sides of the car, were kept uncovered, with belts of cartridges packed ready in the magazine boxes. Preparedness for instant action is the watchword of this outfit, and every unit of the armed forces in the Papama canal zone.

Then you forget everything else as the convoy reaches the hills and the rain begins. Tropical rain, like tons of ocean picked up and dropped on our open cars. It was one of the hardest rains in an area which gets an average of 130 inches of rainfall each year.

My car was commanded by Lieut. J. de N. Macomb Jr., scientist turned soldier, and was driven by Pvt. Carl Webster, foundry worker turned draftee. It was an experience to see Lieut. Macomb, water streaming from a recently raised mustache, sitting there taking careful note of all of the rock formations, of the flora and the fauna, as we passed. Pvt. Webster was lumped stolidly behind his wheel now and then wiping his soaking face with an equally soaking towel.

Easy Run for the Half Tracks.

The run proved how easily the half tracks can whip across the isthmus, even on an unfinished road of this type. On time we roared over the roadway built across the top of the great Madden dam, on time we slid past the Coco Solo naval station.

On time we ground to a stop in the scout unit's bivouac area, said goodbye to Lieut. Macomb and Pvt. Webster, and boarded other cars which took us into Colon, where hot food, hot coffee and thoughtfully provided dry clothes awaited as bedraggled a group of correspondents as ever crossed the isthmus.

3 IN 'THREE HAT' GANG RE-ENACT POLICE SLAYING

"John Pantano, a member of the so-called "Three Hat" gang, and two of his companions last night reënacted the slaying of Policeman Charles Williams. The killing occurred last Dec. 10 in a tavern at 4301 North Western avenue. Pantano is 20 years old. His companions were Joseph Morreale, 19, and Charles Theos, 17.

Pantano showed police and Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash how he and Morreale entered the tavern, were fired on by Williams when they tried to stick up the place, and how he [Pantano] returned the fire and then fled with Morreale. Pantano lost his hat as he entered an automobile in which Theos had been waiting outside the tavern.

The "Three Hat" appellation was attached to the gang after two other members were captured because hats they lost in other crimes were traced.

Doctor Finds Bullet, Not Bee, Cause of Sting in Leg

Mrs. Elma Jensen of Udina, west of Elgin, was raking her lawn yesterday when she felt a sting in the calf of one leg. She supposed it to be an early bee and thought little of it. Later it troubled her so much that she called a doctor. He took her to Sherman hospital in Elgin, and removed a .22 caliber bullet.

MacArthur GUARDS

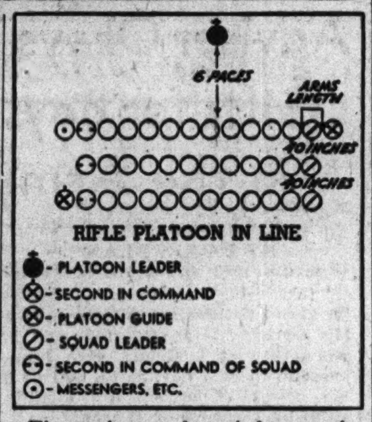
BY BOB BECKER

After learning drill routines as a member of a squad, a soldier gets acquainted with a new unit because two or more squads [plus platoon headquarters] form a larger unit known as the platoon. In the platoon the soldier retains the basic drill routine learned as a member of the squad, but in addition he has to learn the makeup of the platoon and the more complex drill routines.

Attached to the unit known as platoon headquarters is a leader and several assistants. The second in command of the platoon keeps an eye on the whole outfit, watches that the correct formations are kept during drill, and also makes sure that all the commands are properly and promptly obeyed.

A platoon guide is attached to the unit. This may be a sergeant or other specially designated noncommissioned officer. This guide or noncom is responsible for maintaining the proper direction of the march, and he must see that the correct pace or cadence is kept up by the members of the unit.

Military regulations call for the leader of the platoon to take a definite position when the platoon is in line. He must be six paces ahead of the center. In marching [columns of threes and fours] the leader takes position at the head of his platoon. Three platoon squads usually are arranged to produce a three or four rank formation. The basic training the soldier receives as a member of the squad is used in platoon drill. For example, when the platoon is in line a soldier takes interval and assembles in the same way that he learned during his first days of training as a member of the squad.



The makeup of an infantry platoon in the United States army.

Besides the squad and platoon units in army organization a soldier will find it advantageous to learn something about the company before he goes into service. [Military Basic Course, by Frank X. Cruikshank, Capt. Infantry-Reserve] is an excellent book on the squad, platoon and company and other army subjects for the youth to read before his induction into service.]

Just as a platoon is formed by the bringing together of squads, so a company is formed by a company headquarters and two or more platoons.

Slaying Confessed

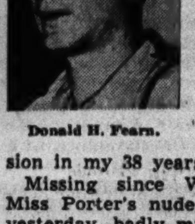
ALICE PORTER.

Pueblo, Colo., April 27 (AP).—A 26 year old father was spirited thru an angry crowd to the state prison today after Police Chief J. Arthur Grady said the man admitted torturing and slaying Alice Porter, 16 years old, a high school girl.



Donald H. Fearn.

Grady termed it "the most amazing, most gruesome confession in my 38 years on the force."

Missing since Wednesday night, Miss Porter's nude body was found yesterday, badly mutilated, in a cistern at an abandoned ranch house.

A few hours later police arrested Donald H. Fearn, father of a 10 day old daughter and a small son.

Chief Grady said that after questioning, Fearn related in a signed statement that he beat the girl, heated wires and applied them to her back and abdomen, raped her, struck her in the head with a hammer, and then shot her twice with a .32 caliber pistol.

Questioned on Attack Charge Made by Girl, 15

Charles Lappa, 33 years old, 220 West 113th street, was questioned by the state's attorney's office yesterday after his arrest by Morgan Park police on the complaint of a 15 year old girl. Lappa denied the girl's charges that he dragged her beneath a porch and attacked her, but agreed to take a lie detector test Thursday.

PICK JURY IN SUIT TO BREAK WILL OF COL. BARTLEY

Selection of a jury was begun yesterday before Judge Benjamin P. Epstein in Circuit court to try the suit of Mrs. Virginia Peckinpaugh of Toledo, O., to break the will of her father, Col. Charles E. Bartley, lawyer and president of the Seneca Hotel company. He died March 26, 1940, leaving an estate valued at nearly $2,000,000. In his will, Col. Bartley cut off Mrs. Peckinpaugh with $1 "for reasons," he stated, "with which she is familiar." He left one-third of his estate to another daughter, Mrs. Gladys Buetner, and the rest to charity. Mrs. Peckinpaugh charges that her father was of unsound mind when he made his will.

REP. G. H. TINKHAM TO RETIRE FROM POLITICAL LIFE

Serves in Congress for 28 Years.

Washington, D. C., April 27 [Special].—Rep. George Holden Tinkham [R., Mass.], bachelor, big game hunter, world traveler, specialist in foreign affairs but anti-interventionist in foreign policy, tonight announced his intention to retire from public life at the end of his present term.

In a statement Mr. Tinkham recalled he had served in the house for 28 years, but said he was ready to "stand aside and to have placed upon younger shoulders the burdens which I have carried for more than a quarter of a century." He is 72 years old.

Reapportioning Changes District.

He added that as a result of the redistricting of the state by its legislature his district—the 10th—had been so altered that "today it is a new constituency and to a large part of that constituency I am a comparative stranger." Tinkham's friends said that what he considered gerrymandering by some of his political rivals played a large part in his decision to retire.

Tinkham was born in Boston in 1870 and has been in public life for 50 years. He was elected to congress in 1915 and had represented his constituency in Boston ever since.

Mr. Tinkham spent a good deal of time in Europe, Africa, and the far east, shooting game and studying the customs of the countries.

Vigorous Noninterventionist.

He was a vigorous advocate of isolation. Long a member of the house foreign affairs committee, he fought the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration up to Pearl Harbor, after which he voted for the war resolutions. In earlier years he had opposed with equal vehemence American adherence to the league of nations and the world court. He was one of the most vigorous opponents of prohibition in congress during the dry era.

TWO DIE IN CAR-TRUCK CRASH.

Brooklyn, Ia., April 27 [Special].—Mrs. Domenik Morrow, 58 years old, and her son, Ralph 22, of Des Moines, were killed last night in a collision between their car and a truck.

60,000 ENROLLED AS MINUTE MEN FOR BOND DRIVE

More than 60,000 of the 120,000 "Minute Men" needed in Chicago to conduct the special pledge campaign for United States war savings bonds and stamps on May 11, 12, and 13 have already enrolled, the Illinois war savings staff announced yesterday. It is expected the balance will be enlisted within 10 days. These canvassers, operating under division heads, will call on every home in the city to secure signed pledges from every person with an income promising to buy the stamps and bonds on a weekly, monthly, or pay roll basis.

Tax Collections 22 Pct. Less than 1941 Receipts

With only four days until the May 1 penalty date on 1941 property tax bills, collections total 78 per cent of last year's receipts, County Treasurer John Toman reported yesterday. Yesterday's receipts of $2,663,795 brought the total so far to $35,234,449, compared with $45,392,059 for the corresponding period last year. The entire amount of personal property bills and the first installment on real estate taxes are due Friday after which a penalty of one per cent a month is added.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Best Seller.

You wouldn't believe, if you could see her, that she is a top-notch saleswoman. In fact, you wouldn't believe she is in business at all. She wears delightfully feminine clothes, a dainty white collar—more like a ruching—around her throat. Her hair is soft and pretty and her eyes shine brightly on a world which has never bored her.

If you saw her you'd say, "She'd be nice to have for a grandmother." She is a grandmother. Her name is Mrs. Whitney, and last year she topped all other sales in her branch in Maywood of the Fuller Brush company. She is 71 years old.

Did You Catch 'Em?

The misused words in yesterday's test were: dew [for do]; wrap [for rap]; knot [for not]; hour [for our]; nun [for none]; bee [for be]; buy [for by]; hymn [for him]; and awl [for all].

A Fighting Irishman.

War is a woman's business, note: Apropos of the "girls who stand bravely back of the men" mentioned in this column a letter received by the war department is relayed:

Menomonie, Wisconsin.

Dear Secretary of War:

"Secretary of war, will you please take my brother Pat, send him over to fight the Japs. He is always fighting with my brother Jim and I. He is Irish and can fight. All you have to do is to give him a club. A gun is not necessary. Pat, age 8. . . . Sinserly in love, Barbara Anne——"

Wage Earners.

Which—the daughter or the son—contributes the larger share of the pay check to the family?

A United States department of labor bulletin, based on figures obtained in Cleveland from representative women workers of widely divergent experience and ages, asserts that daughters turn over a much larger share of their earnings to their families than sons do. One-fifth of the girls as against one-seventh of the sons [in the same families] contribute all they earn, and twice the number of boys as of girls contribute nothing. Among Cleveland daughters 30 years old and more, 17 per cent contribute all their earnings to the family; of the sons, 30 years and older, only 6 per cent empty their pockets into the family coffers.

Know Thyself!

Score your business quotient:

1. Do you like your work and consider it worthy of your best effort?
2. Are you constantly on the watch for new and improved methods?
3. Do you guard yourself like a watch-dog, against lost motion, knowing that now, as never before, time is at a premium?
4. Can you place your abilities at the service of another person with whom you do not always agree?
5. Could you leave your place of business tomorrow followed by good wishes, friendship and respect?

Adviser Okays Gifts for Boys in the Army

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I have been about with a perfectly grand fellow for a few months. His birthday is next month, and I'm wondering if I should give him a present on that day, as he will be 21. He didn't remember my birthday, altho he knew when it was.

"Another thing, he's due to enter the army soon. Does that call for a gift, too? I don't want to appear to be running after him, yet I want to do the proper thing."

We would withhold the birthday gift, as it might prove embarrassing to him, recalling that he had not remembered you. But you can indulge your gift giving mood on a going away to the army remembrance, choosing something that will be practical and useful. The stores are in a position to help you in your decisions, and gladly advise you on what is acceptable to the man in the army.

Other young women have asked about "gifting" the young man who is joining up. We think, under the circumstances, gifts can be dispensed pretty generously, without fear of doing the wrong thing. However, we would petition girls not to set too much romantic store by the gift they send. It's no tie that binds, nor should it be deemed as such by the young woman. Consider it, farther, just doing your bit by one who certainly is out to do his for his country.

Rare Oriental Art Collection Given Institute

The story of a retired Chicago shoe manufacturer who cut his son out of his will and divided his $2,000,000 estate between the Art institute and a charity trust fund has come to light in the records of Probate court.

The millionaire was Henry C. Schwab, head of the former Selz-Schwab Shoe company, who died March 6, 1941, at the age of 73. He lived in a penthouse at 1325 Astor street.

Before his death he offered the Art institute his collection of Chinese and Japanese porcelain art objects. Curators were permitted to select as many objects as they wished. They chose 341 Chinese porcelains, said to be priceless from an artistic standpoint and having an estimated value in money of $1,000,000.

The art objects, perfect examples of vases, tableware, cups, and bowls of the post-Ming dynasty, ranging from the early 17th to the 19th centuries, make the Art institute's collection one of the finest in the country, according to Charles Fabens Kelley, curator of oriental art. One 12 inch vase, a Black Hawthorne, is said to be worth $40,000.

Altho the collection is on public display at the institute, officials have not publicized it because the estate has not been closed. It will be closed in about six months, according to Attorney Lazarus Krinsley. Hearings have been held before Judge John F. O'Connell of the Probate court.

Schwab, who traveled a great deal in China and Japan after his retirement from business more than 20 years ago, disinherited his son when he divorced his first wife about 22 years ago. She was the former Maude Morris, daughter of Nelson Morris, the packer. She remarried and became the wife of an Englishman named Martineau.

The son, Henry Schwab Martineau, moved to England with his mother and was formally adopted by Martineau. Today he is said to be serving in the English army. He has not contested the will.

Altho the will contains no provision for the son, who is believed to be a wealthy man in his own right, it does provide for Schwab's second wife, the former Goaldia Berryl.

Schwab began collecting Chinese and Japanese porcelain art objects shortly after his retirement. At first he bought only objects that appealed to him personally. But in the last 10 years, according to Curator Kelley, he became a true connoisseur.

"He chose only those objects that were perfect, or nearly perfect, examples of their kind," Kelley said. "They are not only among the rarest of their kind, but, judged on the basis of glaze and color and delicate workmanship, they are among the most perfect in the country.

"We believe the collection is so complete that the Art institute doesn't have to pursue this type of Chinese art further."

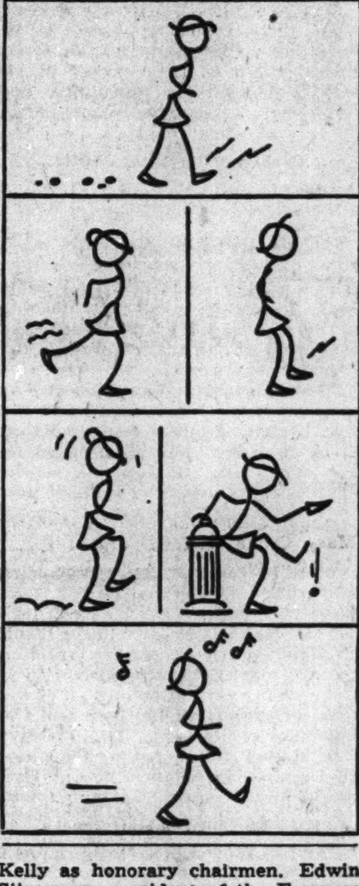
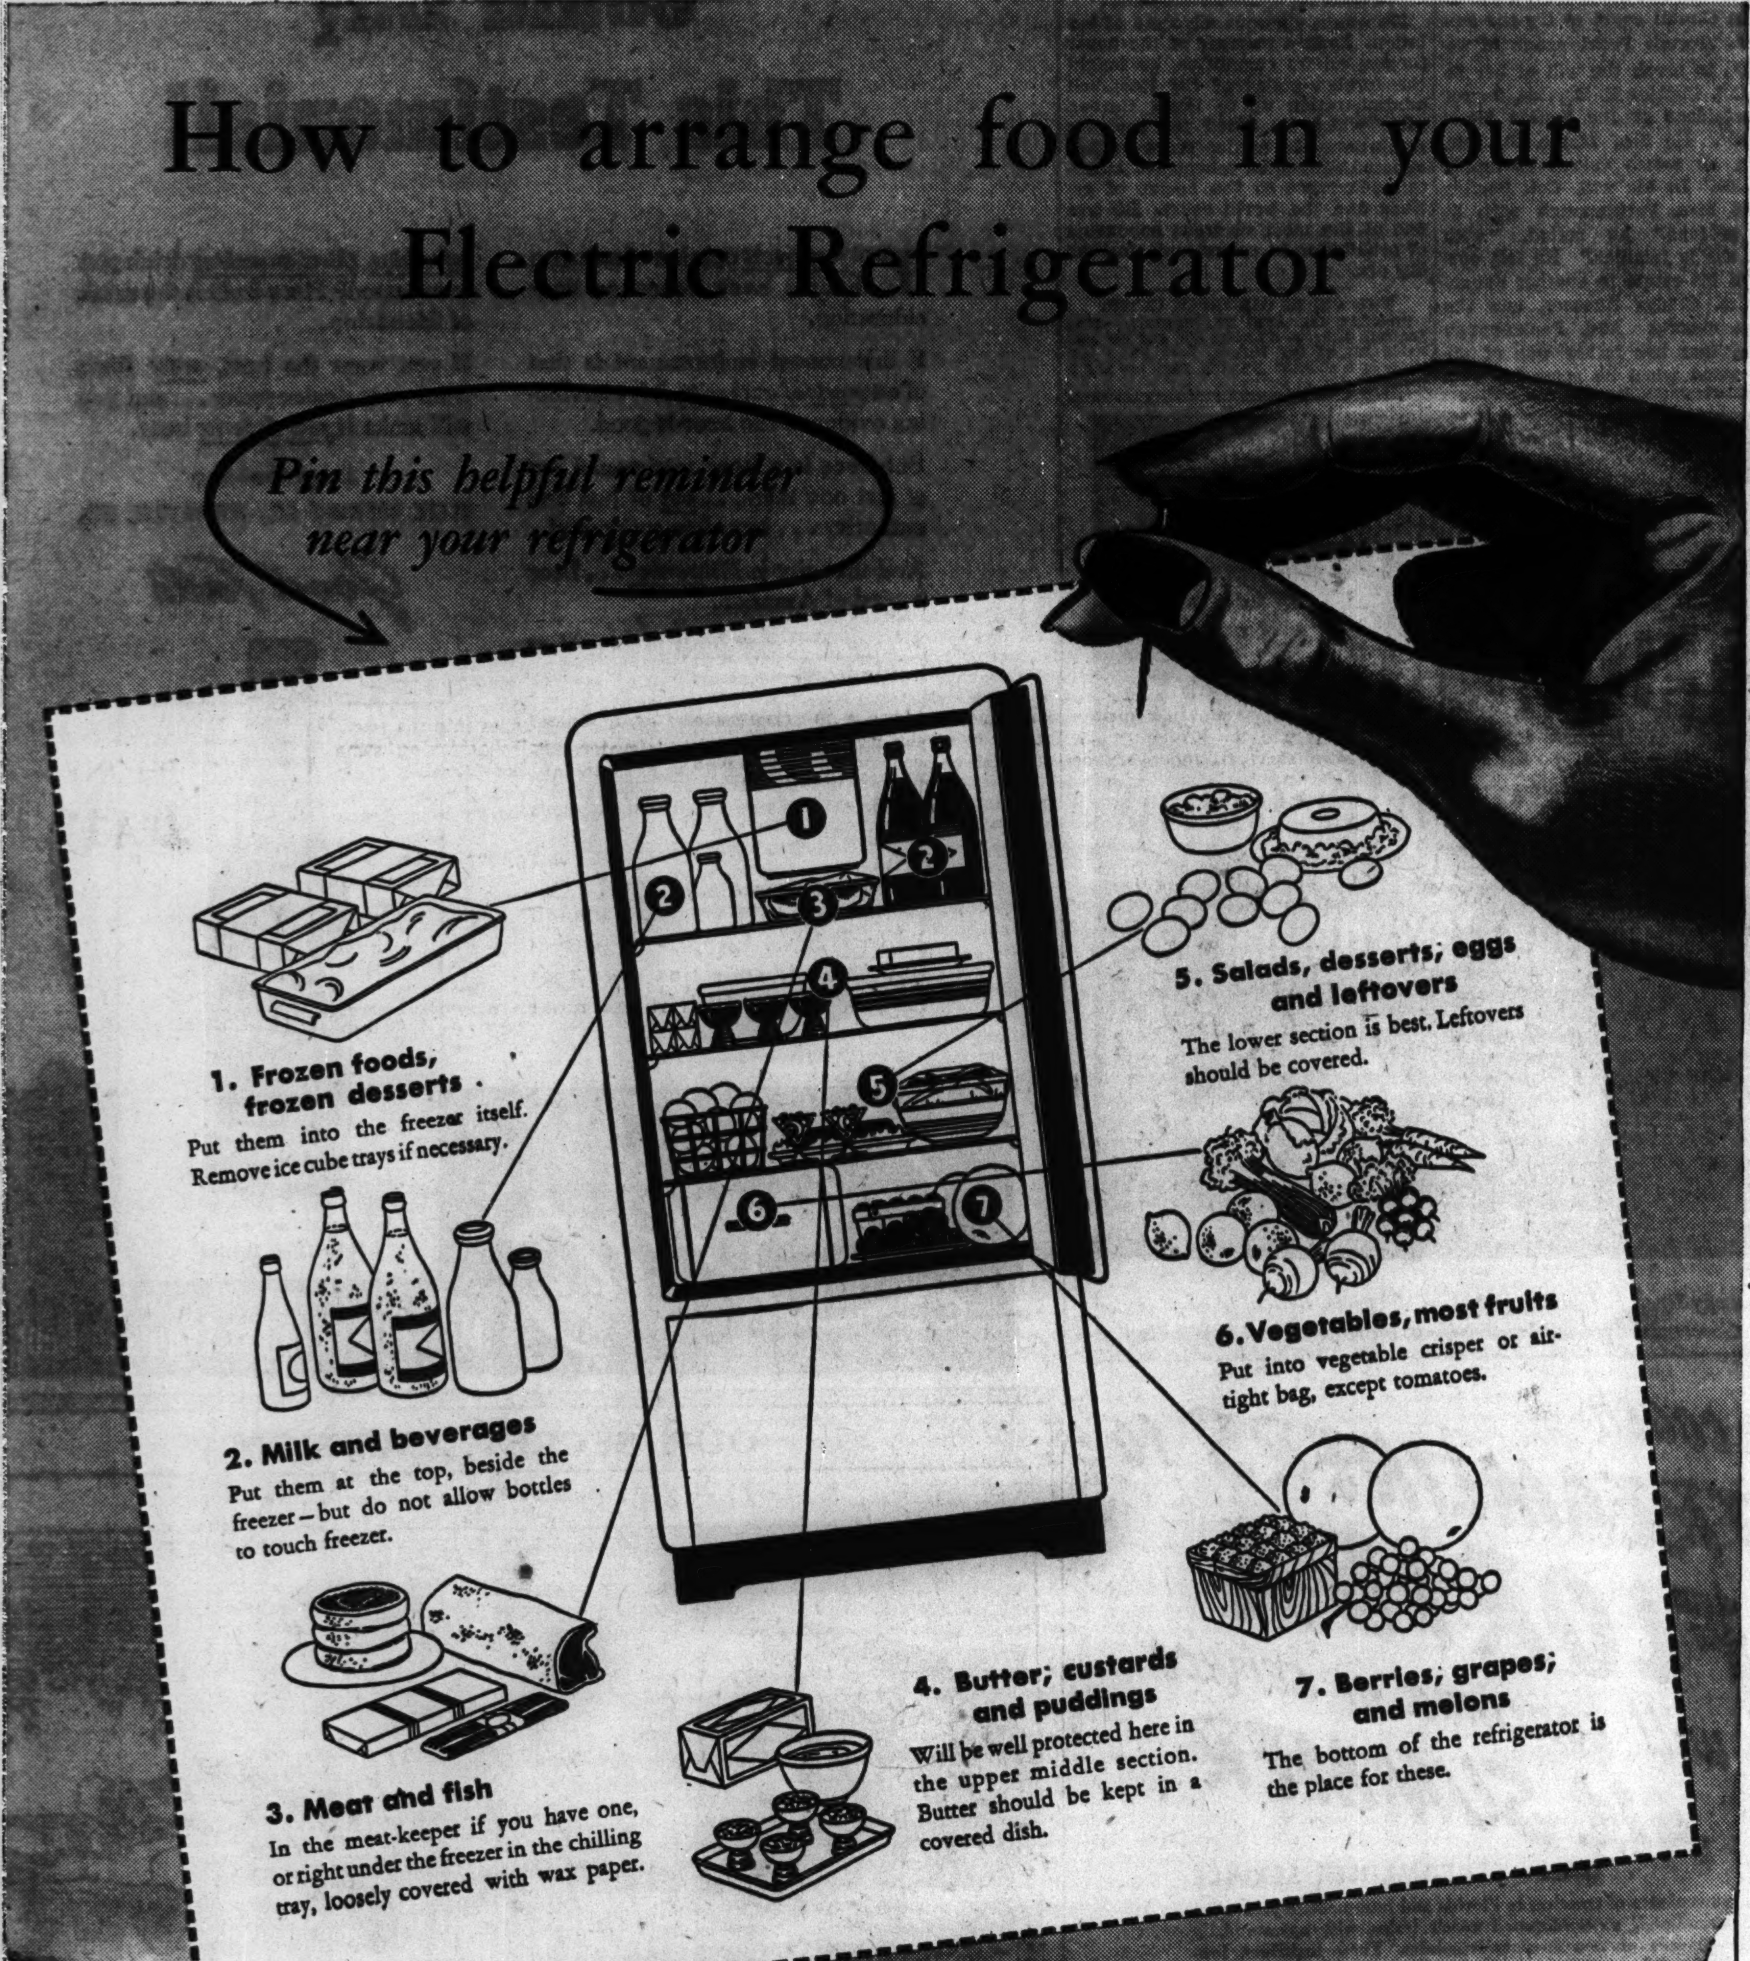
Dear Diary

BY BECKY





Save food—save money by proper storage of perishables

Different kinds of foods require different degrees of temperature and humidity. All you need do is put the food in the proper places as indicated above.

Refrigerator suggestions

Not all foods need be kept in your refrigerator, but probably more than you have been placing there. For example, bread will stay fresh days longer if kept in the refrigerator (lower section). Shelled nuts and chocolate keep better, too. Bananas should never be put in the refrigerator. And such items as catsup, pickles and olives need not take up this valuable space.

To properly store and keep perishable vegetables, wash and trim off all surplus material before placing them in the crisper. Storing food correctly in your refrigerator is patriotic, both from the standpoint of health protection and economy. Cut this helpful reminder out and start following it today.

1 envelope Knox Gelatine
1 pound good butter
¼ cup cold water
1—14½ oz. can evaporated milk

Here's how:

Soften gelatine in ¼ cup cold water. Then place in a dish of hot water and stir until gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Cut the butter into small pieces. Place it in a dish over hot water until the butter is quite soft. Gradually whip the milk and the dissolved gelatine into the butter with a Dover egg beater or your electric mixer. After the milk is thoroughly beaten into the butter, add salt to taste. If milk separates, keep on beating until it is all mixed in. Pack into dish or container and place on ice or in cool place until hard. It should be kept in refrigerator when not in use. Coloring may be added if desired.

Note: Cow's milk may be substituted for the evaporated milk—in which case use a pint of milk (preferably the top half of a quart bottle), and soften the gelatine in ¼ cup milk taken from that pint.

Chicago Group Will Give Tea for Dr. Hu Shih

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Chicago Friends of China have many interesting and delightful parties during the year, but none that will be more interesting than a tea the group is giving tomorrow afternoon for Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese ambassador to the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sherman Taylor are opening their Lake Shore drive apartment for the meeting, which promises to be unusually well attended, even tho invitations were mailed only last Saturday.

Dr. Hu, who is coming to Chicago to speak before the National League of Women Voters' convention tomorrow night at the Palmer House, will give a short talk at the tea. Pouring will be the Taylors' daughter, Miss Helen Taylor, and Mrs. Walter Gregory. Some of the Chicagoans whose collections of Chinese art and whose interest in that country have become well known are Miss Frances Whedon, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, the Joseph L. Valentines, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Russell Tyson, the Freeman Hinckleys, and Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett. They are among those who will meet the ambassador tomorrow. A note of sadness will be present at the tea, due to the death last week of one of the moving spirits of the Friends of China, Mrs. Harley MacNair.

Other admirers of China will dine with Dr. Hu tomorrow night before his appearance at the Palmer House. Prof. and Mrs. Quincy Wright and the Walter T. Fishers are giving a dinner at the Palmer House for the ambassador and for Richard H. Tawney, the other speaker of the evening, and Mrs. Tawney. Mrs. Wright is chairman of foreign policy for the National League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Fisher is its treasurer. "The Freedom We Are Fighting For" will be the subject of both speakers. Mr. Tawney is economic adviser to the British embassy.

Luncheon Will Be Given Friday for Prince Olav.

The visit Crown Prince Olav of Norway and Crown Princess Martha are paying to Chicago is to be an informal one at their request, but there is to be at least one luncheon for the crown prince. It will be given on Friday at the Chicago club by Arthur Andersen, who has invited Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university; the president emeritus, Dr. Walter Dill Scott; Thomas E. Donnelley, William McCormick Blair, and Gen. Charles G. Dawes, among others, to meet the royal guests. Gen. George Grunert, commander of the 6th corps area; Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district; Ralph Budd, Dr. Clifford Barnes, Sewell Avery, Robert F. Carr, and Sydney McAllister are others who will attend the luncheon.

The crown prince will speak at Orchestra hall on Friday night. He and the crown princess will be met in the morning by Sigurd Maseng, the Norwegian royal consul, and Mrs. Maseng, and prominent Norwegian-Americans.

While her husband has luncheon at the Chicago club, an exclusively masculine retreat, the crown princess will be the especial guest at a luncheon Mrs. Maseng is arranging.

Asks Caravan Show Tickets Be Given to Service Men.

James C. Thompson, chairman of tickets for the Hollywood Victory caravan, which will give a performance at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night, May 6, for the benefit of the army and navy, suggests that any one not able to attend the show should buy tickets, nevertheless, and give them to men in uniform. Send your check, payable to the Army and Navy Relief Fund Benefit, to Mr. Thompson, 20 North Wacker drive, and however many tickets you purchase will be given to the boys thru the Chicago Service center. The tickets are $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20 each. Of course, you may have service men as guests even tho you're going to the big show yourself, and it's certain no one will enjoy it more than a lad from one of the posts in or near Chicago or one who is passing thru the city with a few hours to kill.

Rear Adm. Downes, Maj. Gen. George Grunert, Gov. Dwight H. Green, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly are honorary chairmen of the civic, army, and navy committee planning the benefit. Herbert J. Lorber is chairman of the committee, which includes Col. A. A. Sprague, A. H. Mellinger, Gilbert H. Scribner, and Fred A. Preston.

Mrs. Thompson and Helen Jepson, opera star, flew by Clipper yesterday to Havana. Miss Jepson is to sing in "La Traviata" in Havana this week.

Mrs. Smith Pirie Will Be Bride of John Orr Giles.

A new war wedding to be added to the growing list is that of Mrs. Smith Pirie and Lieut. John Orr Giles, who plan to be married as soon as his navy orders permit. Their engagement was revealed first to a small group of their friends on Saturday night.

Mrs. Pirie, the former Daisiana Smith, is the daughter of Franklin P. Smith and the late Mrs. Smith of Lake Forest and Palm Beach, Fla., and a sister of Hoyt and Durand Smith. Her first marriage to John T. Pirie Jr. ended in divorce last year. She and Mr. Pirie have three daughters, Suzanne, Dale, and Sharon.

Lieut. Giles is the son of Mrs. Harry Giles of Lake Forest and the late Mr.

Women in War Work . . . . By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

About 2,000 women will attend the Mary Crane league's annual spring luncheon, card party, and book review today at the Edgewater Beach hotel, and by so doing will assist the league to keep open all the year around the nursery school it maintains at Hull House. The league has decided that in order to give adequate wartime care to children whose mothers may be engaged in war industries, the nursery shall be open in the summer as well as in the winter, and at night, if necessary. Among the prizes to be awarded at today's party are war savings bonds. Mrs. William R. Stuart and Mrs. James B. Holston of Evanston are co-chairmen of the committee on arrangements for the benefit.

Mrs. William R. Stuart.

The Junior league magazine is keeping up with the times not only by having about half of its contents about women's war work, but by changing its format so that it must cost much less to print. There is no advertising in the streamlined May issue, but the magazine is a great deal more interesting than it ever was before. Eleanor Hard Lake, now living in Washington, D. C., contributes a fascinating article on the work the league there is doing—all of it war work, apparently.

Everything Mrs. Lake says is of interest to all women, whether or not they be Junior leaguers, for this is a day when the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady find that they ARE sisters not only under the skin, but in their aims and activities. To women interested in war jobs, Mrs. Hard, as a result of attending the recent conference called by the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, says: "Badly needed today are the following: 36,000 nurses and 26,000 physicists; many more women doctors, dentists, and dental hygienists than we seem likely to have. For the army: Women with the rather vague qualification of 'broad general education.' For the department of commerce: Mineralogists and meterologists. For the public health service: 2,700 women technicians in fields like sanitary engineering. Everywhere: More chemists, draftsmen, psychologists—and thousands more teachers."

Mrs. Lake also learned from the conference that sound advice to women is: "If you are in school, stay there and finish your training in some needed field. Take a job or extra courses this summer, then go back to school and complete your training. Don't rush unprepared into war work. It is skilled labor that we need. If you are out of school, get refresher courses or technical training. The office of education in Washington will supply a list of schools and courses near you. Women trained to work with the handicapped will be much needed for years to come."

Apropos of this last sentence, we pass on news received from Miss Marjorie Fish, head of the division of occupational therapy at Columbia university, that thousands of well paid jobs in occupational therapy are available for women. This need will increase after the war is ended, Miss Fish says, for there will be many soldiers who will need rehabilitation, just as there were at the close of the last war.

Columbia has two new programs combining academic and clinical studies. Under one of the plans students who have had advanced work before going to Columbia will be graduated in two instead of three years. Students entering this course must have had at least one year of academic instruction at an accredited college and have had experience in medicine, education, nursing, surgery, orthopedics, or in other related fields.

After an intensive nine month course at the university, followed by a three month vacation, advanced students will enter a full year of work in hospitals and clinics. Regular students must finish two years of work on the campus before they do practical work in clinics and hospitals.

Under the second plan, adopted as a war measure, students entering without advanced preparation will study during the summer months in order to shorten the period of training from three to two and one-half years. This arrangement probably will be dropped when the war is over, Miss Fish says. She asserts further that occupational therapy is an uncrowded profession and one that is almost monopolized by women. There was a shortage of therapists before the war started, and this will be intensified as time goes on, of course.

Representatives of 25,000 Illinois Republican women will gather in Springfield today to learn how they best can serve the cause of defense at home and attack on the battlefield.

The occasion will be a meeting in the Leland hotel of the advisory committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Republican Clubs. Mrs. William G. Suthers of Chicago is president of the federation.

State Rep. Bernice Van der Vries, co-chairman of the women's division of the Illinois State Council of Defense, is arranging the meeting and will preside. Among the speakers will be Lieut. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, secretary of the council and chairman of the conservation committee. He will outline the council's program on conservation and explain the importance of rationing, salvaging, and conserving all resources vital to the conduct of the war.

Carter Jenkins will outline the entire program of the council, of which he is coördinator. A film showing the manner in which civilian defenders should fulfill their duties will be shown.

Ah me, what strange ideas some women, even good intentioned ones have. From faraway Palm Beach comes a letter signed by Gloria Baker Topping [Mrs. Henry J. Jr.] asking for a weekly contribution to Aid America, Inc., an organization formed by Mrs. Topping in Palm Beach last winter to supply cigarets and tobacco to the American forces at the front. In the letter she says she is sending this message thruout the country. All a donor has to do is sign the attached slip which instructs the donor's bank manager to pay the sum of one dollar a week for the duration, or until further notice, to Aid America, Inc., Palm Beach, Fla. The only catch is that our bank president informs us that no Chicago or other bank located at a distance from Palm Beach would undertake to send a dollar a week to any organization for any depositor. So, we fear Mrs. Topping will not receive many dollars from any except the home area as a result of her "topping" scheme.

In Maurice Evans' and Margaret Webster's admirable staging of "Macbeth," which at long last has made its way to Chicago, the transcendent and inspired Lady Macbeth of Judith Anderson will linger in the memory of every playgoer after all else is forgotten. I would not have you infer that the performance as a whole is anything but meritorious; it possesses forthrightness and vividness, a coöperative and well articulated ensemble of actors, a praiseworthy economy of stage method, and much highly creditable acting, including Mr. Evans' effectively declamatory Macbeth.

But in the entire production only Miss Anderson's acting sears into the imagination. When she is offstage the drama moves lucidly and well; when she comes within sight and hearing the theater becomes tense with suspense and horror and anguish. With hair of a dissonant red hue that recalls Mary Garden's Flora in "The Love of Three Kings," a supple body that responds to emotional stimuli as tho it had received an electric shock, and hands that symbolize all Shakespeare must have dreamed of, this tortured creature of scheming evil is one of the greatest and most inescapable stage portraits of our time.

The sleep-walking scene, in which Miss Anderson attains grisly realism without sacrificing a formal composition which the greatest choregrapher might envy, is no mere isolated show piece. It is the culminating disintegration of a will too strong to permit its own survival, and every detail of the acting of the scene has been wonderfully foreshadowed in earlier parts of the play.

Next to this flaming performance, Mr. Evans' impersonation of the hero remains intelligently studied but academic. Except for a passage of striking physical vitality when the ghost of Banquo appears in the banquet scene, he rests his case largely upon the effectiveness of his forcefully projected, if rather monotonously stentorian, declamation. He seems like a Shakespeanean actor, while Miss Anderson becomes a universal actress.

Since the plot of "Macbeth" is direct, unyielding, and virtually unrelieved, Miss Webster's direction allows the secondary characters to behave like the satellites they really are, keeping the focus of attention upon the hero and heroine thruout. Most of the actors fall into one of two categories; either they are conscious of Shakespearean diction and style at the expense of psychological spontaneity; or they attempt to achieve a contemporary kind of emotional warmth with a sacrifice of poetic imagination. Only Staats Cotsworth's Banquo seemed to me to combine fully a feeling for tradition with touching utterance and fluent action.

The best that one can say for the ensemble is that it is inconspicuous and reasonably competent, without reaching the level of excellence of Mr. Evans' fellow players in "Hamlet." The stage investiture is a strange fixture of bleak stippled battlements, gauze curtains, and sudden inexplicable flights of fancy, with rather more amateurishness of creation and less unity of style than might be desirable.

And yet I feel that I am looking a prize gift horse too painstakingly in the mouth, for I know that you will be as genuinely absorbed in the production as I was, and that you will agree that "Macbeth" is a welcome addition to our theatrical calendar.

Church Attendance Declared Patriotic Duty by J. L. Kraft

Patriotic duty demands regular church attendance is the view expressed to North Shore Baptist church members by James L. Kraft, Chicago business man and chairman of that church's board of deacons. In an open letter to the church Mr. Kraft pointed to the 70 seats made vacant by service men, which, he said, ought to be occupied by persons who will do the church work the service men formerly did.

"I wonder if we realize that going to church is a patriotic duty?" Mr. Kraft asked in the letter. "As a nation we are fighting for religious freedom, and I don't mean maybe. Why fight for it if we do not use or support it? Over 70 of our boys have joined the active fighting forces. Our church is backing those boys.

"Are we as individuals backing them by taking the places left vacant by their going? It is interesting to note that almost to a man the boys in active national service were also active church workers. Who is filling the pew they occupied and doing the work they did? Going to church is patriotic these days because it is the church which does more than any agency to support and carry on the work of the Red Cross."

The recent item about the strangers who bought theater tickets and supper for two midshipmen brought this letter from William J. Christie:

"Your squib reminded me of some of the little things—and big ones, too—that those behind the lines are doing for men in the armed forces.

"We have two sons in uniform who have reported many kindnesses, things which in many cases money cannot buy. One son writes of a family living near the Louisiana camp where he is stationed, and whose home is always hospitably open to soldiers.

"The other son, an antiaircraft gunner stationed on the northwest coast, has been frequently invited to dinner by a shipyard worker and his wife. One evening the worker offered our boy a radio which was not being used. When he learned later that the radio wouldn't work on DC current he promptly sent out a brand new one.

"These are the things that make for better feeling between the men on duty and those at home. The fine deeds that people are doing today prove that there is great hope for this world of ours."

Supersalvage.

On her way to town early yesterday morning, Dorothy Thompson was impressed by the neatly piled collections of salvage materials which Evanstonians had assembled along the curbs for trucks to pick up. She voted first prize to a gas stove, completely knocked down except for the oven, in which were neatly stacked the other stove parts.

No Wonder.

Wives of the faculty group at the University of Illinois depend for extra help on an Urbana cateress, who is always available for special parties. Recently, according to Mildred Barber, a distinguished lecturer was on the campus for several days, and many events were planned for him, with the cateress in evidence at all of them. On his last day the lecturer remarked to his host: "It's the most amazing thing. I've never been in a community where the food was more delicious or where the help all looked alike."

In and Out.

Being very fond of the stories going around of the unusual incidents that occur when men enlist in the services, we submit these two that we've heard concerning two Chicago newspaper men.

One of them, who had received his commission as a lieutenant, junior grade, in the navy, got his orders before his uniforms were ready. He went off to sea duty as probably the first officer who ever sailed in a tweed suit and a bow tie.

The other fellow, seeking a commission in the navy, came thru his physical examination with flying colors until an officer noted that he had a double jointed elbow [the result of a fall when he was a small boy]. He was turned down, but said, when he got back to the office, that he wasn't giving up hope, but was going down to Washington to see whether the authorities wouldn't "waive his arm."

By the Way.

A young couple living in one of the town's tonier apartment buildings, struggling to get their shiny new bicycles into the small elevator, finally achieving same by standing the bikes on their rear wheels. . . . The clear notes of a whippoorwill's song, heard just before dawn, surprisingly enough, on Walton street near the lake. . . . The comment of Corp. Bogan of Camp Edwards, Mass., explaining over the radio the superior qualities of a new type machine gun: It will be very ungood for the enemy."

It's Shop Now or Never for White Accents

BY REA SEEGER.

Spring and summer suits and sleek street dresses of dark colors in linen, cotton, thin crêpe, and other cool materials as well as all the gay seasonal prints have an especial affinity for white contrast. The warmer the weather the greater is the need for cooling accents of white. It is smart shopping to select your white pique accessories now. White pique hats, gloves, bows, belts, blouses, bags, and jackets have the shortest careers on the counters known to fashion records. If you don't grab what you like when you first see them, you're sunk.

Wide dashing sailors of white pique have uncompromisingly straight brims, and usually shallow crowns tied artfully with a simple bow and crisp streamers. Small white pique hats are the last word in snap, with perky bows and sometimes a touch of gay green veiling or a more subtle whiff of gray. Wide cartwheel hats of white cotton are particularly dramatic with your black linen or shantung street clothes. If you wear copper as other people wear black or navy blue, you'll find stunning white pique scoop brim large hats trimmed with a band and bow of copper colored grosgrain and some wit ha film of copper veiling to match.

White pique handbags sound rather luxurious because of the chore of keeping them spotless, but there are smart envelopes and pouch models and any cleaning care is worth the effort when both hat and bag are the only white accents for your costumes. New pique blouses have arrived and they're sensational with the decorative cutout embroiders that shows in the vee of the jacket. There are shirtwaist vests, waistcoats with slit pockets, tailored shirts, and jacket blouses that can be worn in or outside the belt of the skirt. Shop and buy your white pique accents now.

"The Girl Who Stood Alone"

By Roy Vickers

Copyright: 1942: By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Just before the second World War breaks out, June Clayton is employed in England by the Tarlinghouse Motor Lawn Motors company as secretary. She is asked to copy a confidential letter, which when she finishes, her employer, Mr. Tarlinghouse, locks in his safe with the original. But Junne, in copying the letter, has made a few mistakes and has had to recopy three pages. She tears up the spoiled pages and puts them in her purse, planning to burn them in the building furnace as she leaves. But the furnace is out and she keeps them in her purse. On her way home she stops to see a car she wants to buy from Henry and Jacob Ferrer. Henry takes her for a drive in it and seeing part of the spoiled pages that has slipped from June's purse, he realizes it contains information he and Jacob have been trying to get.

INSTALMENT II.

URGENT CALL.

Henry Ferber decided to steal the papers—a resolution he carried out at the next street intersection when a traffic snarl and honking horns claimed June's undivided attention.

With the torn sheets in an inside coat pocket—sheets on which he'd glimpsed some of the desired information—the stocky Ferrer settled back comfortably and said:

Following the suggestion, June put the car "thru her paces" and decided it would be a very good buy—if the price were reasonable.

"How much do you want for the sedan?" she asked.

"Thirty-five pounds, tax and insurance paid to der end of der year," announced Ferrer, "and dot is a bargain."

"It's also a deal," said June. "We'd better take her back now and I'll bring you a check at midday on Monday."

"Let's work it this way. Put me down at der garage and drive yourself home. Use her for a week to see der engine's okay, and next Saturday, if you like, bring der check."

There followed an exchange of compliments, at the end of which June accepted the offer and deposited Henry Ferrer at the garage, then drove herself on to Richmond.

Watching her drive out of sight, Henry spoke to his brother, but not in English, for that was unnecessary when they were alone.

"That girl has brought us luck before we've properly started on her!" he exclaimed, producing the Timcat papers he'd filched during the car test. "Here it is—Timcat! Combinations and Stress . . . airplane parts!"

In the little workshop they spread out the fragments which June had intended to burn; they fitted the torn edges; pasted them onto clean sheets of paper.

Jacob Ferrer rarely displayed emotion, but now he drew in his breath and was as nearly excited as he had ever been in his highly adventurous life.

"You are right. By heaven, you are right! 'Combinations and Stress.'" He emmitted a moan as if in physical pain. "But it is incomplete. There is not half of it here."

"I guessed that by the bulk. But where is the original, Jacob? As likely as not, in the office safe, Jacob. Where it will remain over the week-end, Jacob."

Jacob petted his brother's shoulder with continental effusiveness.

"They are fools who say I am the brains of this organization. It is you. We are to make ourselves into burglars, eh!"

"If the draft is in that safe it'll be ours before Monday morning. And that is good. For the Fuehrer is in a hurry."

"And the Fuehrer will pay—for we will use a British traitor as our agent. Otherwise we should receive but an iron cross for our zeal."

* *

Each time the traffic lights halted her, June found fresh advantages in her purchase. It was a snug little room on wheels, and it would be useful in thousands of ways. No more crowding in the tube. And the car, by going direct, did it in nearly half the time. At least, that's what it would do if there were not any traffic.

And it wasn't as tho it was extravagant, for it would save the cost of a season ticket. Or if it were extravagant, surely she was entitled to it. Out of the four hundred pounds she had inherited on her 21st birthday she had so far bought only a few clothes for herself and a few presents for the family, and there was still more than three hundred left. And even her mother and father had agreed that if she kept two hundred pounds for a nest egg, she would be behaving prudently.

June had a home in a Devonshire village, which she visited four times a year. She had spent her holiday there last month. For the rest of the year she lived with her Aunt Dorothy Mallen, her mother's widowed sister, in a little house with a large garden, called Grasmere, on the outskirts of Richmond.

Arrived at Grasmere, she parked at the curb, slammed the door in style and ran into the house.

"Auntie! Come and see the car I've bought!"

Mrs. Mallen, who was rather like June, only her eyes were faded and her hair was gray, hurried out of the dining room. And, gazing at the Baby Morstyn, she exclaimed:

"How nice! Now I understand why you phoned you'd be late; and I've just put a cottage pie in the oven."

June took her Aunt Dorothy by the arm, helped her into the sedan and drove her around for 10 minutes while she expatiated on the wisdom, the economy, and general desirability of her new toy.

"Ralph Eddis is expecting me at the club for tennis or we could have gone somewhere this afternoon," she explained.

Mrs. Mallen, always appreciative and understanding, expressed surprise and delight in the right places and with some difficulty brought the conversation back to the subject of cottage pie.

Later, looking very lissome in tennis shorts, June drove to the club, some three hundred yards from home, where Ralph, to whom she was informally engaged, proved not at all enthusiastic about the Morstyn sedan. For didn't he have a fine old open two seater himself? One he'd thought would do for both of them.

A bank employé, tall, dark, and conventionally handsome, who prided himself on his good looks and his tennis, he was, however, most enthusiastic about the games he and June played together. For while, on a few rare occasions she had managed to beat him in a single "wins" he'd never relished, today the score was all in his favor.

So they parted, only to meet again after dinner when they went to the pictures, walking home afterward by the river. The moonlight was playing on the water, which made Ralph think of his future, with special reference to June—and with no reference whatever to the European situation.

"If I get moved up at the half year, as now seems likely, would you be prepared to risk marriage on my salary?" he asked.

"Why, y-e-s," she answered hesitantly. "Only it would be less of a squeeze for both of us if I were to keep on my job for a bit."

He made no rejoinder and the subject dropped. It had cropped up before but he remained convinced that a married woman ought not to have an office job, with June clinging to her fixed notion that office wives definitely had a place in business.

"It'll be okay for Monday night?" he asked presently.

"I've taken tickets. I'll call for you at home at half-past six."

Every Monday they would go to a theater in the west end, this being the time to get cheap tickets if you knew a few of the ropes.

"Yes. And I'll drive us," said June.

* *

On Monday morning she overslept by 15 minutes, and so it was a quarter to eight instead of half-past seven when she came out of the bathroom. And then, as if on purpose to make her still later, the telephone rang and she had to dash down in her dressing gown and answer it.

"Miss Clayton?" Incredibly it was Mr. Tarlinghouse's voice. "A rather urgent matter, Miss Clayton! I want you to come to the office as soon as possible. Hire a car. How soon do you think you can get here?"

"Within an hour, Mr. Tarlinghouse," she answered.

She did not hire a car. What was the Morstyn for? Within the hour she was parking it in the "personal" garage reserved for directors and staff.

"What's going on, Hendricks?" she asked the porter. "Not a strike, is it?"

"Search me, miss!" answered Hendricks. "The guv'nor's waiting for you."

This as she hurried past the box. Then into her room to fling off her hat. A moment in front of the mirror and so to Mr. Tarlinghouse's room, with notebook and pencil—a full hour and a half before the ordinary office day began.

2 Events Mark Furniture Mart Schedule Today

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Two events mark the second day of the first national defense market at the American Furniture Mart today. One is a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Furniture Club of America for the press at which news from manufacturers, retailers, and government groups will be given.

The other is a dinner meeting at 7 o'clock. Speakers will be Ferd Kramer, program supervisor of the National Housing agency; Charles C. Lincoln, president of Virginia-Lincoln Furniture corporation, and Alfred Auerbach of the Office of Price Administration. They will discuss national defense housing, conversion to war production, and price control.

The displays that are attracting the greatest attention at this midseason market are those devoted to furnishing typical homes of defense workers In four such exhibits that we visited the furniture has been especially designed to meet the needs and the budget of Uncle Sam's helpers.

One series of rooms, built strictly according to blueprints of one type of defense house now being erected so that each room is accurate in size, shows furniture of oak thruout. The wood was left almost in its natural state, a pleasing beige color. Chests and bookcases and cabinets are of the unit type, each one exactly the height of the other so that they can be interchanged and combined in many different ways. The style is modern.

One practical feature is a double decker bed. In the dinette there is a choice of a drop leaf table or a hutch table, the top of which lifts up and back, the lower supports forming a chair. The furniture for the entire house will cost only around $500.

An eastern firm uses birch with a choice of two finishes for its war workers' house. Again pieces are interchangeable and the style is modern. The living room is equipped with a large, comfortable couch, two comfortable upholstered lounge chairs, several side chairs, end tables, a coffee table, and a bookcase.

Most pretentious of the exhibits is a complete house, built to scale and surrounded with a white picket fence. Gladys Miller, writer on interior decoration, who is now on the staff of the National Housing agency, took us thru this interesting cottage and explained that architecturally it is one of the best floor plans now being used.

Here even the colors of the walls were skillfully worked out for the prospective tenant and his family, the living room being a pale green, the master bedroom a peach-beige, the second bedroom an off-white, the bathroom, bright peach, and the kitchen, clear light yellow.

The woods used in the furniture of this house are maple, made along conservative modern lines, and oak in a natural, light finish. The twin beds, chests, and night table in one of the rooms are of such excellent design and finish it deserves special praise.

Chicago Group Will Give Tea for Dr. Hu Shih

Giles. A Princeton graduate in the class of 1929, he was graduated in the last aviation volunteer specialists class and at present is stationed here.

Mrs. John F. R. Seitz Visits the Ayres Boals.

Mrs. John F. R. Seitz, the former Helen Hardenbergh, is spending a few days in Winnetka with her aunt and uncle, the Ayres Boals, en route to New York to see her father, Col. Raymond W. Hardenbergh. Since being evacuated from Honolulu Mrs. Seitz and her three children have been in the Hardenberghs' Santa Barbara home.

Members of the Literary Tea group will meet at the Harriet McCormick Memorial YWCA at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to hear Mrs. Clarence Hough review "Arise from Sleep" and "Defense Will Not Win the War." Assisting at the tea tables will be Miss Agnes Ewart, Mrs. Charles Clark, Mrs. Theodore Holm, and Mrs. Frank Loesch.

At their annual luncheon today at the Arts club, Chicago alumnae of Dobbs Ferry will fête the school's headmistress, Miss Evelina Pierce. The visitor, who will be staying at the Racquet club until tomorrow night, will speak on the advantages of a private school education in these times, following the 12:30 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill II., president of the alumnae group, is in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wasem [Patricia Warfield] became the parents of a daughter last Friday in Des Moines, Ia. The baby has been named Marjorie for her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert D. Warfield of Chicago, who has gone to Des Moines.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston M. Hester of Glen Ellyn are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Susan Jane, yesterday at the Wesley Memorial hospital. The baby has a little sister, Ann Murray.

Yesterday we talked about broiling chickens. Today we'll consider frying 'em. Buy a young chicken of from 2½ to 3½ pounds for real frying. By "real frying" I mean cooking in fat without a cover. Chickens above 3½ pounds usually are more tender and have better flavor if they are cooked at least part of the time with a cover on the skillet.

HOW TO FRY CHICKEN.

Wipe the pieces of chicken carefully, and singe to remove fine hairs and pin feathers. Dip into seasoned flour, coating well. Brown on all sides in a skillet with half an inch of fat in the bottom. Sprinkle browned pieces of chicken liberally with salt and pepper, reduce heat to moderate, and continue cooking until the largest pieces are tender when tested with a fork. It will take from 25 to 40 minutes after browning. Turn the pieces frequently during cooking.

Never crowd the pan when you cook chicken. If you are preparing several, use two skillets so that there is room for all the pieces.

The temperature is important. You'll never obtain tender chicken if you keep the heat high after browning.

There are other coatings which you may prefer to flour. A mixture of equal parts flour and cornmeal gives a good, crisp, brown coating. Fine, rolled cracker or dry bread crumbs are usable, too. So are crushed cornflakes. To make one of these coatings stick, dip the chicken into diluted, slightly beaten egg, then into the crumbs.

OVEN "FRYING."

After you've browned the pieces thoroly, you may arrange them in a dripping pan and bake them tender. This is a good method to use with a quantity of chicken which would crowd the stove surface were it to be fried in skillets. Keep oven temperature at 325 degrees, and don't pile the pieces of chicken. Allow 40 minutes to an hour in the oven.

DEEP FAT FRIED CHICKEN.

Young chickens should be cooked in deep fat without the preliminary simmering, baking, or braising which the older bird requires before it gets its crisp coating. Any coating you like may be used. Deep fat frying gives a very crisp crust, in any case. Many cooks like to dip the pieces of chicken in batter before frying in deep fat.

To make a frying batter, combine 1 cup sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 beaten egg, and ¾ cup milk. Beat together with rotary beater until smooth. Dip pieces of chicken in batter and fry in deep fat heated to 375 degrees. Cook from 15 to 30 minutes, turning pieces occasionally. Do not crowd the pan. Drain pieces on soft paper. If you are frying large quantities of chicken, keep the fried pieces warm in a 325 degree oven [spread out on a dripping pan] until you've completed the cooking.

You Must Let the Teen Age Child Grow Up

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Repeatedly we have been asked to write more articles for parents who have teen age children. This we shall do from time to time, and partly by drawing upon the letters of our readers, who ask questions or review their own experiences.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"My two sons are 15 and 10 years old. I haven't any trouble with the younger one. He's obedient, alert, and loves to mingle with other children. I never get a complaint about him.

"But my older boy is just the opposite in every respect. He doesn't obey, and I always have to be after him. I keep telling him to do the same things day in and day out, but in vain. To comb his hair, brush his teeth, put on more clothes when he goes out. He's disorderly. He's very slow in dressing, except when he wants to get anywhere he wants to go. He acts languid, too. I always have to be after him. He never does anything willingly. He gets enough sleep and eats well.

"Now that he has reached the age of 15, and I don't see any improvement, I am worried. He's sulky whenever told to do anything. And it's getting the best of me. I always had lots of patience but recently, I can't take it. I wish he were like his brother."

It is plain that something is wrong somewhere. Of course, we always have, in human nature young or old, the fact of natural temperament. But, generally speaking, when things are as wrong as this, it is always logical and fair, too for parents to look to themselves for the fault.

One mistake in management is very evident from this letter: Constant correction and criticism usually fail spectacularly with adolescent children. This is absolutely the wrong tack to follow.

If what I think possible is true in this case and others like it, then the parents who find themselves up against this kind of a stone wall should look for another possible fault in their management: That of unwise treatment when the second baby came along. Some of the present behavior of the older son may have an origin as early as that.

Here is another hint. Parents must recognize the fact that there is a tremendous gap between a 10 year old and a 15 year old boy. Physically and emotionally, the latter has leaped ahead much more than the five years might indicate. He is well into his adolescence, and so is having a difficult time to adjust himself to the changes of this period of his life. He needs help from his parents and understanding.

So we see that the 15 year old cannot be treated as a child any longer, scolded and punished and directed at every turn, and that the first step in the right direction is to cut all that out and enter upon a campaign of praise and friendliness, encouragement and coöperation.

Cello Soloist of Symphony Wins Applause

BY FELIX BOROWSKI.

Jenska Slebos' violoncello playing was the outstanding feature of the concert given by the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Eighth Street theater last evening. Miss Slebos, who is the principal violoncellist of the organization, was allotted the task of interpreting the solo part of Boccherini's concerto, and the difficult obbligato part of Ernest Bloch's symphonic poem, "Voice in the Wilderness." Either one of those assignments would have been exacting, and it is saying much for the soloist that she emerged from her ordeal with remarkable distinction.

The concerto—the sole survivor of Boccherini's four examples of the form—gave the player more abundant and more grateful opportunities than those contained in Bloch's symphonic poem. Boccherini was himself a violoncellist, and that which he composed for his instrument was effectively and often brilliantly conceived. Miss Slebos played with admirable clarity the florid passage-work of the opening movement and of the rondo, and she put mellow tone and poetic feeling into the slow movement.

Bloch's "Voice in the Wilderness" was of a different order. The work, composed six years ago, was given its first hearing in Chicago on this occasion.

It is one of a number of compositions in which Bloch expressed with warmth—sometimes even with aggressive insistence—the racial spirit that belongs to Jewish tonal art. "It is the Jewish soul that interests me," he once said, "the glowing agitated soul that I feel vibrating thruout the Bible; the violence that is evident in the prophetic books."

Bloch's Hebraism is not of the comfortable and opulent type that characterized the music of such a composer as Carl Goldmark. His message is stern and hard—stern as the message of the prophets of ancient Israel. Not Amos, Malachi, nor Zephaniah spoke with larger severity to chasten soft and enervated spirits than Bloch speaks in his "Schelomo," in his "Israel," in the Two Psalms, and, not least, in the work that is discussed in this review.

By these tokens "Voice in the Wilderness" is no ear tickling product. It is music strikingly original, filled with wailings and exhortations, sometimes savage and brutal, and nearly always dark in color—unhappy music as a whole. Izler Solomon, who conducted the concert, evidently found himself in great sympathy with the work. It was clear that he had carefully rehearsed it, and it was read with comprehension. Miss Slebos had no easy or grateful task in making something out of the arduous cello part, but she addressed herself to it with spirit and with resulting success.

The program also contained "Military" symphony and part of the third act of Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounoff." Mr. Solomon and his men did excellently with the symphony, which, indeed, was the best played music of the evening, so far as mechanical perfection was concerned.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., April 27.—We were talking about the trouble authors cause. A screen writer, pacing the floor or lying on his spine, dictates a simple line to his long-suffering secretary, and that simple line causes hell to break loose in all directions.

William Perlberg.

A bearded, bare-chested pirate, Tyrone Power, lounging in the sun outside the "Black Swan" set, said, "You know the two most expensive words in the movie business? They are 'They fight.' That's all. A writer says 'They fight' and it takes as long as two weeks to get those words on the screen."

Scene 74 of the script of "Ten Gentlemen from West Point" says, "The mule, braying, breaks away from his harness and charges across the field." Sounds simple.

Starting in Producer William Perlberg's office, I traced the history of this stage direction from beginning to end.

"I put the mule in," said Bill, "because I knew a mule 20 years ago when I was a booker for the William Morris office in New York. A great mule—Red Donahue's U-No. So I got him; he's still working. . . . Do you know the history of the army mule? In the early days of West Point a mule broke up a lacrosse game, and the animal has been the West Point mascot ever since. So we've got U-No breaking up a game in the picture."

U-No and Red Donahue cost the studio $1,250 a week for six weeks. They weren't working all that time, but had to be kept around until the picture was in the cans, and lost vaudeville time had to be paid for. But that was just the start of the expense.

The studio built a paddock on the back lot for U-No. Then it had to build a wagon for the scene. The prop department constructed a brand new wagon which probably cost twice as much as a factory-made job, because union labor in studios runs high.

The wagon had to be aged. Two men spent two days making it look old and weathered.

Well, even a trained mule can't break away from his harness without help. You've got to make a breakaway harness. Property men spent a couple of days manufacturing a harness which would part when thin wires, invisible to the camera, pulled trips. And U-No was supposed to kick. If he kicked in his traces he might cut his legs on the wagon, so a "kick pan" had to be fashioned of aluminum for his heels to rattle against. It was a good sound effect, as well as a protection.

". . . Braying . . ." U-No, time after time, would go thru his breakaway act after properly looking as tho he was braying—but some times he wouldn't bray and some times the noise wasn't satisfactory.

It took six days to make the shot. The over-all cost, including time of many crews and executives, was $27,000. After the scene was made, a sound crew spent two days with the mule getting "wild track." Every time U-No opened his face to bray, they'd turn on the machinery and take it down. The overhead on a recording channel is $40 an hour, and a sound crew consists of a mixer, a system engineer, a cable man, a boom [microphone] man and a driver from transportation for the sound truck.

The wild track of U-No's wild brays then had to be wedded to the picture itself, a ticklish job of timing and modulating in the re-recording department. This took the services of four mixers, two recording men, a system engineer and three dummy men. A dummy is a movie projector that takes sound tracks only and shows no pictures.

Much film had been shot in six days, of course, and it was up to the cutter and two assistants to pick out the best stuff, paste it together so that it had the appearance of continuity, and then trim it to the bone. Twenty-five setups—different shots from different angles—proved good. These were edited down to 10. This took about five hours, with cutters running the film over and over again on their little movieola projectors. The final sequence ran two minutes.

"Ten Gentlemen from West Point" was finally sneaked. Like all newborn films, it was long, and producer and director started making cuts. And waddaya know? The bit about "the mule, braying, breaking away from his harness and charging across the field" was cut out!

Thru the Looking Glass

The little, easily-overlooked items add up to a "band-box" appearance and stamp a woman as either well turned out or just plain careless looking. Daintiness is a quality that is worth more than precious jewels. It is also something more than merely being clean about one's person and wearing pretty clothes and artful makeup.

It is keeping everything one wears and uses in perfect condition fresh and spotlessly clean. Many a well turned out woman has shattered all illusions by hauling a decrepit powder puff from her purse. Powder puffs are much too inexpensive to risk using soiled ones, from the standpoint of both appearance and complexion health.

Pocket combs are also easily neglected, possibly because they are hidden away in the purse and are easily forgotten when washing combs kept on the dressing table. But it is pretty embarrassing to have to bring a messy one into view. We're of the opinion that a pastel colored comb is best to carry during the day. It presents its case for washing more forcibly than a dark comb. These are items not widely displayed in public, but powder room criticism is probably the most rigid test any woman has to undergo.

Run over heels add nothing to a woman's chic appearance. They make her look careless and—down at the heels. Such heels can also interfere with a graceful walk. Another bugaboo is a soiled hatband. It's pretty much of a shock to glimpse a powder caked ribbon on the inside of a hat when it can so easily be remedied by a quick rubbing over with any of the many efficient dry cleaners on the market.

Women Voters Open Biennial Session Today

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

What promises to be one of the largest meetings in the history of the National League of Women Voters opens today in the Palmer House. The league's first wartime convention will bring 1,000 delegates from 32 states, it is estimated, with New York and Illinois having largest representation. This being a biennial convention, before adjournment on Friday afternoon the organization will have mapped its nonpartisan but political course of action for the next two years.

Miss Marguerite M. Wells of Minneapolis, national president and one of the founders of the league, will guide the league thru its 1942 session. Three others of the founders will be here to participate in the program, Mrs. George Gellhorn, the national finance chairman; Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lynne, Conn., and Mrs. Richard Edwards of Peru, Ind.

Dr. Hu Shih, ambassador from China to the United States, will speak tomorrow night at a public meeting on "The Freedom We Are Fighting For." Richard H. Tawney of London, to be heard on the same program, is the adviser on social and politico-economic affairs to the British embassy in Washington. Bernard A. De Voto, author and editor, is giving the keynote address tonight—his subject will be "Responsible Citizenship Makes Responsive Government."

So many and urgent have been the requests for guest tickets for Dr. Hu's address that the hotel management is setting up equipment to carry the program from the Grand ballroom to an overflow audience in the Red Lacquer room, and adjoining rooms also will be opened. Some 2,500 persons will hear Dr. Hu and Mr. Tawney. Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will preside at the meeting.

Tonight at the opening business meeting in the Grand ballroom Mrs. D. Bailey Calvin of La Marque, Tex., national secretary of the league, will present the proposed league program.

This morning will be given to separate department conferences presided over by the respective women, as follows: Government and its operation, Mrs. J. Hardin Smith, Kirkwood, Mo., chairman; government and education, Mrs. R. Walston Chubb, Webster Groves, Mo., chairman; government and social welfare, Mrs. James T. Hoffman, Cleveland, O.; government and economic welfare, Mrs. Marion A. Cheek, Snyder, N. Y., chairman; government and foreign policy, Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, Chicago, chairman, and finance, with Mrs. Gellhorn of St. Louis, Mo., as chairman.

Mrs. Raleigh W. Stone, president of the Cook County league, and chairman of the convention steering committee, with other officers and members of the county organization, will receive the delegates, alternates and accredited visitors at league headquarters at 225 North Michigan avenue this afternoon at 4 o'clock tea.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	Pass	3 diamonds
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's pass over one spade was eminently proper. For one thing, such a pass might turn out to be a trap if the opponents were to go too far. For another, South could not afford to overcall with two diamonds. His length in the adversely bid suit suggested that West might be lurking back of him with a prompt double. West's two heart take-out was, of course, orthodox, as was North's pass. East evidently decided that, since West had passed originally, it was very unlikely a game could be in the hand, hence exercised his right to pass.

This was where South "fell in" with both feet. It is rather obvious that he figured the opponents had very little because they had stopped at two hearts. This was not a sound conclusion. It was, of course, logical to assume that they were not passing out a game, but surely there was no evidence that they were really weak. At any rate, for South to have entered the auction for the first time at the three level, with only a five card suit headed by the A-10, was indefensible, and met punishment that was completely just.

It would have been more logical if South, afraid of being "fixed" by letting the opponents play a low contract, had entered the auction with a double. This type of delayed double, used to reopen the bidding, is not taken too seriously by an expert partner. He makes due allowance for the fact that the double may have been made under pressure, that is, that its prime object was to defend against a part-score. Such doubles are not to be considered at rubber bridge, but they have a definite place in the strategy of match-point duplicate. In this case, if South had doubled the two heart bid, North would have passed because he was well prepared to play against that contract.

If South had taken this action instead of making a miserable three diamond bid, he would have found himself on the winning, instead of the losing, side of a penalty.

SUPREME COURT MODIFIES CURB ON WIRE TAPPING

Upholds Employment of Listening Device.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—The United States Supreme court held in a 5 to 3 decision today that wire tapping evidence obtained unlawfully by government agents may be used in a criminal case against persons who did not participate in the intercepted communications.

The ruling reverses the effect of three previous decisions forbidding the direct or indirect use of evidence obtained by tapping telephone wires, in violation of the communications act of 1934.

Altho congress has repeatedly rejected administration bills authorizing government agents to tap telephone wires in criminal investigations, the Federal Bureau of Investigation admittedly practices wire tapping unlawfully, and today's decision of the Supreme court approves the indirect use of evidence thus unlawfully obtained.

Extent of Practice Revealed.

The extent to which FBI agents practice unlawful interception of communications is indicated by the statement of an assistant United States attorney in New York to one of the witnesses in the case decided today. The statement was quoted in a dissenting opinion by Justice Frank Murphy as follows:

"'We have watched your telephone; we have watched all these lawyers' telephones; we have had rooms tapped. We know what is going on. We are not stabbing in the dark. If you want to hear your voice on a record we will be glad to play it.'"

Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone and Justice Felix Frankfurter concurred in the dissenting opinion. Concurring in the majority opinion, delivered by Justice Owen J. Roberts, were Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed, William O. Douglas, and James F. Byrnes. Justice Robert H. Jackson took no part in the case.

Charged with Conspiracy.

Dr. Maximilian Goldstein, Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, Herman Rubin, and Irving Elentuch, unsuccessful petitioners in the case decided today, were charged with using and conspiring to use the mails in a scheme to defraud insurance companies by presenting false claims for disability benefits. Two alleged co-conspirators, Messman and Garrow, confessed and turned state's evidence when they were confronted with intercepted telephone messages, to which they but not the petitioners were parties.

"Assuming the witnesses' testimony was induced by divulging to them the contents of intercepted telephone messages," states the Roberts opinion, "was the admission of their testimony erroneous? We hold that it was not."

It has long been settled, the opinion continues, that evidence obtained in violation of the fourth amendment cannot be used in a prosecution against the victim of the unlawful search and seizure if he makes timely objection. But this protection does not extend to persons who are not parties to the intercepted communications, the opinion adds.

"It is immaterial," Justice Murphy's dissenting opinion said, "for the object to be served [by section 605], whether objection is made by the one sending the communication or by another who is prejudiced by its use. The rule that evidence obtained by a violation of section 605 is inadmissable is not a remedy for the sender; it is the obedient answer to the congressional command that society shall not be plagued with such practices as wire tapping."

Makes Related Ruling.

In another related ruling which the justice department said would further its counterespionage activities, the court upheld the use of a mechanical device for overhearing words spoken into a telephone.

The court said that the protection against wire tapping in the communications act covered "the means of communication" and not "the secrecy o fthe conversation itself." Thus the court upheld the use of a device called a detectaphone which, from another room, can pick up the conversation when a man speaks into a telephone.

"Words spoken in a room in the presence of another into a telephone receiver do not constitute a communication by wire within the meaning" of the act, the court declared.

"The listening in the next room to the words of Shulman [a defendant] as he talked into the telephone transmitter," the opinion added, "was no more the interception of a wire communication, within the meaning of the act, than would have been the overhearing of the conversation by one sitting in the same room."

The salvage contributions ranged from tiny ash trays to old-fashioned pot bellied stoves. Included were old steam radiators, brass beds, bridge lamps, lawn mowers, even baby carriages.

THREE VANDALS GET TERMS IN STATE SCHOOL

Three young men who helped to cause $10,000 damage to the Edwards elementary school, 4815 South Karlov avenue, thru vandalism and fire last March 31, were sent yesterday to the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, for indefinite terms.

Judge Frank Bicek, in Juvenile court, ordered Lawrence Griffin, 17 years old, 5141 South Tripp avenue, held in the juvenile detention home until his parents provide a plan for removing him from the community, where the court said he was under a bad influence.

The three sent to the training school are Joseph Fillipek, 17, 4849 Komensky avenue; Edward Ewasiuk, 16, 4822 South Kildare avenue, and Howard Brinker, 16, 4955 South Kedvale avenue. Two older members of the gang recently were held for grand jury action on charges of robbery and malicious mischief.

VOIDS CONTEMPT ORDER AGAINST DOCTOR'S PATIENT

Judge U. S. Schwartz' order for a contempt citation against Mrs. Sally Kolton, 23 years old, 2532 Thomas street, was dismissed in Criminal court yesterday at the suggestion of Edward Healy, assistant state's attorney.

The citation was ordered last Wednesday when questioning brought out discrepancies in Mrs. Kolton's testimony as complaining witness in the trial of Dr. Leonard Szumkowski, 57, of 1758 Superior street, on an abortion charge. Dr. Szunkowski was freed on a directed verdict after Mrs. Kolton admitted she had been his patient for several years and had not wandered into his office by chance as she at first had contended.

Healy told Judge Schwartz that in his best judgment there was no contempt because Mrs. Kolton had admitted her mistake.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and personally, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries. Persons are asked to keep their letters short because of the volume of mail.]

S. J. asks: "Is a man who volunteers his services to the army, but is rejected due to defective vision in his right eye, amounting to almost total blindness, still liable to military service when classed as 1-B?"

ANSWER: Men in class 1-B are considered available for limited military service. As yet there has been no indication as to when men in this classification will be called. It is likely that these men will be trained and assigned in such noncombatant capacities as clerks, hospital orderlies, cooks and cooks' helpers, mechanics and maintenance workers in army camps, etc.

Mrs. D. A. writes: "We have a friend, 39 years old, who several years ago spent a year in bed with the result that his lungs were left scarred from tuberculosis. Will he be inducted into the army?"

ANSWER: Arrested pulmonary tuberculosis will not prevent the registrant from being inducted if, in the opinion of the examining army physician, the scars are not likely to be reactivated under conditions of military service.

J. F. B. writes: "I am 17 years old and would like to enlist in the U. S. maritime service. Where do I go."

ANSWER: Applicants less than 18 years old are not accepted for enlistment. When you are 18 you can apply at the enrollment office at 53 West Jackson boulevard.

Miss A. D. asks: "Is an aviation cadet in the army air corps permitted to marry while in training?"

ANSWER: There is no regulation forbidding cadets to marry, but army air corps officers say it is inadvisable as the cadets have no time to think of marriage during their strenuous 7½ months training course. It is better to marry after the cadet has received his commission or before he enters training.

H. B. writes: "My brother and I completed the standard course of instruction in first aid and received first aid cards from the Civilian Conservation corps. We are going to join the navy and wonder if we can be given a rating?"

ANSWER: If the training you and your brother have received is equivalent to a junior Red Cross first aid course, you both would be eligible for a rating of hospital apprentice, 1st class, in the naval reserve hospital corps.

Miss L. O. asks: "Is there any truth to the story I hear that all commissioned officers must have private means of transportation as they are not permitted by regulations to ride in public conveyances?"

ANSWER: There is absolutely no truth to the story.

ARRANGE TO SHIP FOOD CARGOES TO STARVING GREEKS

New York, April 27 [Special].—The Greek War Relief association today announced the chartering of six to eight Swedish ships to carry foodstuffs to the Greek people. Spyros P. Skouras, president of the organization, said the only detail still lacking was the identities of the vessels.

The chartering of the ships will mean regular shipments of wheat and other essential foods to Greece from the United States, Canada, and Argentina. Travelers from Greece have told of starvation there. People, it was said, were collapsing in the streets from lack of food.

Skouras also said the association in a few months would begin the evacuation of Greek children to this country.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 27.—The Cubs, who don't mind a little extra work if it nets a profit, had to battle thru 11 innings today before winning the final and deciding game of their three game series with the Reds. The bats wielded by Stan Hack and Len Merullo produced a run that stopped the third overtime argument played by the same two teams in nine days. The score was 4 to 3.

Manager James Wilson brought his boys thru successfully despite another failure of Hiram Bithorn to go the route, even tho he made an excellent start and was provided with a three run lead. He wilted quickly in the sixth and Paul Erickson got the situation back in control after the Reds had scored twice. There was only one hit the rest of the way against big Paul, but it was a tying homer by Frank McCormick in the eighth.

But Lou Holds the Ball.

Johnny Vander Meer, the one time no hit notable, did all the pitching for the Rhinelanders, but between base hits and his customary wildness he didn't have much time for relaxation. Hack thumped John for four hits, Merullo twice injected himself into scoring incidents, Louis Stringer smashed a two run homer, and Lou Novikoff notched two singles, both of which helped in the run column. But Novikoff's joy was halted by a slight mishap. He went galloping off into space for a foul fly in the ninth and altho he made the catch, he stumbled and fell flat on his tummy. Lou's right thigh was bruised in his tumbling act and he withdrew for repairs.

Hack came up in the 11th with one out and lined a single to center. He immediately stole second, but his feat was recorded as an error when Eddie Joost dropped the ball. Merullo, who with Hack had set up a scoring arrangement for Novikoff's bat in the fifth, pumped a single into right. He was out trying to reach second on the throw-in, but Hack had checked in with the decisive tally.

Mr. Stringer Connects.

At the start the picking was so tough that a pass to Bill Nicholson in the first and a double by Hack with two gone in the third represented the Cubs' base running adventures until two were gone in the fourth. At this point, Novikoff made his first hit, a single thru short. A moment later Stringer hoisted his homer over the left field barrier for

White Sox Pursue the Elusive Base Hit in Washington Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Slaphappy Jimmy Dykes and his pleasant little band of cellar revelers are due in Washington this morning, fairly raging to have their bats unpacked so they can get at the Senators' pitchers this afternoon in the first match of a scheduled 13 game road trip.

To a man the Sox vowed to produce a better run average than the team did in its four western road games. In these four games the Sox averaged half a run a ball game. They made one run in two games in Cleveland and one run in two games in Detroit. They haven't been in St. Louis, but will be before they get back home. In all their 12 western games they raced to the home plate an average of twice a game.

Smith Is Today's Pitcher.

Eddie Smith is scheduled to pitch for the Sox today. Eddie is the same plump little man who was beaten by the Indians, 1 to 0, with two out in the ninth, and 2 to 1 by the Tigers with two out in the ninth.

It is probable that considerable effort will be made to get the Sox up to major league caliber while they are away. Under perfect weather conditions they drew the smallest crowd in either league on opening day. Last Sunday, second Sabbath of the season, they again were the least attractive baseball show in the majors. With several turnouts ranging from 38,000 to 42,000, the flopful Sox drew 8,179. The season opener crowd was the largest in Comiskey park this season, 9,879.

These skimp totals might be blamed to war conditions, except for big attendance figures in other cities where war conditions are similar or more difficult than they are in Chicago.

Even before the Sox got off to their sad start it was forecast the team's waiver list scouting system might have run its course. Other clubs, those which purchased players in the off season, have been enjoying big crowds in the openers, on Sunday, and occasionally on weekdays. The waiver lists no longer present specimens for the Sox's human repair shop and psychology clinic.

Many think that if the Sox are going to keep up with sports parade in these days they are going to have to spend some dough in the already crimped player market, which has been pretty well combed by the more alert organizations, like the Indians and the Tigers, to mention a couple of teams the folks here have seen.

Wright, Lee Miss Trip.

The Sox will play three games in Washington, two in Philadelphia, three in New York, two in Boston, and three in St. Louis before they return home.

The Sox can count on no help in the immediate future from Taft Wright, their leading hitter in 1941, or from Thornton Lee, their leading pitcher last season. Wright is resting with his abdominal injury in Mercy hospital. Lee also was left behind to work out his own destiny with his sore arm.

JOE LOUIS WILL BE PALLBEARER FOR BLACKBURN

Pallbearers for the funeral of Jack Blackburn, trainer of Joe Louis, heavyweight champion, were announced last night. They include Louis, his co-managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough; his bodyguard, Sergt. Carl Nelson, and Frank A. Young, sports editor of the Chicago Defender. Blackburn died last Friday.

Services will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at Pilgrim Baptist church, 33d street and Indiana avenue. Burial will be in Lincoln cemetery.

329,000 CAN TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THE GOLF SCHOOL

A 1933 Idea Becomes a Spectacular Success.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Opportunity to learn how to play golf free of charge is presented today to all golfers—whether they actually play or merely talk the game and want to play it, with the announcement of The Tribune golf school.—From THE TRIBUNE of May 12, 1933.

This simple statement, in 1933, was the first intimation that possibly there might be something to teaching golf in its fundamental sense to large groups.

There was a deal of scoffing at the announcement, for most of the knowing parties interested in the game felt such a project was too unwieldy. Since it was a new idea, never even suggested before in golf, the full import was misunderstood by many of these doubters. On the face of it, it appeared THE TRIBUNE was attempting to make 70 shooters out of folks who never before had been able to break 100.

It Really Caught on.

This was not the point. The original thought was to prove the sport's simplicity to persons who might have had some idea about taking up the game, but were fearful of the results of their untried swings.

Since the first announcement, 329,000 men, women, and children of the Chicago area have taken instructions from members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association. Of that total, the largest in any group instruction plan in American athletics, 72,000 received lessons last year.

The aggregate of 329,000 includes timid beginners, too conscious of their first appearance on a tee to take up the game, and hundreds of others who might have played a good game for years, but were unmindful of some kink in their swings, which cost them strokes.

It Opens Next Tuesday.

This tenth annual free school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, in conjunction with the Illinois section of the P. G. A. and the Chicago Park district, will open next Tuesday night on the four courses of the park district—Jackson, Marquette, Columbus, and Diversey. Each of the four lessons—on Tuesday, May 5, on Thursday, May 7, on Tuesday, May 12, and on Thursday, May 14, will begin promptly at 7 p. m.

Every pupil is asked to bring a club. If you don't own one, you are asked to borrow one. Students also are asked to appear, if possible, at the course nearest their homes or work, at least 15 minutes before 7 o'clock, so the classes may get under way on time.

The convenient locations of the four courses of the park district, all of which have been used for the last six years of the school, make it easy for any one interested in learning the fundamentals of golf to reach the class rooms.

Convenient to All.

When the school was started in 1933, the courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association were used for the lessons. These were found to be located too far out for many potential pupils who did not have automobiles and hence could not take advantage of the free lessons. All of the four park courses, made available thru the commissioners of the Chicago Park district, are easily reached by rapid transit, bus, and surface lines.

The four courses, and their locations are:

Marquette—Marquette road and Kedzie avenue.

There are no barriers as to sex, age and ability in the school. Every one from 8 to 80 is invited to come out and take lessons from men who have devoted their lives to the game and who have earned their membership in the P. G. A. thru a rigorous five years' apprenticeship.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

ST. LOUIS proudly is calling itself the capital of the wrestling world as the result of a turnout of 12,000 for a show there the other night. . . . That, if we remember correctly, is the same city which had fewer than 6,000 at the Browns' opening home game just after Luke Sewell's boys had won three straight from the White Sox in Chicago. . . . When Ray Meyer assumed his duties as chief of De Paul university basketball the other day, he became the sixth coach Trainer Frank Stevens has greeted in his 17 years at the north side school. . . . The popular and efficient Stevens has served under Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa football coach; Ben Conners, Jim Kelly, Minnesota track coach; Tom Haggerty, now a major in the United States army, and Bill Wendt, Meyer's immediate predecessor. . . . Dr. Frederick Carl Nemitz, new trainer for the Detroit Tigers, was born in Stolp, Pomerania, Germany, but for the last 22 years has lived in Fort Worth, where he contracted a Texas drawl. . . . To Paul White, Michigan's sophomore three sport man, goes the honor of being the most sewed up athlete on the campus. White has seven scars on his body, all but one of which came as a result of injuries in competition. . . . He boasts a total of 46 stitches. . . . Twenty-two of them were needed to repair a shoulder injury suffered in football last fall. . . . Bob Goodkind of Northwestern's tennis team is a candid camera addict, but he's careful whom he snaps these days. . . . While on a South American tour a few years ago, Bob was chased by a knife wielding native because the latter thought Bob's camera was a hex machine. . . .

Vince DiMaggio of the Pirates who is called the best throwing outfielder in the big leagues, developed that right arm hauling fish out of San Francisco bay. . . . Pappy DiMaggio was a professional fisherman and Vince, until the scouts caught up with him, was his chief assistant. . . . Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals had exactly the same number of walks as strikeouts in his first three seasons in the big leagues but last year the opposing pitchers handed him 53 passes while fanning him only 28 times. . . . After all these years, it develops that Jack Dempsey did NOT try to sidestep Harry Wills. . . . Jack claims he signed for two matches with Harry but that both fell thru because of the promoters' changes in plans. In taking over at the University of Maryland, Coach Clark Shaughnessy observed: "I have a bigger job than just coaching football. I want to turn out the sort of men the armed forces need and that is the job to which our program will be dedicated."

Query.

Creator of all earthly things that are,
When Thy hands formed man of strong red clay,
Coulds't Thou even then foresee this day?
Foresee this day of the air raid drill,
Coulds't Thou foresee at the year's young spring
The fear that a siren's cry could bring,
And how the sirens weep and wail,

SABATH COLT SUFFERS LEG CUT FROM NAIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 27.—Alsab, the juvenile champion of 1941 which has been frustrated again and again in his 1942 campaign, was balked today by the most ironic twist of all. On the eve of the Derby trial in which he was to get his last chance to prove that he was coming up to the form which could bring him victory in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, he was struck by the kind of an accident that happens once in a horse's lifetime.

Thru the carelessness of a plater, a nail was left protruding from his left hind shoe. In stamping about his stall Alsab drove the point into his right hind leg. The bleeding was

Defers Estimate until Today.

August [Sarge] Swenke, Alsab's trainer, deferred an estimate of its full implications until tomorrow. It is understood that it might turn out to be a simple cut or the injured member might swell up and handicap the colt's preparation so as to interfere seriously with his preparations for the Derby.

If Alsab is kept out of tomorrow's Derby trial there is no question but the mishap will be grave. It is generally believed that despite his comparatively strenuous campaigning, he needed this race of a mile tomorrow to point him up for the mile and a quarter of the Derby next Saturday. Any interference with routine this late in the game can mean disaster to a Derby horse.

Faces a Strong Field.

In the Derby trial he was to have met the kind of a field that would give him a real race. It included Calumet Farm's speedy Sun Again and Emerson F. Woodward's formidable entry of Valdina Orphan and the Irish horse, Hollywood.

Sun Again, which might have been Alsab's chief challenger for juvenile honors last season if injuries hadn't forced him out of training after winning the Arlington Futurity, will get his last chance tomorrow to satisfy his owner, Warren Wright, and his trainer, Ben Jones, as to whether he belongs in the Derby field on Saturday. He has never before been asked to go a mile—let alone a mile and a quarter—and his handlers have grave doubts that he'll be up to it this week. In fact, they may decide that they have a first class sprinter, in which case they never will ask him to go more than a mile for fear of injuring him.

Hollywood, the rangy, long striding colt from Ireland, will be watched with great interest. He is one of the true dark horses in the Derby field. Tho he never has been beaten, he has raced only three times. But in those limited efforts he has demonstrated that he isn't afraid of either distance or mud.

Valdina Orphan Improved.

Hollywood's stablemate, Valdina Orphan, raced in consistently good company last season and often displayed strong finishing power. His handlers report that he is a much better horse this year than he was in 1941.

The others in the Trial field have

MILITARY SAND HAS GRIT ENOUGH TO WIN BY NECK

And He Pays Sportsman's Bettors $36.40.

This third race at Sportsman's Park yesterday, a test for 2 year old maidens and juveniles, was unpredictable, but the crowd of nearly 10,000 who came out to the little southwest side track might have gone to the hunch side when it saw the colors on the jockey astride this horse.

The horse's name was Military Sand, and the rider's colors not only included red, white, and blue, but a flock of stars. He didn't carry a bugle or a rifle, but if he'd had a goatee and a beaver topper in place of his cap he could have posed as Uncle Sam. Yet the customers suffered a momentary forgetfulness of the fact that there is a war on, and they let Military Sand go to the post at better than 17 to 1.

Johnny Is Overlooked, Too.

They even overlooked the fact, in their hunch coma, that the jockey in question was Johnny Oros, riding scion of a family that includes an owner-mother and a trainer-father. They concentrated their wagering on Prince Puck, a son of Port-Au-Prince, to such an extent that they sent him out of the gate a 6 to 5 favorite.

True, the Prince tried hard, and did encounter some congestion as they reached the first turn in the four and one-half furlong race, but the way Fin Try and Military Sand were rushing along at him it is doubtful whether he could have withstood the latter's pace. Military Sand charged so willingly under Oros' riding that he finished a neck in front of Prince Puck and came within a fifth of tying the Sportsman's Park record of :58 1-5 seconds, set last year by James Quest.

Tannoct Starts for Home.

The winner paid $36.40, while Prince Puck returned $3.40 to place. The contest was made even more exciting by the unexpected departure of Jockey Andy Lo Turco from the saddle of his mount, Tannoct. Tannoct decided to head for the stables just as they entered the homestretch, and young Lo Turco found himself on the turf between the rail and the inside edge with the wind knocked out of him. He was sufficiently recovered, however, to ride Topsy Olive in the next race.

Bob's Way, a 4 year old colt of whose dad, Gallant Fox, you may have heard, won the hard way in the Cicero purse, a $1,200 job at a mile and 70 yards, that featured the day's racing and evoked the biggest single race cash interest of the day—$35,702. It was labor for Robert all the way, but he made it in a photo finish over Chi, which had jumped into the lead at the start and stretched his advantage at one time to two lengths.

MacAndrew Scores Triple.

Don MacAndrew, the youthful Yankee who did quite a spot of riding at Sportsman's Park last season, dashed himself off a triple yesterday with his victory on Miss Militant in the Garfield Park purse, the secondary feature. Miss Militant and MacAndrew had their troubles in the early going, but Donald steered the P. L. Kelley filly wide and overtook Golden Goose in the stretch, winning by a half a length and paying $6.80. Prior to this, MacAndrew had scored easily on Huri Hom Hari in the fourth by four lengths, and on Millfang in the first.

Today and every Tuesday during the meeting will be ladies day. Women will be admitted to the track upon payment of 30 cents covering the state and federal taxes.

On May 6, which will be Army and Navy Relief fund day, the jockeys, agents, and valets will donate one-half their earnings to the fund. This was announced today by William F. Gillispie, secretary of the Jockey guild. Andy Lo Turco announced that he'll donate his entire earnings on that day.

HAPPY WINNER forged to the front going to the first turn, showed in front for a sixteenth mile then gave way when the winner challenged, held on with determination to the final furlong then weakened. REDBERRY was pinched off at the start, trailed the field to the first turn, then moved up steadily while saving ground, finished gamely in the final drive. DARBY DALLAS raced in spots, was never able to improve his position. JAY D. BANE was forced to take up sharply entering the first turn when in tight quarters. OCEAN BOUND, well up from the start, was in closest pursuit of the winner after going the first quarter mile, finished gamely in the final drive but was no match for the winner. Latter always within striking distance of the pace, closed strongly on the outside turning for home, was closing on the winner at the end. FIN TRY showed in front for the first quarter mile, dropped back slightly when the winner took command, held on with good energy to the last sixteenth mile then weakened. VALDINA KATE could never improve her position. MIGHTY LUCKY closed a big gap in the last quarter mile. KING EPITHET raced wide the entire distance. Lipe's Elevens Win 103, Lose 19 at Thornton

Jack Lipe, who has been athletic director and head football coach at Thornton High school in Harvey 15 years, has compiled an enviable record on the gridiron. His teams have won 103 games, lost 19, and tied 12 for a percentage of .816. . . . Frank Froschauer, former star back at Illinois, has been handling the freshman-sophomore squad for three years, during which time they have not lost a game.

Tiny Huddlestun, who has been at Thornton for 10 years, is line coach and Paul Beck handles the varsity back field men. . . . Beck is a newcomer, hailing from Oblong, Ill., where he made a name for himself as a basketball coach.

In spring practice, now under way, two newcomers from the freshman-sophomore team are being watched closely by the coaches. . . . They are Bob McKinnon and Louis Benson. . . . Benson runs hard and fast and has plenty of power. . . . He is a brother of Ira Benson, regular full back last year. . . . A third brother, Bob, is a candidate for a guard position.

One of the two open spots on the St. Philip High school football schedule for this coming fall will be filled by Harrison of the Chicago Public High School league on Friday night, Sept. 18. . . . The west siders will conclude their season by traveling to Dubuque, Ia., on Nov. 15 to oppose Loras academy.

Evanston is expected to make a strong showing this year in tennis. . . . The team is paced by Junior Davis Cup Champion Lawrence Daly. Others who have been playing regularly in the dual practice matches are Paul Cook, Jim Griffin, Bob Walkmeyer, Stewart MacDonald, and Jack Wallace.

RECORDS FALL AS PIMLICO SPRING MEETING OPENS

Baltimore, April 27 (AP).—Battle Jack, carrying the Sky Blue colors of J. W. Y. Martin, a director of the Maryland Jockey club, raced to his second record smashing victory in the Baltimore spring handicap today as Pimlico's spring meeting opened before 10,000 fans.

The 7 year old son of John P. Grier-Unfurled, given a front running ride by Jockey Paul Keiper, ran six furlongs in 1:11 to clip one-fifth of a second off the stake record he set when he won the event in 1940. His time also was only one-fifth of a second over the track record.

Impound Trails by Length.

Second choice in the wagering, Battle Jack returned $7.20, $4.30, and $3. Impound paid $7.40 to place and Transfigure, $2.90 to show.

Hasteville Breaks Record.

A track record fell in the Lockwood purse for 2 year olds when Mrs. Gustave Ring's Hasteville, a first time starter, turned four and a half furlongs in 52 3-5 seconds to clip four-fifths of a second off the record set in 1926 by Dignus a 2 to 0 Chicago lead. After Novikoff and Stringer had congratulated each other on their hitting feats, Peanuts Lowrey, who was included in the team's latest lineup arrangement, shot a single into left, but Chico Hernandez popped to Frey.

With one out in the fifth, Hack poked a single into right and Merullo assisted with a single to left, Hack taking third and Merullo dashing down to second on the throw. Nicholson sat down after getting word that a third strike had floated past. A pass to Phil Cavarretta loaded the bases. Novikoff, tho no speed merchant, beat out a slow roller toward third, Hack scoring. Stringer then lined one to right but it became the third out when Ival Goodman, sprinting toward the line at top speed, grabbed the ball with his gloved hand.

Hi Bithorn Says Goodby.

Bithorn approached his sixth inning exit by degrees. He didn't surrender a hit until the third. In the fourth, Goodman and Bert Haas nicked him for singles with one out, but he weathered this threat. He refused to become disturbed about a pass and single in the fifth.

But the sixth was different. Goodman led off with a double and Haas walked. Gerald Walker pushed a single past Hack to score Goodman and put Haas on third from where he hiked home on F. McCormick's fly to Lowrey. A two bagger boomed off Joost's bat and out went Bithorn. Erickson then walked Lamanno, fanned Vander Meer and got M. McCormick on a pop foul to Hernandez.

Big Ole encountered a slight disturbance in the seventh. Goodman worked him for a pass with one out, but the gift proved inconsequential. In the eighth F. McCormick belted his season's third homer over the left field fence. Joost then fanned and Lamanno walked, but Vander Meer and M. McCormick were easy. In the last three innings only one Red survived and this was on the fourth pass issued by Erickson.

HORSEMEN OF THIS CAMP ARE BIT LIKE BUSMEN

Riding After Hours Sport at Fort Oglethorpe.

BY JOSEPH MORANG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., April 27.—Most army camps have intramural and interpost sports programs on varying planes, but this small military reservation on the Georgia slope of the Great Smokies is strictly an exception to the general rule.

Oglethorpe is overshadowed both geographically and numerically by the vast stretches of Fort Benning not far from here, but the men stationed on this post wouldn't change places with men of any other camp in the country, and when they tell you that you can see they mean it.

A medical regiment and a cavalry regiment comprise the personnel, and when liberty or recreation call sounds each evening after the boys have put in a day on their spirited mounts, what do you suppose they consider their best form of fun and exercise? Riding!

Among Army's Best Horsemen.

Men of Oglethorpe surely must rate with the best horsemen in the army, for most of them are here by choice and because handling a horse—not quite eclipsed by the mechanization of the world's armies—is what most of them can do best.

Still, riding thru drill formations hour after hour at measured pace isn't too exhilarating after the first few weeks of it, and the men leap at the chance to indulge in a little equestrianism for pleasure.

Riding for sport has been coördinated to the extent of nightly polo—usually of the pickup variety, tho tournaments have been planned—and cross-country point-to-point events on holidays.

Play Impromptu Softball.

Of course, there is the usual run of impromptu softball, an item almost as natural in an army camp as the blare of a bugle, and Oglethorpe has dabbled in boxing in a small way, twice having invaded Camp Forrest for team matches which ended somewhat disastrously. Camp Forrest has as good a boxing team as any post in the nation.

But defeats have failed to dampen Oglethorpe's enthusiasm for boxing and it continues to be the only sport in addition to riding in which men of this post exhibit interest.

Fishing nearby is excellent, but few indulge. The creeks and rivers are full of bass, pike and trout requiring the expert use of fly and rod. Few of the men are thus equipped, and the pan fishermen are out of luck because the bluegills, perch, crappies, and bullheads of northern rivers simply are not to be found in these mountain streams.

Yet the men are as happy as those at any camp in the service. The post is small and compact, and a fellow always has a lot of friends.

"We don't have nationally famous basketball or baseball teams," they say. "We don't even care about them. We like to ride and all are given full opportunity to do so. We haven't yet found any camp that will compete against us in horsemanship—and that includes point-to-point, drilling, polo, handling of horses, and jumping events. And we're quite satisfied with it all."

Willie Joyce Gives Tony Ferrara a 10 Round Lesson

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Willie Joyce, rangy lightweight from Gary, Ind., gave Tony Ferrara, New York welterweight a boxing lesson in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens last night. The decision of referee Bernard Weissman and Judges James Lynch and George Kenny was unanimous.

It was Joyce's third triumph in five contests with 147 pounders. Altho Joyce landed solid blows in several rounds, notably in the tenth there was no semblance of a knockdown.

Ramey McKnight, Milwaukee 145 pounder, outpointed Eddie Carson in a six round event. Harold Lang, giant boxer from Seward Park, pounded out a victory over Jim Sullivan of Youngstown, O., in four rounds. George Feltes, Great Lakes middleweight, held Jesse Jackson to a draw in a four round opener.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES RULING ON MILK CARTONS

Wants Issue Settled by State Tribunal.

A six year fight for the right to deliver milk in paper containers in Chicago came back to Cook county yesterday after the United States Supreme court refused to settle a dispute between the city and the state of Illinois.

The Supreme court action consisted of returning to the federal District court a petition of the Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., for a declaratory judgment holding a Chicago ordinance against paper containers invalid and an injunction restraining the city from interfering with Fieldcrest use of paper containers.

In returning the case to the District court, the Supreme court instructed the lower court to await a determination of proceedings in the state court. The dairy has been delivering milk in paper containers for two years under an injunction granted by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in October, 1940, and a second injunction granted in December, 1940, by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

The original action was filed in the federal court, according to counsel for the dairy, because Fieldcrest is a Michigan corporation and because of the plea for declaratory judgment which could not be had in state courts.

The action of the Supreme court thus leaves the case in status quo and final settlement of the dispute between the city and state will come from the Illinois Supreme court.

It has been the city's contention that it has the right to prohibit delivery of milk in paper containers, despite a state law passed in July, 1939, permitting the use. Fred A. Gariepy, counsel for the dairy, argued before the high court last month that the Chicago ordinance deprives the company of property without due process of law.

Albert E. Hallett, an assistant to the attorney general, supported the dairy's point and argued that the city is powerless to prohibit use of the paper containers which the state law specifically permits. Hallett also agreed with justices of the court when they said the issue between the state and city should be settled in the state.

Hodes Claims Victory.

A statement from the office of Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes yesterday called the Supreme court action a victory for the city.

"It is not correct that the city has won this lawsuit," replied Sam E. Dean Sr., head of the Dean Milk company, a Fieldcrest affiliate. "The Dean company will continue its fight for the right to sell and deliver milk in Chicago in the safe and convenient paper bottle. The paper bottle is used thruout the nation without political interference."

A point argued by Hallett before the Supreme court was that the Chicago ordinance was designed to give a monopoly to glass bottle manufacturers.

REPORTS POLICE CAPTAIN TO ASK DELAY IN PROBE

Assistant Corporation Counsel Carl H. Lundquist said he was informed yesterday there would be a delay in the hearing scheduled for tomorrow of charges against Capt. Martin E. McCormick, former head of the morals division of the police department. Meanwhile, the state's attorney's office turned its gambling investigation from the city to the county and arrested Nick Visco, 6327 West Cermak road, Berwyn, for questioning regarding the Vogel slot machine syndicate.

Lundquist said he was told Capt. McCormick would ask a continuance until after the hearing on charges against two of his former subordinates on the gambling detail, Policemen Fred L. Trauth and James E. Kehoe. The patrolmen are under suspension and hence should be tried first, Lundquist said.

State's Attorney Courtney ordered Visco be taken before the grand jury at once. Visco was believed to be one of the men listed on the Guzik collection sheet which came into the possession of THE TRIBUNE last October.

The ledger showed twelve collectors had turned over to the syndicate, headed by Jack Guzik, the sum of $99,235 as profits from slot machines in Cook county during the month of July, 1941. One of the collectors, listed as Nicky, turned over $5,580.

SOUTH SIDE ACTS IN DRIVE AGAINST LAKE POLLUTION

Delegates of 32 south side civic and community organizations last night attended a meeting of the Ridge Civic council in a renewed effort to push means of putting an end to lake pollution. The meeting was held in the Ridge Park fieldhouse and a three point program was adopted.

It was presented by Attorney Luther D. Swanstrom, chairman of the legislative committee, and embodied proposals for a letter campaign by all the organizations to:

1. Exert influence on Donald Nelson and the War Production board to relax priorities so the needed items to finish the south side treatment plant can be provided;

2. Support all authorities and individuals who are seeking a rehearing on diversion before the United States Supreme court, and

3. Support Rep. Adolph Sabath and others in congress to pass the Sabath bill asking for additional diversion of water from the lake.

SH! WHO'S THAT AFTER MRS. KOPP? WHY, MR. KOPP!

Mrs. Florence Kopp, 4931 North Monitor avenue, came yesterday into the Jefferson Park station. "This man is annoying me," she said, pointing to the man following meekly behind her. "He followed me all the way out from the loop."

Questioning by Sergt. Jim Smith developed that the man was her estranged husband, Peter, 5536 North Marmora avenue. After much insistence on her part, she was allowed to bring disorderly conduct charges against him.

She hadn't been gone 10 minutes before the man thought of something. "Goodness!" said he, "I haven't registered yet."

So the police obligingly took him over to the Pershing school, saw him registered, and brought him back to a cell to await court appearance today.

PARTNER'S BULLET COSTS COP HERO'S LIFE IN ACCIDENT

A Chicago policeman tearfully told a coroner's jury yesterday how he accidentally shot and killed his partner, Policeman Martin C. McCaw, during a scuffle with two drunken men in a vacant lot at 653 Blue Island avenue a few hours before. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death absolving Policeman Louis Onixt of all blame.

Policeman McCaw, who won THE TRIBUNE'S $100 fire and police hero award last January for rescuing five persons trapped in an apartment fire, was 34 years old and lived at 5608 South Emerald avenue. His widow, Mary, and five children survive.

Onixt told the jury his revolver discharged when he slipped and fell. The bullet struck McCaw in the head as he grappled with one of the drunken men. Both escaped after the shooting.

An official of the Policeman's Annuity and Benefit fund said Mrs. McCaw would receive $1,800 a year, $1,500 for herself and $300 for the five children, if the board rules McCaw was killed in the line of duty. He said there was some question of "line of duty death" since McCaw was accidentally shot by another policeman, and not by a criminal.

MACHINISTS WILL VOTE ON LOWER INITIATION FEE

Members of locals 48, 49 and 50, International Machinists' union, will be summoned to a special meeting Thursday or Friday to vote on a proposal to reduce the union's initiation fees for workers in defense plants from $100 to $10 or less. A previous proposal for such a move was opposed, union lealers said, by the membership.

A committee of union leaders met last night to consider what could be done to meet the complaint of employers that they could not get skilled men because of the high initiation fee, and of the army and navy that the shortage is responsible for delay of war production.

Those at the meeting decided to refer the question to a committee of the district council, which will make a definite recommendation for vote of the members. Harvey Brown, international president and a foremost advocate of the $10 or less initiation fee, has been opposed by old members of the union and new members who recently paid their $100 to get in.

Mr. Corby had been secretary of Swift's since 1930 and had been with the company since 1918. Before that, for many years, he had been assistant secretary and stock transfer agent of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad. Mr. Corby was born in New York City 61 years ago.

ATTORNEY ADDS NEW TANGLE TO DILLING DIVORCE

Another tangle developed yesterday in the Dilling divorce case when Attorney Maurice T. Weinshenk appeared before Judge Rudolph Desort at 1 p. m. and obtained 30 days' more time to file an answer for Albert W. Dilling to the divorce action of Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, author-crusader.

Weinshenk was fired by Dilling last week for attempting to link Mrs. Dilling with Nazi agents, but until Dilling retains a new lawyer Weinshenk still is his attorney of record.

An hour after Weinshenk obtained the extra 30 days, Mrs. Dilling and her lawyer, Theodore W. Miller, appeared before Judge Desort. They complained that Weinshenk had notified them he would appear in court at 2 p. m. By appearing an hour earlier, they said, he had tricked them. Miller said he would return to court today and ask that the 30 day delay be canceled and that Weinshenk be held in contempt.

BUSINESS GROUPS GIVEN PLAN FOR NATION'S PEACETIME ROLE

Lend-Lease Offered as Basis of World Collaboration.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A pattern for peace in which the lend-lease activities of the United States would be a basic part was outlined by speakers last night at a dinner meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce in the Stevens hotel.

The principal speakers emphasized the significant rôle that this country will take in the organization of the world after the axis powers are beaten. The outlines for the peace to come, they suggested, are being set by the present collaboration among the united nations.

The principal speakers were Prof. John B. Condliffe of the University of California, and D. G. McKenzie, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The international dinner at which they spoke was the major event of the first day of the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce which is being held in Chicago for the first time in 24 years.

Peace Planning Part of War.

"The only chance we have," he said, "of restoring peaceful production and trade, of preserving a measure of free enterprise, maintaining employment and living standards, is so to conduct the war effort as to lay now, during the war, the foundations of the kind of world we want. We are learning that to get the maximum production we must break thru the rigidities and monopolies and privileges that have hampered private enterprise. Any progress that we make in this direction not only wins the war; it helps also to win the peace."

Self-interest dictates that the United States continue its present collaboration with other united nations when the war ends, he said.

Collaboration Necessary.

"There will be tremendous problems of impoverishment, demoralization, and economic dislocation. The only organization that can possibly deal effectively with these problems will be the machinery of collaboration established by the united nations in the course of the war. If disaster is to be avoided in Europe and Asia, immediate steps must be taken to check the spread of disease, to prevent starvation, a wholesale stoppage of industry. Food will be needed urgently and in large quantities. Shipping priorities must be worked out carefully, not only in regard to the types of food most urgently needed and readily available. Fertilizers, machine tools, raw materials of many kinds must be ranked in order of priority. The only possibility of effective action is to prepare them now."

Urges Tariff Removal.

The distribution of needed goods among the nations of the world, to the defeated countries as well as others, is a necessary preliminary, Condliffe said, to establishing a sound world order in which trade is permitted to grow unfettered by national restrictions.

To accomplish such a world order, he added, it will mean the surrender by the United States of its historic policy of tariff protectionism.

The time to begin tearing down the tariffs, he asserted, is now when the step can be taken with less disturbance to domestic economy than during peace times.

McKenzie also emphasized the chaotic economic conditions with which the world will be faced when the war ends.

Trade to Be Altered.

"London may no longer be the financial and trading center of the world," he said. "The conditions of international trade will be terrifically altered and the whole basis of international finance will have to serve more adequately the world's need."

The standards of living needed to assure a permanent peace will have to be defined, he said. He cited the example of more than a century of mutual understanding and peace between this country and Canada as an ideal for which the world may strive.

Earlier delegates heard speakers describe how industry is filling its wartime assignments and some of the problems that are involved.

Industry's progress in finding substitutes for scarce materials preempted for war use was described by J. W. Follin, director of the Producers council, trade association of the construction material industry.

Research on Overtime.

The research staffs of all suppliers of construction materials are working overtime to produce new materials and new uses for old materials, Follin said. Among the products competing with steel, Follin listed lumber, concrete, and structural clay products. These industries are making engineering advances and developing new techniques which are widening the uses of their products.

Nearly 3,000 delegates are attending the national chamber's convention which will continue thru Thursday.

Capt. Eddie V. Rickenbacker, World war ace and president of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., will speak at the organization dinner tonight. His speech will be broadcast by station W-G-N at 9 p. m. Speakers who will address the convention today include Rep. Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the house judiciary committee; Roy C. Ingersoll, president of Ingersoll Steel and Disc division of Borg Warner corporation and Albert W. Hawkes, president of the chamber.

HAWKES DOUBTS WISDOM OF PAY 'CEILING' PLANS

Albert W. Hawkes.

Albert W. Hawkes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said yesterday that his "first reaction" to the $25,000 individual net income maximum proposed by President Roosevelt was that such a ceiling would "cause dislocations that would be most unfortunate."

Hawkes, who is president and chairman of Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., warned that the setting of an income limit requires careful consideration and that no step which might threaten unity and coöperation should be taken. He said that it is generally recognized that a large number of those who have high earning power also have heavy expenses.

"I believe every American should recognize the necessity of winning the war and preserving our American way of life," Hawkes declared. "To preserve our American way of life it is, of course, necessary for the living generation to pay as much of the war bill as is possible without destroying our institutions or unjustly affecting established living standards. It is my firm conviction that most men in the higher brackets are willing to make their full contribution."

The following Chicagoans were among the early registrants at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States: Philip R. O'Brien, president of the Board of Trade; Roy C. Ingersoll, president of the Ingersoll Steel and Disc division of the Borg-Warner corporation, and John W. O'Leary, chairman of Arthur J. O'Leary & Son Co., steel fabricator, and chairman of the executive committee of the national chamber of commerce.

Roy C. Ingersoll.

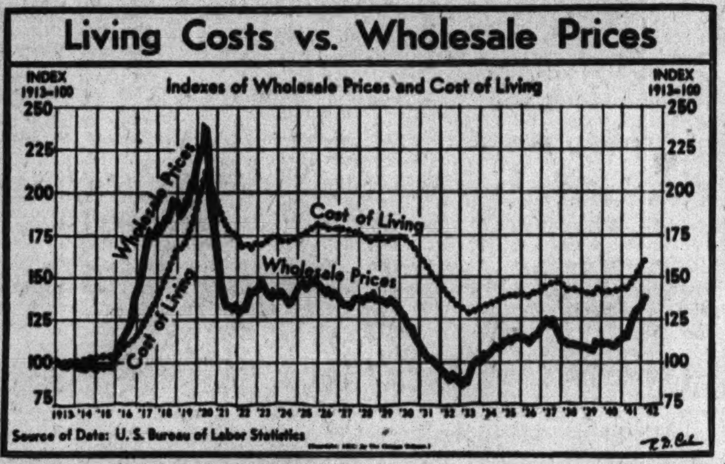
The Farm Equipment Institute of Chicago won the main award in the 10th annual contest conducted by the American Trade Association Executives, who met in the Blackstone hotel in conjunction with the national chamber of commerce meeting. The presentation was made at a luncheon by John H. Morse, chief of the division of commercial and economic information of the department of commerce, who represented Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones. The award, a bronze medallion, was given in recognition of the institute's aid to its industry and the war effort in making a survey of the materials essential to farm equipment production. Eight other trade associations received certificates of honorable mention.

American exporters and importers should not put the country's future foreign trade in danger by "the vague assumption that the future must take care of itself," Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade council, New York City, said at the Chicago World Trade conference in the Stevens. The conference, sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Export Managers club of Chicago, was attended by 500 exporters and importers from cities thruout the country. Thomas urged the foreign sales departments of American companies to maintain their trade mechanisms, even tho the war has reduced foreign trade.

Eugene P. Thomas.

The big job of registering the 3,000 persons expected at the meeting is in the charge of Mrs. Martha Dennison, chief of the chamber's membership division.

Those attending the national chamber of commerce meeting who were required to register for selective service were accommodated by a special registration center in the Stevens hotel. Approximately 400 of the 45 thru 64 age group had registered there by early afternoon.



UTILITY LOSES PLEA FOR WARTIME TRUCE ON DEATH SENTENCE

Philadelphia, Pa., April 27 [Special].—The Securities and Exchange commission, backing with action its frequent warnings that there would be no slackening of "death sentence" proceedings because of the war, today denied a motion by the Central Illinois Public Service company that its case be suspended until peacetime.

The SEC order was handed down just five days after the company filed the motion, in which it suggested that such proceedings hardly were a necessary part of the war effort and might be dispensed with until peace returns. The order is expected to serve as a precedent for similar motions, two of which now are before the commission.

The litigation was started by the SEC last October under the corporate recapitalization phase of section 11 of the holding company act.

INT'L HARVESTER BOARD UNDECIDED ON UNION CLAUSE

Directors of International Harvester company met for more than three hours in Chicago yesterday but reported they reached no decision concerning the provision in the War Labor board's April 15 order which directed the company to sign a maintenance of union membership contract with the majority union.

The company announced that it has notified the board by letter that it will agree to the wage increases provided in the order. It said it did not believe the increases were justifiable, because [1] the company is paying as high or higher wages than other industries in the communities; [2] wages have gone up faster than the cost of living; and, [3] continuance of the policy of granting wage increases is certain to result in inflation. The company also agreed to hire union stewards but said it "does not believe this is a sound labor principle."

EASTMAN CALLS FOR ORGANIZED TRANSPORT PLAN

Washington, D. C., April 27 [Special].—Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, called upon the entire nation tonight to organize a war transportation program. This call was issued simultaneously to the governors of every state and to the mayors and other chief executives of every town and city with a population of 10,000 or more.

It was also announced that plans are being made to mobilize smaller communities and rural areas in a systematic drive to get the most efficient service possible from existing transportation facilities.

Each governor was asked to place administration of the program in the hands of the state highway traffic advisory committee.

HOTELS ARE TOLD PRIME BEEF IS GETTING SCARCER

Hotels and restaurants will find prime beef increasingly difficult to obtain, J. S. Campbell, in charge of live stock and meats for the Chicago office of the department of agriculture, told the Chicago chapter of the Catering Executives Club of America at the Morrison hotel last night. He said rising feed costs will make it more profitable for farmers to sell cattle as good or medium grade beef.

Fred Mangler, vice president of Davidson Meat Packing company, urged hotels and restaurants to make one meat delivery a day suffice, so tires and labor can be conserved. M. O. Cullen, director of the merchandising department of the National Livestock and Meat board, suggested slower cooking to conserve meats, asserting the average hotel or restaurant can save 15 to 20 per cent of roasts in this manner.

Is Yours a War Industry?
Is Washington Your Bottleneck?

Somewhere in the Chicagoland district there is a company, which, in order to make the largest possible contribution to the success of our armed forces, needs the services of an experienced, highly skilled executive who is thoroughly familiar with all phases of management, who knows from experience how to get things done in Washington and who can furnish inspiring leadership.

I want to get in touch with that company, and believe this ad is the quickest way to make contact. I'm not looking for a job in the usual sense; I am not unemployed—never have been—and if we weren't at war this ad would not have been published.

However, we are at war and since my present work, which pays me more than one thousand dollars per month, is non-essential I want to make a connection where my experience, energy, and ability can be fully utilized on war work.

If your company needs this type of executive assistance I'll be glad to hear from you and we can arrange a conference for a detailed discussion. I might add that I am a few months past 45 and that the job is more important than the compensation.

Inland Steel Tells View on CIO Demands

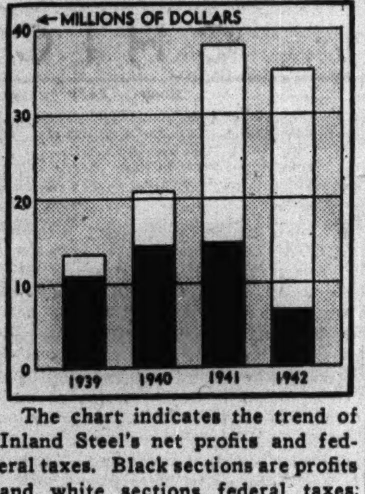
Inland Steel company yesterday made public a statement of its position on the Steel Workers' Organizing committee's demands for wage increases, the closed shop, and the checkoff. Inland is a member of the so-called "Little Steel" group involved in CIO labor disputes.

The War Labor board has been holding closed hearings in Washington for the last two months for presentation of evidence in the dispute. These hearings are reported drawing to a close and public hearings are expected to be called shortly.

Warns Nation Will Pay.

"Not steel, but the nation's war effort and the nation's millions of nonunion citizens will pay the price if the CIO wins its demands," the company asserted "They will pay thru uncontrollable inflation and thru loss of the average man's rights."

"Inland's wages and those of the steel industry are much higher than wages in almost all other industries," the statement said. "The largest single group of Inland employés receives an average annual salary of more than $2,000. The average annual rate of earnings of all Inland employés is $1,993, a figure approximately $500 in excess of the average for all employés in business, agriculture, and government.



The chart indicates the trend of Inland Steel's net profits and federal taxes. Black sections are profits and white sections federal taxes. Totals for 1942 are estimated.

Hourly Earnings Compared.

"Inland's average hourly earnings rate is $1.03, while the average of all employés covered by old age and survivors' insurance—some 30 million—is only 64.8 cents."

The company asserted that a wage increase "of such magnitude as asked by the CIO" would be highly inflationary.

"The whole philosophy of the wage demand is that members of the CIO are entitled to the same standard of living—or an even higher standard of living—as usual during the war," the company said. "There is no real reason, however, why one group should be singled out and afforded complete immunity from sacrifice.

"The closed shop demand is an obvious attempt by union leaders to use the war emergency to build up their personal power and security. It is an attempt to entrench themselves against the peacetime return of unemployed soldiers and sailors into the ranks of industry."

SETS WAR'S CUT IN SEARS' SALES AT 100 MILLION

Wood Tells Trends at Annual Session.

New York, April 27 (AP).—Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., told stockholders here today that the huge mail order enterprise had lost about 100 million dollars in sales as a result of the war.

Six lines of business which formerly accounted for a large part of total volume have been about wiped out—refrigerators, tires, stoves, washing machines, electrical appliances, and radios, he said.

Some of the volume, however, Wood said at the company's annual meeting, will be made up in other lines. For example, he said the company now offers for sale baby chicks and rugs and other soft lines.

How long such merchandise can be used to offset the loss of durable goods is anybody's guess, he said.

Three Month Sales Up.

Sales in the first three months of 1942 were about 11 per cent ahead of a year ago, while operating profits have been double those of last year, he said, but added:

"The net result to the stockholder will depend on the size of the new tax bill. It is the intention of directors, however, to be just as liberal as they can in the matter of dividends."

Wood commented that he believed that Sears would not make as much money this fall as at present, and that sales would decline in the fall.

He guessed that 1942 profits would be under those of 1941 and that taxes would take about 70 per cent of the operating profit.

The company's current inventory position is good, Wood said. It has large commitments for goods, but whether it can get all it has ordered is a moot question.

Predicts Inventory Losses.

Asked about possible inventory losses after the war, Wood said that such losses would be unavoidable and "that is why the company is setting up reserves now for just such a contingency."

Charles E. Humm, controler of the company, was named a director, vice president, and secretary, as well as controler. He has been with the company since 1925.

OPA SETS LOWER PRICE TOPS ON COTTON, RAYONS

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Substantially lower permanent prices of finished piece goods made of cotton, rayon, or cotton and rayon mixtures were imposed by the OPA today at manufacturers and wholesalers' level.

The permanent ceiling replaces a 60 day order issued in March which put a temporary price lid on these textiles at the levels of March 7-11. The new ceiling is effective May 4.

Simultaneously the OPA fixed maximum charges which converters may obtain for their costs of processing "gray goods" into finished textiles by bleaching, dyeing, napping, printing, or mercerizing.

New York, April 27 (AP).—J. P. Morgan & Co., largest nonmember bank in the country, today was admitted to membership in the federal reserve system.

Treasury to Borrow 4 Billion Dollars in Next Two Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today announced a colossal borrowing operation totaling 4 billion dollars in new money [not refunding] during May and June, one of the biggest financing operations in the treasury's history.

Details were not disclosed, but Morgenthau said the treasury's current cash position indicates that this amount of new money will be needed to finance government operations. The new borrowing will be divided evenly, 2 billions in each month.

Added to Bond Sale Drive.

This huge operation, of course, will supplement the campaign to sell war savings bonds and stamps, for which a nation-wide goal of 600 million dollars in such bonds has been set for May, the first month of the intensified "door knocking" drive to sell every wage earner bonds totaling at least 10 per cent of earnings. In June the goal for war bond sales is 800 millions and in July 1 billion dollars. The monthly average upon which the new quotas are based has been 438 millions.

Seeks Borrowing Power

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Legislation authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to issue notes, bonds, and debentures in the sum of 5 billion dollars in excess of existing authority was introduced today in the senate by Chairman Wagner of the senate banking committee. The existing lending authority of the RFC is approximately 10 billion dollars.

New I. C. Train Starts Run to South Sunday

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Moving to meet the demands of increased military and war traffic, the Illinois Central railroad disclosed yesterday that it will place its new streamlined high speed Panama Limited in service Sunday between Chicago and New Orleans. The new train will run the 921 miles in 18 hours—two hours faster than at present—but it is expected that the 18 hours will be reduced substantially when the pressure on the railroads is eased after the war.

The new Panama is an all-Pullman train which will be pulled by a 4,000 horsepower Diesel electric lomomotive—one for each direction. It was ordered eight months before America entered the war.

Two Full Trains Required.

Probably the last train to emerge from the car builders' shops, the new Panama incorporates the last minute developments in the art of passenger train construction. It will require two full trains to fill the service—one for each direction between Chicago and New Orleans.

Each train will consist of 9 cars, including sleeping, lounge, observation, dining and dormitory baggage cars. Altho the decorative designs are modern, the spirit is that of the south, emphasizing the old world charm of New Orleans, the picturesqueness of South and Central America and the vivid colors of Mexico.

A complete automatic telephone dialing system connects all the sleeping cars with the dining, lounge, and observation cars. Individual radio receiving sets are located in the observation, lounge, and dining cars. A public address system permits announcements in public spaces thruout the train.

Has Speed Indicators.

Speed indicators are located in the observation and lounge cars—a convenience which has proved popular in other of the country's leading trains. The lounge is decorated in the South American style and the bar is a reproduction of an 18th century patio from the old French quarter of New Orleans.

The new Panama is being placed in service after many years of demand for a streamliner to link Chicago and New Orleans.

When the new train goes into operation Chicago will have direct streamlined train connection with every section of the nation except the northeast thru Boston. However Boston may be reached by streamlined train via New York.

On its new schedule the Panama limited will leave Chicago at 1 p. m. and arrive in New Orleans at 9 a. m. the next day. Northbound it will leave New Orleans at 2 p. m. and arrive in Chicago at 8 a. m.

PULLMAN TO REFUSE REFUNDS ON TICKETS NOT CANCELED EARLY

Travelers who do not release sleeping or parlor car accommodations they have reserved in time for this space to be resold will not be eligible for refunds under the new tariff filed by the Pullman company with the Interstate Commerce commission to become effective May 20, George A. Kelly, Pullman vice president, said yesterday.

The new tariff provides that Pullman tickets will not be redeemed "unless the space reserved is released for resale, and the number of the ticket erased from the diagram in advance of departure of the train for which sold." Travelers who miss connections due to delayed arrival of a connecting train will get refunds as heretofore.

Kelly explained military forces at times require more than a third of the entire sleeping car fleet, and the new rule is necessary to prevent needed space from being unused.

GREEN SELECTS 5 FOR PARLEY ON TRADE BARRIER

Gov. Green yesterday directed five state officials to attend a federal-state conference in Washington, D. C., May 5, 6, and 7 to consider elimination of state trade barriers.

President Roosevelt, contending that some of the barriers hamper the war effort, invited representatives of the states to attend the conference under chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones.

Representatives from Illinois selected were Francis Murphy, labor director; Walter A. Rosenfield, public works director; Judge John D. Biggs, chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission; T. P. Sullivan, director of public safety, and Howard Leonard, agriculture director.

Steel Mills Hike Ingot Output Rate Near Peak

New York, April 27 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel institute estimated today that America's steel mills would operate this week at 98.9 per cent of capacity and produce 1,679,900 net tons of ingots. Operations last week were at 97.6 per cent of capacity and production was 1,657,900 tons. The all-time high rate was 99 per cent in the week of March 23. Better scrap collections and return to service of furnaces which had been shut down for repairs were credited with the sharp rise in output of steel.

FCC HEAD HINTS ACTION IF PHONE RATE IS RAISED

Eyes Any Such Move to Meet Dividends.

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications commission said today that any move by the American Telephone and Telegraph company to increase rates to maintain its customary $9 a share dividend is a matter to which "congress may well want to give its serious consideration."

James L. Fly.

Fly read a statement made to American Telephone and Telegraph stockholders by Walter S. Gifford, president, in which Gifford said increased war taxes might make it necessary for the company to ask increased rates if the $9 dividend is to be earned this year.

"The $9 dividend has been earned for many years and paid every year even thruout the great depression," Fly told a press conference. "But that the $9 dividend be earned as well as paid in this year of our greatest national need can hardly be deemed a military necessity."

Says Congress Might Act.

"That the people of this country may be asked at this time to shoulder this burden of many millions of dollars of added telephone charges throut the nation is a matter to which congress may well want to give its serious consideration."

Fly said that the telephone system was "one of the most essential of war industries" and that it must be maintained in a healthy and efficient condition, but added:

"If this great issue as to the imposition of an unnecessary large burden is to be placed upon the American people at a time like this, then it must follow that the legislative and administrative bodies will want promptly to consider the establishment of such controls as will adequately protect the national public interest.

"Of National Concern."

"Indeed at this juncture our telephone system as a whole is a matter of national concern and the greatest need indicated may well be a national want."

In response to questioning, Fly said he did not believe nationalization of the telephone system was essential and added he had no reason to "anticipate action by the telephone company to require nationalization."

Fly pointed out, however, that a Bell [American Telephone and Telegraph] system in Iowa, where there is no state regulatory system, had already proposed higher rates, and asserted that such actions did not help the company.

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Arrangements were completed today by the treasury to lend 40,000 tons of silver to the Defense Plant corporation for use as a substitute for copper in aluminum plants.

The amounts of securities and cash at December 31, 1941, were evidenced by certificates of the various Trustees. Interest and dividend income of the various funds, as shown by records of the various Trustees, was tested with published statistics, and all disbursements for charitable purposes approved by the Trustees were found to be in agreement with the recorded proceedings of the Committee.

In accordance with the established practice of the Committee, no consideration has been given to the differences between book values and present market values of real estate and securities owned. The books are kept on a cash receipts and disbursements basis.

In our opinion, subject to the foregoing, the above statements fairly present, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year, the assets and principal of the Trust at December 31, 1941, and the results of its operations for the year ended that date.

STOCKS DRAGGY, WITH LAST HOUR TRENDS SPOTTY

A. T. & T. at Its Lowest Level Since 1935.

New York, April 27 (AP).—The stock market displayed faintly selective recovery signs today but scattered blue chips remained on the weak side and many potential buyers continued to hold aloof.

The list was at its best in the forenoon. Advances were in fractions for the most part and dealings exceptionally slow. Prices wavered here and there in the final hour altho moderate improvement was maintained by many leaders at the close.

The President's message to congress on national economy legislation, being generally in line with Wall street forecasts, had little effect on stocks. The war news was viewed as more bullish.

Average Holds Unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 32.3. Transfers dwindled to 281,250 shares, compared with 390,080 Friday.

A cooling influence on speculative and investment sentiment was seen in first quarter reports of many railroads and industrial corporations revealing substantial recessions of net income from the corresponding 1941 months.

American Telephone, which has been sliding for some weeks, was off more than 4 points at the lowest and finished down 3¾ at a new bottom since 1935. This bellwether seemingly wilted further on indications of administrative opposition to any attempt of the corporation to raise rates as a means of keeping the regular $9 annual dividend.

CHICAGO TREND DOWN.

Declines exceeded advances again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of 71 issues involved in transactions of 14,000 shares, 21 advanced, 33 declined and 17 closed unchanged.

Of the more active stocks, General Motors declined ⅛, and Merchants and Manufacturers advanced ⅛. Commonwealth Edison and Central and South West were unchanged. Borg-Warner declined ¼. Commonwealth Edison declined ⅛ in the half hour after the New York close.

BUSINESS LOANS OF BANKS DROP FOR FIFTH WEEK

The 74 million dollars drop for banks in 101 cities cut the total of these loans outstanding on April 22 to $6,874,000,000, or $1,365,000,000 more than on April 23, 1941.

Following are the principal assets and liabilities of the member banks of the federal reserve system in 101 leading cities as at the close of business Wednesday [last six ciphers omitted]:

Commodities

Cotton futures prices yesterday declined 30 to 60 cents a bale, around the session's lowest levels. Shortly after the first release of the President's message, quotations had pushed up $1 to $1.50 a bale, and the irregularity which followed was attributed by traders to mixed interpretations of the part of the message dealing with farm commodity prices.

Liquidation forced wool tops down 0.1 to 0.4 cent a pound. There were no transactions in grease wool futures. Coffee, cottonseed oil, and cocoa were unchanged at ceiling prices.

SPERRY SLASHES WAR JOB PRICES BY 100 MILLIONS

Readjusts Arms Contracts, Waives Royalties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—The navy department announced today that Sperry corporation, maker of aviation and navigation equipment, has voluntarily readjusted its war contracts to save the government approximately 100 million dollars on present and scheduled business.

Thomas A. Morgan, president of the corporation, wrote Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox that the company had decided to waive royalties in permitting 15 other prime contractors to manufacture certain war equipment developed entirely by Sperry company, and also has reduced its prices for war products.

Follows Study by Committee.

Rep. Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval affairs committee, said later that the readjustment of Sperry contracts followed an examination of the company's books and records by members of his committee staff, and that since last summer his committee had been in touch with Sperry corporation concerning questionnaires it had filled out for the committee.

In his letter to Knox, Morgan said: "After careful consideration of the effect of the war on our business, we have voluntarily agreed to the elimination of all royalties in the license agreements by which we are setting up 15 additional prime contractors to the government for the manufacture of products we have ourselves developed."

He asserted that the corporation had developed a total of 183 critically important products, of which 67 were developed since the beginning of the war.

Cost Experience Lacking.

"To save time," Morgan continued, "large contracts for these products have been taken by us at fixed prices based upon estimates where no cost experience existed for us to go by. In other instances, large contracts have been taken by us for our standard products with the knowledge that new plants and green personnel would have to be organized for their production.

"The results achieved by us in the manufacture of both the new developments and the standard products have exceeded all expectations. As a consequence our profit before taxes has been larger than was anticipated or desired."

Beet Men Doubt Need of Sugar Rationing, but Foresee Gains

Denver, Colo., April 27 [Special].—Altho doubtful of the need for national sugar rationing, western beet sugar refiners and growers are chuckling inwardly that the sugar shortage, whether real or a product of the imagination of Office of Price administration officials, has been recognized in Washington. The government for many years has turned a deaf ear to all arguments that the country should make itself independent of foreign sugar sources.

After being restricted in their sugar production for several years, apparently for the sake of the "good neighbor" policy and for the benefit of Cuban and other off-shore growers, western growers are pleased that they will not be restricted this year. As a result, Colorado growers are expecting to increase their acreage about 25 per cent and other states are believed to be doing likewise.

Labor Lack Limits Increase.

Even larger increases would be probable except for the fact that beet field labor is becoming scarce. One of the most favorable growing seasons in many years is in prospect as water storage conditions in Colorado are excellent.

Colorado's largest sugar crop was harvested in 1930 when 242,000 acres of beets were dug and 407,000 tons of sugar was produced by 17 factories. The same factory facilities will be available this year, but, largely because of labor shortages, the acreage is expected to fall far below the 1930 figure.

Price prospects are the best in several years, but not high enough to induce much speculative planting. The planting season is ending now.

Beet sugar processors are cheered by having the opportunity to introduce beet sugar to eastern consumers, most of whom have never used anything but cane.

In normal times beet sugar seldom is sold east of Chicago and sells at a slightly lower price than cane because of consumer prejudice in favor of cane. Beet men hope the war will impress on the nation the importance of the beet industry and remove the traditional prejudice against their product.

Seeks Postwar Boost

Washington, D. C. April 27 (AP).—A demand that western sugar beet growers be permitted to increase production both during and after the war was made in the house today by Rep. James F. O'Connor [D., Mont.]. Urging the manufacture of industrial alcohol from grain instead of sugar, he declared that "our sugar beet growers must be permitted not only to sustain their present production, both during war time, and after, but must be permitted to increase their production in the future so that the demands of the American market can be met by American farmers."

STATE'S RIGHT TO SUE ON TRUST LAW IS UPHELD

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The Supreme court decided today that a state was a "person" entitled to sue for triple damages claimed to result from violation of the federal anti-trust statutes.

Justice Felix Frankfurter delivered the 8 to 1 opinion on a suit brought by Georgia against Hiram W. Evans of Atlanta and others. Thirty-four other states urged the tribunal to rule that a state could maintain such a suit.

In a decision on March 31, 1941, the Supreme court ruled in a 4 to 3 decision that the federal government was not a "person" which the anti-trust laws authorized to sue for triple damages. Frankfurter said that the considerations which led to this ruling "are entirely lacking here."

"The state of Georgia," he continued, "unlike the United States, cannot prosecute violations of the Sherman law. Nor can it seize property transported in defiance of it."

Justive Owen J. Roberts dissented, remarking that it was "not our function to speculate as to what congress probably intended by the words it used."

WELDERS DENIED ADMITTANCE TO PAY CONFERENCE

WPB Shipyard Chairman Blocks New Union.

An independent welders' union, which battled last winter in Pacific coast shipbuilding yards against the American Federation of Labor, was denied admittance yesterday to the national shipbuilding conference in the Hotel Sherman. The closed meeting, attended by more than 250 representatives of various interests in the industry, was called by the War Production board to discuss renewal of wage stabilization agreements.

The request for admission was made by William McDonald, Chicago, a national vice president of the United Brotherhood of Welders, Cutters and Helpers of America. He said approximately 40,000 members of the union work in shipyards which are covered by the wage agreements.

Called Too Small a Group.

In refusing McDonald a place at the conference, Paul R. Porter, chairman of the WPB's shipbuilding stabilization committee, said that the welders' union represents too small a worker group to be entitled to a delegate.

Porter last Jan. 31 had assailed the welders' union for continuing a strike in Tacoma, Wash., shipyards, describing the strike as "intolerable" at a time "when our nation is at war and American lives are at stake."

McDonald said that the welders have asked AFL recognition as an independent craft. They were refused an international charter, he said, because older AFL unions fear loss of members to the welders' brotherhood.

Pick Working Committee.

"Welders have to carry as many as six cards in AFL unions in order to work," McDonald said. "I know one welder who has had 20 different union cards."

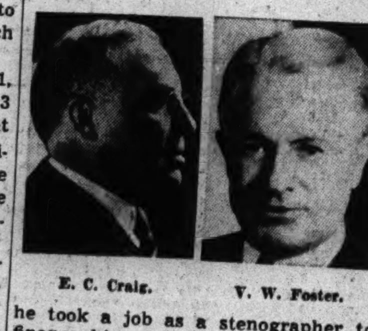
The delegates conducted preliminary sessions and selected a working committee which will consider proposals for the revision of wage and labor contracts which expire in the next few months.

Porter explained that the conference goal is to attain uniformity in the agreements, eliminating some of the discrepancies between wage rates in the Pacific, Atlantic, Great Lakes, and Gulf zones.

People and Events

Edward C. Craig, associated with the Illinois Central system since 1906 and its general counsel since 1933, will retire Thursday, the road announced yesterday. Craig is a native of Mattoon, Ill., and first served the railroad as its representative for Coles county.

Craig will be succeeded by Vernon W. Foster, whose association with Illinois Central began in 1898 when he took a job as a stenographer to finance his studies at the Kent College of Law.



E. C. Craig. V. W. Foster.

The new general solicitor will be Charles A. Helsell, who first joined the company in 1911.

M. E. Goetz, manager of the Chicago district of the Republic Steel corporation, was awarded a plaque last night at the Safety Engineering dinner of the Greater Cleveland Safety council in recognition of the district's accident prevention record during 1941. Similar plaques were awarded to ore producing, coal producing, and manufacturing divisions of the corporation which led their respective groups in accident prevention during the year.

M. E. Goetz.

William J. Kneubuhler, assistant manager of the quotation department of the Chicago Board of Trade, has enlisted in the army air corps and has been assigned to the basic instructors' school at Good Fellow field, San Angelo, Tex.

Day by Day on the Farm
By GAIL COMPTON

Dandelion War Begins.

April 27, 1942.

THE golden heads of dandelions are popping up all over the lawns of the farm homes, and the annual battle between dandelion and gardener is getting under way.

The dandelions, while enjoyed by some, are the despair of lawn lovers. Once started, their rapid germination and hardiness make them a difficult weed to combat.

Undoubtedly the most effective method of dealing with them is pulling them by hand. This is advisable where the area of infestation is small. A sharp knife should be used to cut the roots two or three inches below the surface. Shallow cutting is useless as new heads will spring up in a short time. When the dandelions have been cut down it is a good practice to keep the lawn fairly short so others springing up will not have a chance to go to seed.

There are a number of commercial preparations that will kill the dandelions but many of these should be used with care to avoid harming or discoloring the grass.

2 Weeks Ahead in Fields.

The mild, warm days have been ideal for field work. As a result the men are almost two weeks ahead of last year in planting and plowing. All of the oats have been seeded and dragged down, and most of the legumes are in.

The men now are busy plowing the last of the sod land for corn. Most of the fields already have been worked into good seed bed condition. The last few fields are getting a covering of manure before the ground is turned.

As soon as there is a minute to spare, the farm manager plans to do a little repair work on the wheat field near the sheep barn. The field slopes and as a result several bad washes have appeared. Some manure and straw was thrown in the washes last fall but not enough to stop the erosion.

Soil Thief Busy.

Now the gullies are enlarging. If there is a hard rain quite a bit of top soil will be lost and some of the young seedlings may be washed out. One of the farm men suggested piling straw and manure in the washes so that they will be filled higher than the surrounding soil. This will automatically keep the runoff water away from them and give the ground a chance to go to sod.

Erosion is one of the most deadly of soil thieves and must be guarded against constantly. A slope with only a 16 per cent grade will lose 12 tons of soil a year thru washing.

Despite some harm done to the field, the young wheat is well up and growing fast. The deep green color of the shoots indicates a plentiful supply of fertilizer and nitrogen in the soil. The stand is uniform and the farm should realize a good yield from the 15 acres.

PRICES OF HOGS SLANT DOWN AS SHIPMENTS RISE

A moderate increase in the run of hogs at the leading packing centers yesterday caused a moderate reduction in the price level at the stock yards. Top loads sold off 10 cents, at $14.40, while the average for the session moved down 5 cents, to $14.25. However, the general level of prices was 25 to 30 cents above those of Monday of last week, the day the new set of pork ceilings went into effect.

Top grades of cattle reached $17.25, equaling the highest April price in 23 years, but the majority of steers and yearlings sold 15 to 25 cents under last week's close.

AIR CONDITIONING IN WAR.

How does Carrier corporation fit into the war program, Can you report on recent financial operations?—T. E.

Answer: Carrier corporation is one of the leading makers of air conditioning units and related equipment now being used by industries engaged in war production. Aircraft factories, makers of bomb sights and range finders, and manufacturers of other high precision instruments, are equipped with air conditioning to prevent normal variations in room temperature which cause contraction and expansion of metals. Units also are used in munitions factories, chemical plants, and mines.

Carrier corporation products also are used by the nation's armed forces. Naval vessels carrying large supplies of foodstuffs, army camps, and hospitals employ air conditioning. Carrier corporation dehumidifiers are used to keep parachutes dry, moisture is removed from underground powder storage vaults by dehydrators, and many rooms in which heavily clad pilots adjust themselves for high altitude flying are Carrier equipped.

Orders in the 10 months ended Oct. 31, 1941, totaled more than 20 million dollars, compared with $14,375,000 for the entire 1940 period. The record of recent financial operations follows:

GENERAL MOTORS SALES, PROFITS DOWN SHARPLY

Production 90 Per Cent for War Purposes.

Sales and earnings of General Motors corporation fell in the March quarter as passenger car production facilities were being converted to war work, the company disclosed last night in an interim statement.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman, said nearly 60 per cent of the company's sales in the period were war materiels, compared with 9 per cent in the March quarter last year. Currently, he reported, about 90 per cent of General Motors output is going directly or indirectly for war purposes.

Net income available for common stock was $20,935,436, equal to 43 cents a share, compared with $62,303,782, or $1.44 a share, in the first quarter of 1941. Consolidated net sales dropped to $439,336,580, from $649,192,619 in the March quarter last year.

Rolling Mill Reports Slump.

American Rolling Mill company, Middletown, O., announced first quarter earnings dropped to $1,731,635, equal to 43 cents a share, from $3,599,241, or $1.08 a share, in the corresponding three months last year. Charles R. Hook, president, said the scrap shortage caused reduced output in the quarter and is a continuing problem. Armco, he added, is producing entirely for the war effort.

Great Western Sugar company of Denver, Colo., beet sugar producer, reported its profit for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28 was $5,285,424, equal to $2.35 a share, the best showing in four years. In the preceding fiscal year the company earned $3,539,379, or $1.38 a share.

Anaconda Wire and Cable company, of New York and Chicago, reported in a preliminary statement its net profit for the March quarter was $548,235, equal to $1.30 a share, compared with $748,811, or $1.77 a share, in the corresponding 1941 period. Provision for federal taxes was $3,236,080, approximately four times the $808,727 provided the year before. The 1942 figure also was after provision of $938,000 for contingencies.

GRAINS TUMBLE ON ROOSEVELT'S INFLATION VIEWS

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Grains broke sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday as dealers took the view that the President's anti-inflation message to congress indicated the end of all large scale market speculation for the duration of the war. Traders said profit incentives of the speculative markets would be almost nullified if personal incomes are to be limited thru taxes.

Wheat closed 2⅜ to 2¾ cents lower, falling almost 4 cents a bushel from peaks reached in a short-lived rally that occurred soon after the President's message started moving over the market wires. May futures closed at $1.19 a bushel. Corn was down ¾ cent; oats, ⅛ to ⅝ cent; rye, 1 cent, and soy beans, 2⅜ to 3 cents.

Market Highly Sensitive.

Prices of all grains moved uncertainly thruout the session. Resumption of liquidation at the opening of the day's trade shoved wheat down more than a cent. First mention of "parity" in the President's message accentuated the liquidation but as the traders read further that the President wanted only parity ceilings, shorts started buying and prices shot up almost 2 cents.

With the message completed and the full text available, selling started with renewed vigor. The trend of the wheat futures led the way for the other markets, altho only soy beans traveled as wide a range as wheat.

Fails to Buy Beans.

Altho the federal program for purchasing soy bean seed has been in effect for more than two weeks now, CCC officials reported the agency has not bought any beans. Checking of germination tests has accounted for part of the delay. CCC officials say they do not expect, from present indications, to purchase any large amount of the seed beans.

BUYERS CROWD 2 CHICAGO SHOWS OF FURNSHINGS

EarlyRegistrationsTop Year Ago.

Registrations at two Chicago home furnishings markets were unusually heavy yesterday as store operators, buyers, and manufacturers crowded the market centers to find the answers to their war problems. At the national defense home furnishings market in the American Furniture about 3,000 persons had registered compared with 2,500 a year ago. At the midseason market in the Merchandise Mart—where the registrations were confined to the two furniture floors—about 700 signed up compared with 600 a year ago.

Interest was shown at both markets in the opportunities for filling the needs of the thousands of persons moving into arms production localities. It has been estimated that there will be 1,250,000 small homes built in areas designated as defense regions.

Find Many Need Furniture.

Results of a survey made of 1,360 armament workers were disclosed at the Furniture Mart. It was shown that 36 per cent of those moving into new homes will require some new furniture and that 24 per cent will need entirely new furnishings.

It was said that the cost of completely furnishing a defense home will range from $700 to $900. Between 30 and 33 pieces of furniture are required.

More Double Duty Lines.

The furniture style trend indicated that the manufacturers are designing their new offerings to meet the requirements of the compact defense homes. Double duty articles of furniture are plentiful among the displays.

Ferd Kramer, program supervisor for the National Housing agency, will discuss "National Defense Housing" at a dinner tonight in the Furniture Mart and Alfred Auerbach of the Office of Price administration will discuss "Price Control."

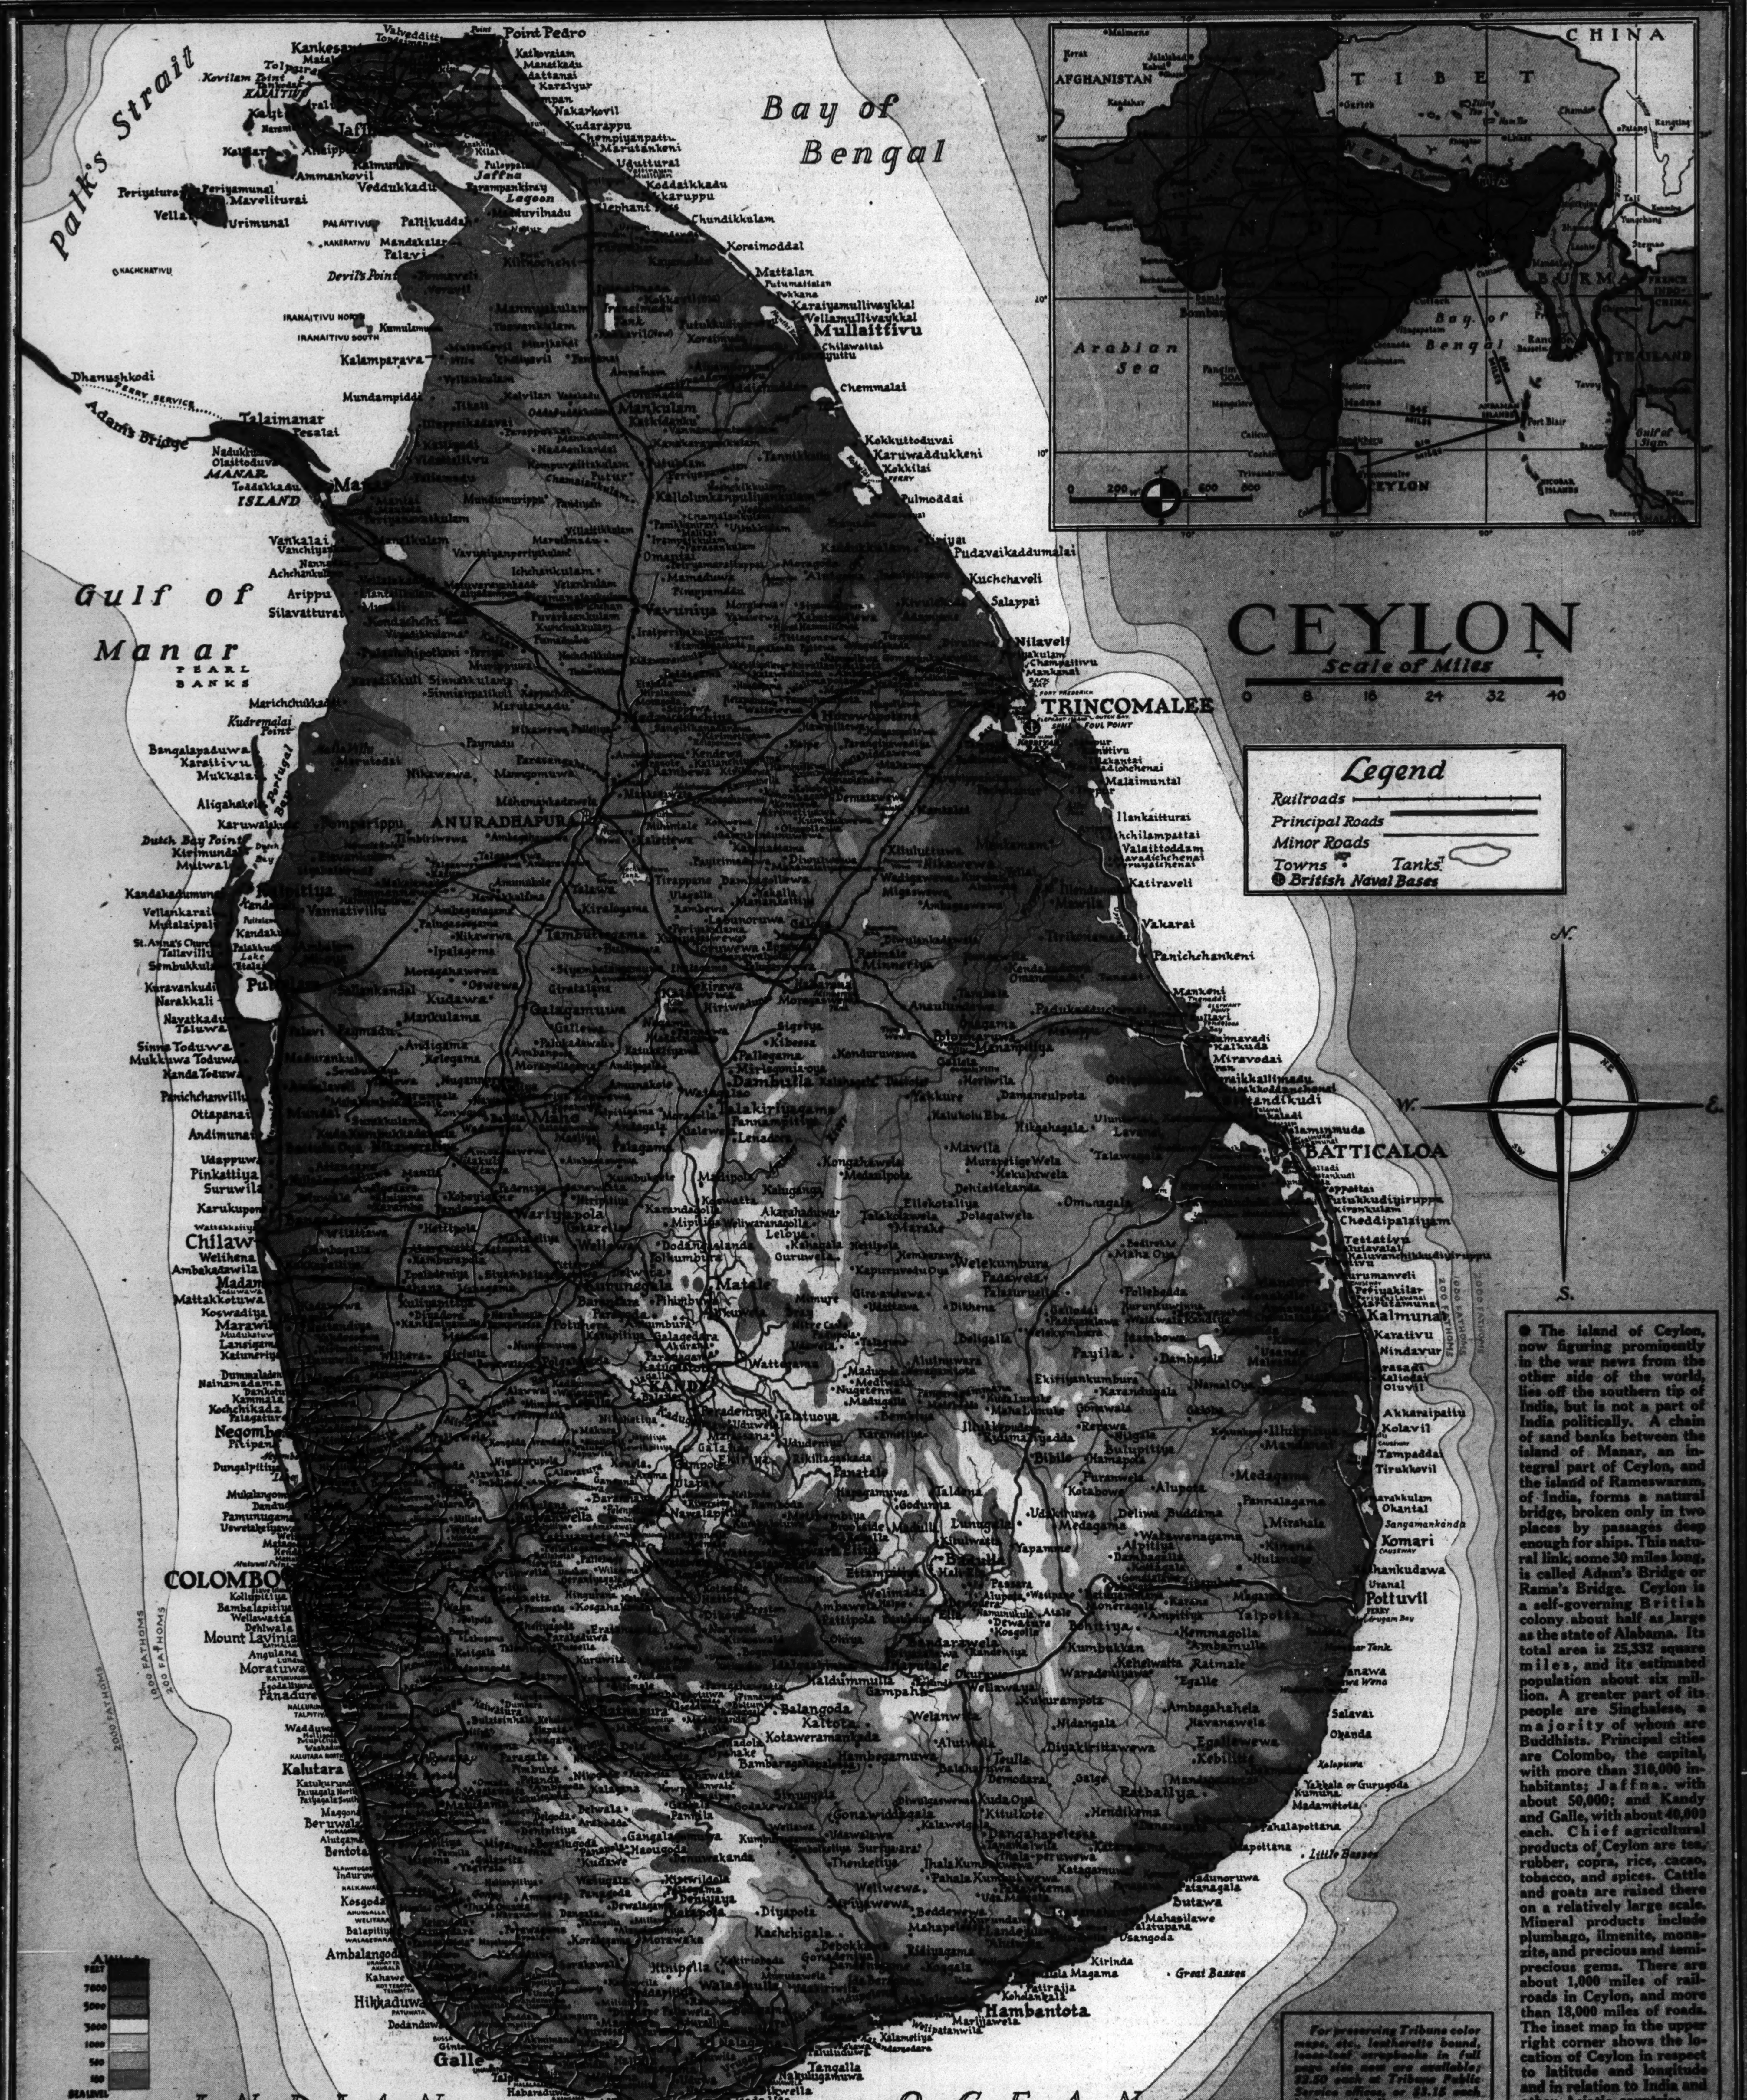
NEW WAR MAP OF BRITAIN'S COLONY OF CEYLON



● The island of Ceylon, now figuring prominently in the war news from the other side of the world, lies off the southern tip of India, but is not a part of India politically. A chain of sand banks between the island of Manar, an integral part of Ceylon, and the island of Rameswaram, of India, forms a natural bridge, broken only in two places by passages deep enough for ships. This natural link, some 30 miles long, is called Adam's Bridge or Rama's Bridge. Ceylon is a self-governing British colony about half as large as the state of Alabama. Its total area is 25,332 square miles, and its estimated population about six million. A greater part of its people are Singhalese, a majority of whom are Buddhists. Principal cities are Colombo, the capital, with more than 310,000 inhabitants; Jaffna, with about 50,000; and Kandy and Galle, with about 40,000 each. Chief agricultural products of Ceylon are tea, rubber, copra, rice, cacao, tobacco, and spices. Cattle and goats are raised there on a relatively large scale. Mineral products include plumbago, ilmenite, monazite, and precious and semi-precious gems. There are about 1,000 miles of railroads in Ceylon, and more than 18,000 miles of roads. The inset map in the upper right corner shows the location of Ceylon in respect to latitude and longitude and in relation to India and other Asiatic countries.
